

First Published: 18th June 1855

e saddle

perspectives for the... we find our joint... extent to normalize... were very hesitant... had to stop where... weapon is very...
Q. If they develop... your own bomb? A. Well, we have not decided... that I hope we do not... that we have lived with... there is an option... to think much more... the Pakistani weapon... Chinese weapon.
Q. You appeared to be... your speech to the... college yesterday... a determination that... building a nuclear... saying the balance... inappropriate for a... that as applying...
Q. Is it possible to develop... of difference between... Pakistan that does not... development of a nuclear... India has the... an attack by Pakistan... Pakistan has a nuclear... A. I think it is... to have a proper... system which will... being...
Control system for a nuclear weapon

THE TIMES
1785-1985

INSIDE

Smart end of the wedge
Guide to good chessmanship Page 31

Fair Fares in the air
Best-buy flights in Britain Page 33

North of the border
New Mexico way... Page 32

A Racine certainty
Glenda Jackson opens at the Aldwych Page 38

MONDAY

Front line of duty
How police widows cope

Portfolio

£22,000 to be won

There is £22,000 to be won in The Times Portfolio competition today: £20,000 in the weekly competition and the daily prize of £2,000.

There were two winners in yesterday's competition. Mr Jonathan Williams of London and Mr Lance See of Stamford, Middlesex, each received £1,000. Portfolio list, page 12. Weekly prize changes, back page Information Service.

Controversy over Nobel Peace Prize

The Norwegian Nobel Committee provoked controversy when it awarded its 1985 Peace Prize to the International Physicians for the Prevention of Nuclear War, which has been criticized as a "propaganda outfit" for Russia. Page 5

Gene linked to cystic fibrosis

An international group of scientists has made a big advance in understanding cystic fibrosis with the identification of a gene responsible for producing an enzyme found in the blood of sufferers. Page 3

Salvador raid

A lightning raid by left-wing guerrillas on the main training base for El Salvador's troops killed at least 40 soldiers and wounded 68. Page 7

Belize plea

The Queen gave no guarantee of a continued British military presence in response to a plea from Belize but emphasized the growing role of local troops. Page 6

Shares record

Equities rose to a new peak with the FT 30 share index closing at a record high of 1,027.5, up 9.7 points on the day. Page 13

Inflation cut

The annual rate of inflation fell to 5.9 per cent in September, its lowest level since February. Page 11

Stately hotels

Several country houses in Britain are to be converted into hotels, mainly with American tourists in mind. Family Money, pages 14-24

Gray sacked

Leeds United's players have expressed astonishment at what they call the "disturbing and demoralizing" decision to dismiss their manager, Eddie Gray. Page 26

Leader, page 9
Letters: On inner cities, from Mr M Ash, and Mr N Walter; hospitals, from Mr R Whitney, MP
Leading articles: Ship hijack; Thatcher speech; China and Japan
Obituary, page 10
Orson Welles, Mr John W Snyder

Home News	2-4	Events	30
Overseas	5-7	Law Report	28
Arts	13	Religion	10
Books	7	Science	12
Bridge	11-24	Sport	25-27
Chess	7-34	TV & Radio	29
Crosswords	30, 34	Theatre, etc	36, 37
Diary	8	Weather	30

Terrorists told: You can run, but you cannot hide

Washington demands extradition of hijackers

President Reagan is seeking extradition from Italy of the seized hijack terrorists so that they can stand trial in the United States.

But Italy was unmoved by Washington's request and announced that murder and kidnap charges against the Palestinians were being prepared.

Washington's joy at the capture of the four Palestinians may be premature. Another, equally ruthless attack on the US or its allies, could be on the way

From Christopher Thomas, Washington

President Reagan, elated by the "magnificent news" of the capture of the four Palestinians who hijacked an Italian cruise ship, the Achille Lauro, and killed an elderly, disabled American, is seeking extradition of the terrorists from Italy to stand trial in the United States.

The Italian Government told the White House yesterday that the men will be subject to the full process of law. But President Reagan said last night that there could be two trials, the other in the United States. American law would not provide for a murder trial but the terrorists could face life imprisonment in the United States for hostage-taking.

Initially the United States is content to let Italy prosecute the hijackers for piracy. Agreement on that was reached by telephone between Mr George Shultz, Secretary of State, and Signor Giulio Andreotti, the Italian Foreign Minister, late on Thursday night.

Mr Reagan's stock rose considerably in Congress and with public opinion after news of the interception by four Tomcat F-14 fighter aircraft of the Egyptian civilian airliner flying the terrorists out of Egypt. Having been turned away from Tunis and Athens, the Boeing 737 was forced to land at Sigonella airport, a Sicilian Nato base, on Thursday night.

At a stroke Mr Reagan has done much to counter the impression that the US is a helpless giant in the face of world terrorism. It is the first tangible result of his pledge to pursue terrorists wherever necessary.

Referring to American airmen and others involved in the operation, he said before leaving for a weekend at his Camp David retreat: "These young Americans sent a message to terrorists everywhere that you can run but you cannot hide."

The affair has severely strained relations with President Mubarak of Egypt, his close Arab ally, who appears to have deliberately misled the Americans about the whereabouts of the terrorists during the confusing hours of Thursday morning.

But administration officials said last night they were confident that the affair would not damage the Middle East peace process.

Mr Reagan insisted that for security reasons neither the Egyptians nor Italian governments had any advance warning about the American plans. "This plan was ours," he said.

He barely concealed his annoyance at the Egyptian attempt to give the impression

President Reagan expressing his delight at the capture of the four Palestinian hijackers, as the Egyptian Boeing 737 forced to take them to Sicily sits at Sigonella air base.

ON PAGE SIX

Israelis jubilant
Point of interception
US and Cairo texts
How hostage died

Leading article 9

Italy turns down Reagan

From John Earle, Rome

Signor Bettino Craxi, the Italian Prime Minister, has turned down a request from President Reagan to hand over the four Palestinian hijackers of the Achille Lauro who were being held yesterday in Sicily under maximum security.

He disclosed that the President telephoned him a second time early on Friday after calling him just before midnight to obtain landing permission for the Egyptian Boeing 737 carrying the hijackers and for the American fighters, which had intercepted it.

Signor Craxi said: "The President advanced to me the desire of the United States Government to have in America the group of terrorists for them to face justice."

"I pointed out that the offences were committed in Italian territory, and it was therefore a matter for Italian jurisdiction. On this President Reagan concurred, but he forwarded me of an American extradition request for the four terrorists."

Signor Giulio Andreotti, the Foreign Minister, also made clear in a telephone call in the middle of the night to his opposite number, Mr George Shultz, that Italy was not prepared to hand over the Palestinians, but intended to try them.

On Thursday, before the interception, Italy had already indicated that it would seek the four men's extradition from the Palestine Liberation Organization in Tunis, which it was thought, had custody of them.

In Sicily, the Italian authorities sealed off all entrances into the American-run Nato air base at Sigonella near Catania.

Continued on back page, col 7

Fear of new attack as extremists threaten retaliation

From Robert Fisk, Cairo

While President Reagan's Administration was expressing its jubilation yesterday at the capture of the four Palestinian gunmen who had murdered an elderly American tourist on board the hijacked Italian cruise liner Achille Lauro, there were signs last night that Washington's joy may be premature and that Palestinian and other Arab groups may be planning to spoil US elation by carrying out another, equally ruthless attack on the Americans or their allies, including the British.

A PLO spokesman in Cairo described the US military operation that forced the plane carrying the hijackers to land at a Nato base in Sicily, as a "criminal" act, but a far more ominous statement was made in Beirut, where a caller claiming to represent the Palestinian group to which the gunmen belonged, telephoned a Western news agency in the city and threatened to strike at "US interests" throughout the world if any harm befell the men. The Italians, he demanded, must immediately release them from custody.

While such reactions may appear absurd to Western eyes - not least because apologists for the gunmen are now claiming that no one was murdered on the Italian liner - there is a growing fear in Arab capitals that extremist groups will regard the hijacking and the subsequent US military operation as the start of an open war against the Americans and their supporters in the West.

There is already growing evidence in the Middle East that the group calling itself "the movement of revolutionary socialist Muslims" - which has killed a British diplomat in Greece and more recently staged a grenade attack at an Athens hotel where Britons were on holiday - is a front organization for Abu Nidal's assassination squads, at present loyal to Syria.

It was the faction belonging to Abu Nidal - whose real name is Sabri el-Banna - which threatened to murder the two pro-Arafat PLO men who are to meet Sir Geoffrey Howe, the Foreign Secretary, next week.

And British officials in the Arab world have noted with concern that the six British women on board the Achille Lauro appeared to have been singled out from other Europeans.

London visit

The visit to Britain by a joint Jordanian-Palestinian delegation, including two senior representatives of the Palestine Liberation Organization, will take place on Monday. The Americans are said to be furious that the visit is to go ahead. Page 6 peans on the ship and threatened together with American passengers in a separate room.

Last night, the six young women were still so upset by their experience that they refused the British consul's invitation to travel down to Cairo on the grounds that they were frightened of being kidnapped on the way.

Mr Yassir Arafat's PLO, while still condemning the original hijacking, was issuing warnings of extremist retaliation against the Americans and West European nations from several capitals last night.

Continued on back page, col 7

Thatcher offers 'blank cheque' to the police

From Julian Haviland, Political Editor, Blackpool

The Prime Minister yesterday assured the Conservative Party Conference that the law would be enforced against street violence and riot, and she attacked the Labour Party for not expelling those in its own ranks who conspired to subvert the law.

Labour's failure placed a unique responsibility on the Government and the Conservative Party, she said, to conserve the rule of the people of all parties and of none.

Mrs Margaret Thatcher recalled that a delegate to Labour's annual conference last week had been applauded for calling the police the enemy.

"Enemy? The overwhelming majority of the British people regard the police as friends," she said to loud applause. "They admire and are deeply thankful for the courage of the police and of their families."

The Prime Minister then unexpectedly offered the police a blank cheque. "The Government will continue steadfastly to back the police," she said. "If they need more men, more equipment, different equipment, they shall have them. We do not economize on protecting life and property."

Mrs Thatcher was given a wild eight-minute ovation for a speech in which she emphasized that the Government would not renege, but left a number of party representatives wanting a clearer indication of its future course.

Mr Norman Tebbit, party chairman, acknowledged on BBC television last Sunday that the electorate was not certain where the party was going and did not see the reforming radicalism of 1979. Yet Mrs Thatcher referred only briefly to the next decade.

The party should set its sights, she said, on a Britain where three out of four families owned their homes and where owning shares was as common as owning a car; a Britain with more people self-employed, more businesses, more jobs, where savings kept their value.

"Step by step we are rolling back the frontiers of socialism and returning power to the people," she said.

There was no word about either of the Government's two most challenging commitments, to reform rates and the structure of social security.

There was no explicit endorsement of Mr Nigel Lawson's objective to make tax cuts.

Instead, Mrs Thatcher dwelt on the Government's record, and attacked Labour's claims, enlarged by Mr Neil Kinnock's Bournemouth speeches, to be a party of moderation.

"By their fruits ye shall know them," she said of Labour. At Bournemouth, Labour had voted to scrap the laws requiring

Conference reports 4
Leading article 9

ing secret ballots in trade unions; to give up Britain's nuclear deterrent, and to indemnify councils and unions which broke the law for political ends.

The Labour Party was two factions in a state of civil war, with the left gaining ground.

Socialism in action could be seen today in Liverpool, Lambeth and Haringey. Those councils showed what it would be like if Labour got power at Westminster.

"The militant left will not be beaten by brave words and ritual disciplines," Mrs Thatcher said. "If the Labour leadership is genuinely against these people, why don't they expel them?"

"Isn't the real reason that they are a bigger and bigger part of the Labour Party? And that the present leadership can't do without them?"

She criticized Mr Kinnock for supporting the miners' strike, conducted with intimidation and violence. "Courage is not making a speech in Bournemouth long after the event. Courage is what you show in the heat of the battle, not at the post-mortem."

Real courage was that shown by the working miners, railwaymen, steelmen and dockers, whom Labour had disowned.

The Prime Minister catalogued the Government's achievements as if to demonstrate Mrs Thatcher, earning an eight-minute ovation.

Continued on back page, col 2

Plot against Gandhi fear

The police are believed to have uncovered a plot against Mr Rajiv Gandhi, the Indian Prime Minister, three days before his official visit to Britain, after the arrest yesterday of at least six men under the Prevention of Terrorism Act.

The men, believed to be Kashmiris, were arrested by police officers from five forces in a coordinated operation.

Leicestershire police, who are holding several men, said last night that criminal charges were being considered.

Two of the men were arrested in London and three more in Halifax, Blackburn and Oldham.

President's skin cancer

Washington (Reuters) - President Reagan said yesterday that more skin cancer had been found on his nose on Thursday and had been surgically removed by the White House doctor in "a minor operation."

"There were some cancer cells found," Mr Reagan said. "I can stand before you and proudly say my nose is clean."

It was the President's second operation for skin cancer on his nose. The first was on July 30.

Mr Reagan, aged 74, the oldest US president in history, also underwent a serious operation for intestinal cancer on July 13 in which a section of his colon was removed.

Strikers demand Grant must resign

By Robin Young

More than 1,000 employees of Haringey Borough Council in north London went on strike yesterday and marched to the Civic Centre to demand the resignation of the council leader, Mr Bernie Grant, over his reaction to the riot on Broadwater Farm Estate. Mr Grant had refused to condemn the riot and the murder of Police Constable Keith Blacklock and had referred to the police getting "a bloody good hiding."

The workers, members of the Transport and General Workers Union and the National Union of Public Employees, voted unanimously to stage an immediate 24-hour strike at a mass meeting held at a council transport depot. A black man who spoke in support of Mr Grant was shouted down and six workers walked out of the meeting before the vote was taken.

The resolution passed by the meeting condemned the remarks of the leader of the council about the police and the Broadwater Farm riot.

Boy, 15, accused of PC murder

A black boy, aged 15, was remanded in custody yesterday charged with murdering PC Keith Blacklock during the riot on Broadwater Farm Estate.

The boy, from Finsbury Park, appeared briefly at Tottenham juvenile court, accompanied by his mother and a teacher. Brian Williams, the magistrate, remanded him to a special juvenile wing at Brixton prison until Wednesday.

Detectives yesterday continued questioning three other boys aged 13, 14 and 15, arrested on Thursday, and a 16-year-old, arrested yesterday.

It said: "These remarks should never have been made. The killing of PC Blacklock can never in any way be excused. All forms of violence must be clearly condemned. Most of us live in the borough and we do not want petrol bombing, shooting and stone throwing where we and our families live."

"As council employees we are in the front line in Broadwater Farm and elsewhere. We need the protection of the police, the support of the community and of our employing authority. We demand that Haringey Council totally condemn all forms of violence. Council leaders must act in such a way as not to aggravate any differences within the local community."

"It also has to be said that many of the problems of Haringey are due to unemployment and lack of public services, and these problems will only get worse with money being taken out of Haringey by the Tory government and forced privatization of council services."

"We must never again have riots on the streets of Tottenham. Never again should the leader of Haringey Council agree with attacks on police and members of the public or condone the burning down of people's houses. Bernie Grant should resign as leader of Haringey Council."

Mr Brian Berritt, the TGWU branch chairman, said: "We have ensured that all essential services are covered and we apologize to the people of Haringey for any inconvenience the strike may cause, which we have tried to avoid."

This is in no sense a racist demonstration. There was no difference of opinion with coloured members who attended the meeting. Those supporting Mr Grant were probably less than half a per cent of all those that were there.

We want to make our feelings known about the irresponsibility of Mr Grant. His own council members should make him step down. We should not be forced to take the action we are taking to get his resignation."

Mr John Mercer, branch secretary for the TGWU, said: "The meeting was very aggressive in its feelings toward Mr Grant. We are concerned for the workforce. We feel our

Continued on page 2, col 4

US plan for Third World 'superbank'

The Reagan Administration, as part of its plans to defuse the international debt crisis, wants to create an international "superbank" to handle all loans to Third World countries, Bailey Morris writes from Hot Springs, Virginia.

Mr Richard Darman, the Deputy Treasury Secretary, said yesterday that the bank would replace the current system of international banking syndicates which both approves new loans to Third World nations and renegotiates old debts.

The new bank is the Administration's response to worsening relations with Latin American debtor countries. But Mr Darman said the idea had not yet been formally unveiled.

The Administration's idea is to channel all old and new monies available to Third World nations from private sources through the new bank, thus consolidating the management of these loans.

THE LAND OF OPPORTUNITY

The world's largest stock market always offers opportunities. And Save & Prosper are there to follow them up.

For example, in the 18 months since launch, the price of units in our American Income & Growth Fund rose 37.2%.*

While the gross yield has risen from 5.5% at launch in March '84 to 8% now. (The highest of any similar US invested fund).

And we believe the future's looking fine and dandy too!

1986 is the date most favoured for the next upward moves in the US economy.

And we agree.

Find out why by filling in the coupon below. Or 'phone us for free on Moneyline (0800-282101) today.

And land yourself the opportunity to go for America. And Income. And Growth.

*Offer to offer price with net income reinvested from 15.3.84 to 15.9.85.

To: Save & Prosper, FREEPOST, Romford RM1 1BR.
Telephone: Moneyline 0800-282101 Prestel *48128*
Please send me details of Save & Prosper American Income & Growth Fund.

Name (Mr/Ms/Miss) _____
Address _____
Postcode _____

AMERICAN INCOME & GROWTH FUND

SAVE & PROSPER

Rate rebel councillors fail to postpone appeal against penalties

By Hugh Clayton

Rate rebellious councillors' hopes of postponing the threat of a ban from office until well into 1986 received a setback in the High Court yesterday.

Mr Justice Mann decided, on application from district auditors in a London borough and Liverpool, that the rebels' appeals against surcharge and disqualification should be heard on January 13, the first day of the new legal term.

Appeals have been filed by 80 rebels from Lambeth, in south London, and Liverpool and one former Lambeth councillor, who have been accused by auditors of wilful misconduct which led to losses of interest during the abortive Labour rates defiance in the spring.

Similar actions may be mounted by auditors against councils such as Greenwich, in south London, and Sheffield, which persisted for a shorter time in delaying the fixing of rates.

If the Liverpool and Lambeth rebels lose their appeals they will have to pay a total of £233,000 and will be banned from all council office for five years.

Mr Justice Mann rejected an application from the Liverpool councillors to have their case heard in Liverpool because several of them were unemployed and could not afford the cost of appearing in London. He ruled that the case would be heard by the Queen's Bench Divisional Court which, by tradition, sits only in London.

But yesterday's victory by the auditors was only one stage in preventing the rebels from using legal action as a means of postponing their banning from office until after council elections next May. Wards held by the Lambeth rebels and some of the Liverpool councillors are due for elections then.

The appeals against surcharge are the first of their kind under the latest legislation and are therefore almost certain to be taken on to the Court of Appeal and perhaps the House of Lords.

Meanwhile related cases planned by other Labour-led councils may cut across the Lambeth and Liverpool hearings. An appeal will be heard early next month against the rejection in the High Court in the summer of a complicated claim by Greenwich council that the manner in which it was rate-capped by ministers early this year was unreasonable.

If that appeal was upheld it would undermine the basis of rate capping for 1986 and one of the planks on which district auditors have based their cases against Lambeth and Liverpool councillors. That is that their spring rebellion was futile because they had no hope of winning changes in government controls such as rate capping.

Camden council in north-west London may challenge the withholding last spring of housing benefit subsidies by the Department of Health and Social Security. Although the money is now being paid to all rebel councils, the potential interest lost on it is at the heart of the cases against Lambeth and Liverpool.

Those two councils were told in the spring that they would not receive the money until they fixed their rates. If Camden secures a ruling that the money should have been paid, another part of the auditors' case will have been undermined.

Mr Christopher Hallows, leader of the Conservative group on the city council, told Labour councillors that the lay-off plan was part of "a charade, a campaign you are running that you know you cannot win".

The council has been running out of money since it became the only one of the 20 that joined the Labour rates rebellion last year to set a deliberate deficit budget in which income from rates is too low to cover spending. The Employment Protection (Consolidation) Act 1978, allows employees under some circumstances to be laid off for up to four weeks without redundancy pay so long as they are assured that they will be re-engaged on terms at least as good as those under which they were working.

Teachers who have taken the council to court over the original redundancy plan may seek legal redress over the new move.

Mr Tony Mulhearn, president of the Liverpool district Labour Party, said the council would fight to win resources from the Government that would make the lay-off unnecessary. He said that the condemnation of the council at the Labour Party conference by Mr Neil Kinnock, leader of the Opposition, had been delivered "from a position of profound ignorance".

Liverpool plans to lay off all staff

By Hugh Clayton and David Felton

Liverpool City Council yesterday abandoned its plan to make its workforce of 31,000 redundant just before Christmas and decided instead to lay off all staff for four weeks in January.

Leaders of unions with members who work for the Labour-led council will meet in London tomorrow to plan their next moves, which are likely to include a meeting with council leaders in Liverpool next week.

One union official last night predicted that such a meeting would include "comradely discussions which could involve us placing our feet on the windpipe of some of the council leaders until they see sense".

The lay-off will release £23 million that would otherwise have been needed for redundancy payments and will help Labour leaders avoid insolvency this financial year. But union officials believe that the council will eventually back down from all threats and that the sum needed to keep the council operating until the start of the new financial year in April could be as low as £8 million.

Mr John Edmonds, general secretary-elect of the General Municipal, Boilermakers and Allied Trades Union, which has most members working for the council, said last night: "Santa Claus is coming three months early. This is the biggest step forward so far to the solution of the Liverpool problem."

Mr Ian Lowes, chairman of the council joint shop stewards

committee, said in Liverpool yesterday that staff would work voluntarily to ensure that the needy did not suffer.

Mr John Edmonds, general secretary-elect of the General Municipal, Boilermakers and Allied Trades Union, which has most members working for the council, said last night: "Santa Claus is coming three months early. This is the biggest step forward so far to the solution of the Liverpool problem."

Mr Ian Lowes, chairman of the council joint shop stewards

committee, said in Liverpool yesterday that staff would work voluntarily to ensure that the needy did not suffer.

Mr John Edmonds, general secretary-elect of the General Municipal, Boilermakers and Allied Trades Union, which has most members working for the council, said last night: "Santa Claus is coming three months early. This is the biggest step forward so far to the solution of the Liverpool problem."

Mr Ian Lowes, chairman of the council joint shop stewards

committee, said in Liverpool yesterday that staff would work voluntarily to ensure that the needy did not suffer.

Mr John Edmonds, general secretary-elect of the General Municipal, Boilermakers and Allied Trades Union, which has most members working for the council, said last night: "Santa Claus is coming three months early. This is the biggest step forward so far to the solution of the Liverpool problem."

Mr Ian Lowes, chairman of the council joint shop stewards

committee, said in Liverpool yesterday that staff would work voluntarily to ensure that the needy did not suffer.

Mr John Edmonds, general secretary-elect of the General Municipal, Boilermakers and Allied Trades Union, which has most members working for the council, said last night: "Santa Claus is coming three months early. This is the biggest step forward so far to the solution of the Liverpool problem."

Mr Ian Lowes, chairman of the council joint shop stewards

committee, said in Liverpool yesterday that staff would work voluntarily to ensure that the needy did not suffer.

Mr John Edmonds, general secretary-elect of the General Municipal, Boilermakers and Allied Trades Union, which has most members working for the council, said last night: "Santa Claus is coming three months early. This is the biggest step forward so far to the solution of the Liverpool problem."

Mr Ian Lowes, chairman of the council joint shop stewards

committee, said in Liverpool yesterday that staff would work voluntarily to ensure that the needy did not suffer.

Mr John Edmonds, general secretary-elect of the General Municipal, Boilermakers and Allied Trades Union, which has most members working for the council, said last night: "Santa Claus is coming three months early. This is the biggest step forward so far to the solution of the Liverpool problem."

Mr Ian Lowes, chairman of the council joint shop stewards

committee, said in Liverpool yesterday that staff would work voluntarily to ensure that the needy did not suffer.

Mr John Edmonds, general secretary-elect of the General Municipal, Boilermakers and Allied Trades Union, which has most members working for the council, said last night: "Santa Claus is coming three months early. This is the biggest step forward so far to the solution of the Liverpool problem."

Mr Ian Lowes, chairman of the council joint shop stewards

committee, said in Liverpool yesterday that staff would work voluntarily to ensure that the needy did not suffer.

Mr John Edmonds, general secretary-elect of the General Municipal, Boilermakers and Allied Trades Union, which has most members working for the council, said last night: "Santa Claus is coming three months early. This is the biggest step forward so far to the solution of the Liverpool problem."

Mr Ian Lowes, chairman of the council joint shop stewards

Mr Grant (top) being escorted on arrival at the Haringey Civic Centre yesterday. Mr Fred Chisholm and Miss Flo Gregory, two of the demonstrators with a message for the council leader and (right) a Nalga member who opposed the one-day strike.

Strikers demand Grant must go

Continued from page 1

Jobs may depend upon a Labour council being retained, and Mr Grant's actions could lose us our jobs. He has done terrible damage to Labour, and has driven a deep wedge between the people who live in the borough."

Mr Steve Coles, branch secretary of Nalga, agreed that Mr Grant's attitude was likely to lose the Labour Party the local elections in May.

Supporters of the Socialist Workers Party and Militant paraded posters outside the meeting blaming Mrs Margaret Thatcher and not Mr Grant, but local residents countered with a streamer of wallpaper converted into a banner declaring: "Bernie Grant does not speak for Haringey. Bernie get out. Council supports murder".

At the end of a three-mile march to the Civic Centre there were noisy scenes when the marchers were met by about 70 demonstrators, many carrying Nalga placards, who chanted abuse, accusing the marchers of racism.

The Nalga branch secretary, Mr Richard Cotton, a housing management officer, said: "We thought it important to dissociate ourselves from the march and from anything that might increase tension".

Asked whether the abusive counter-demonstration was not itself likely to heighten tension, he replied: "I have not heard any of our members being abusive. We cannot be responsible for other people who may have joined our demonstration to support our point of view."

Those holding Nalga placards included an abusively

Jarrett son on knife charge

Michael Jarrett, aged 21, son of Mrs Cynthia Jarrett, whose death started the Tottenham riots on Sunday, appeared before Tottenham magistrates in north London yesterday.

Mr Jarrett, unemployed, of Thorpe Road, Tottenham, was charged, with possessing a Stanley knife as an offensive weapon, at a Wimpy bar in Wood Green Way Road, on September 14. He elected trial and was remanded on unconditional bail to October 25 for committal.

A vociferous group of young black men and women and several people who had previously been selling Socialist Worker and Militant. Also among the group were two children of Mrs Cynthia Jarrett, the black woman whose death sparked the riots.

A strong contingent of police kept the rival demonstrations apart while jeering and fierce verbal abuse continued for nearly half an hour. The group with Nalga placards on the Civic Centre steps were of mixed races, while the marchers were predominantly, but not exclusively, white.

At one point a West Indian among the strikers raised a loud cheer by parading with a "Grant Out" placard held aloft.

Mr Grant arrived at the Civic Centre during the confrontation, to cheers from those on the steps. He said, referring to their counter-demonstration:

"This is a magnificent demonstration by the people who support democracy. I hope the Prime Minister is going to condemn these strikers for going on strike without a secret ballot". He refused to answer questions, or to meet the marchers' representatives.

The deputy leader of the council, Mr Steve King, read a statement on behalf of the Labour group above the din. He said: "The Labour group has always tried to work closely with trade unions in Haringey."

"The representations made to us today both from the meeting at Park View Depot and from other trade unions who were present at Civic Centre will be treated with the same seriousness and discussed fully and properly when the Labour group meets on Sunday."

"The group, including its leader, Councillor Bernie Grant, firmly believes that violence is not the solution to the problem of the Broadwater Farm Estate or other inner city areas, but that political initiatives are."

● In an interview published in The Times today Sir Kenneth Newman, speaking in the wake of the Tottenham riot, said that one result will be that more London officers will be trained in the use of CS gas and plastic bullets. Up to now the equipment has been used by only about 30 members of the special police firearms team D.11 but Sir Kenneth said other officers would probably have to be trained as well.

Newman interview, page 8 Letters, page 9

Poly student suspended 'for his own safety'

A student accused of racism has been suspended for a month because his safety could not be guaranteed the acting director of the Polytechnic of North London. Dr John Beishon, said yesterday.

Representatives of the Students' Union complained to Dr Beishon about alleged racist activities by the student, Mr Phil Smart, who is believed to be a member of the British National Party, after racist leaflets and stickers appeared on notice boards at the polytechnic this week.

"Feelings are running very high among the students and I was also very concerned I could not guarantee his safety," Dr Beishon said, although Mr Smart, a first-year history student, had not been threatened or attacked. However, "in the light of recent events in North London, and pending disciplinary proceedings into the allegations, I have suspended him for a month."

Students say that Mr Smart, a mature student, wore a British National Party badge on his coat and the leaflets pinned to the noticeboards are from the British National Party.

After interviewing Mr Smart, Dr Beishon said that in view of the evidence and the provisions of the disciplinary code he would interview the student again during the next 10 days.

Mr Smart is believed to have returned to his home in the north of England. He has the right to appeal to the Student Disciplinary Committee.

The disciplinary code was drawn up as a result of a year of disruption by students protesting against the presence of Mr Patrick Harrington, a student who was a member of the National Front. He left the polytechnic this year with a philosophy degree.

School governors have voted for the second time to dismiss the headmistress of Katesgrove Primary School in Reading, Berkshire. A disciplinary hearing has recommended the dismissal of Miss Margaret Channon, aged 47, who was suspended on full pay a month ago after 12 years at the school.

JPs want tough drug sentences

Magistrates called yesterday for tougher sentencing of drug traffickers, demanding that leniency should be shown "only in the most exceptional circumstances".

The Magistrates' Association, at its annual meeting at Guildhall, London, welcomed government plans announced this week to confiscate the assets of convicted drug peddlers.

Mr Michael Warren, an East Sussex JP, moving a motion urging courts to reflect the seriousness of the drug offences in sentencing decisions, said confiscation had "considerable teeth" and might even have a greater deterrent effect than imprisonment.

He condemned drug-trafficking as "destructive of civilized society" and a "major assault" on urban and rural life.

The association also backed a motion expressing concern at the policy of closing institutions for the care of mentally disturbed offenders and urging the Government to defer further closures until adequate alternative arrangements can be made.

Clubs keen to reopen TV talks on football

Football clubs faced with falling gates and threats of bankruptcy are enthusiastic about moves to reopen negotiations to televise the game.

The Football League said yesterday it hoped to renew talks with television companies "in the very near future" after the companies' announcement earlier this week that they were ready to discuss the league's proposals.

"While discussions continue, there is still hope we will see the game back on television before the end of the season," Mr Lee Walker, executive of the league's television negotiating committee, said.

The committee had been mandated by league clubs not to concede to live coverage of more than 10 matches and two Milk Cup semi-finals a season and to insist on a guaranteed amount of recorded coverage.

It is this split between live matches and recorded highlights, rather than money, that has been the stumbling block to the negotiations.

The 92 league clubs argue that last season's live coverage had reached "saturation point" and was deterring supporters from attending matches.

But as the clubs total up attendance figures for the first eight weeks of this season, they are beginning to count the cost of the lack of television.

According to the league's figures, average attendance is down in every division but the fourth.

Gates to the end of last month were down by an average of 10.5 per cent in the first division, 8.7 per cent in the second division, 7.5 per cent in the third division, but up 6.8 per cent in the fourth division.

"The biggest cause for falling attendances has been the shame and tragedy that the Brussels and Bradford disasters have brought to the game," the league's assistant secretary, Mr Norman Thomas said. But Mr Walker admitted that the controversy about television coverage was taking its toll on the game.

Soccer, page 26

Firm line on Elgin marbles

By David Hewson Arts Correspondent

The Government is to reject any attempt to return the Elgin marbles in its evidence to a UNESCO inquiry into the Greek claim to the treasures.

It will reaffirm previous British statements on the marbles, which were taken from the Parthenon at the beginning of the last century.

The Government's position is certain to infuriate Greece, where the Minister for Culture, Miss Melina Mercouri, has made the return of the sculptures a matter of national interest.

The Foreign Office has prepared an official answer to UNESCO in reply.

The case is seen within UNESCO as an important example of a claim for the return of cultural relics taken from the treasures of origin.

The British argue that Lord Elgin removed the marbles with the permission of the regime which then owned them, the Ottoman empire. The effects were bought from Lord Elgin by the State and then given to the British Museum trustees "in perpetuity".

Four for trial on fire charges

Three Iraqis and a Buckinghamshire businessman were remanded in custody yesterday by Eastleigh magistrates in Hampshire, charged in connection with a fire at Southampton airport, causing damage estimated at £488,700.

Desmond Hay, aged 40, of Church Lane, Westham, near Slough, is also charged with attempting to prevent the course of justice. The Iraqis are Nazir Altai, aged 38, of Minister Court, London; WS Walid Ahmed, aged 45, and Saad Muhammad, aged 37, who had no British address.

Surgery offer to Portuguese baby

A Portuguese baby, Catarina Gonçalves, aged 17 months, who suffers from a hole in the heart, has been flown to Britain after Mr Magdi Yacoub, the heart surgeon, and doctors at the National Heart Hospital in London offered treatment without charge.

The condition has caused slow growth and difficulty in eating.

Vauxhall return

Production resumed at Vauxhall Motors in Luton yesterday after a two-day strike by the Transport and General Workers' Union because a member had been disciplined.

Corrections

Mr Gerald Kaufman's name was omitted from the centre-right Solidarity group slate of candidates for the Shadow Cabinet election published yesterday. One family in 10 of those now homeless was made to by mortgage default, not one in 10 of all families in Britain as implied in a report yesterday.

Decorative porcelain is popular

By Geraldine Norman Sale Room Correspondent

Porcelain from the collection of Anita O'Keefe Young sold well in New York on Thursday as collectors, decorators and dealers decided that they loved her taste.

Winifred Williams, the London dealer, paid $96,250 (estimate $30,000-$50,000) or £66,379 for a pair of Meissen pot-pourri vases encrusted with flowers and supported by guinea-fowl. They are mounted in Louis XV ormolu and à la polie.

Mrs Young's taste was decorative; her porcelains were not rare collectors' items but pretty things, mostly decorated with flowers and birds.

Bidders liked her Chelsea botanical plates. The first of a group of six Hans Sloane plates of about 1758 made $11,000 (estimate $2,500-$3,500) or £7,586. The spray of puce and yellow flowers was slightly scratched but embellished by a ladybird and a brown beetle.

The prices went down after that but the cheapest was $4,950 (estimate $1,500-$2,500) or £3,413 for a red dahlia attacked by a red caterpillar.

The rarest of the Hans Sloane pieces was an oblong dish of about 1755 painted with a large leaf, butterflies and insects which made only $2,200 (estimate $1,000-$1,500) or £1,517.

Christie's had a more difficult time on Wednesday and Thursday with European ceramics and Chinese porcelain from the Devine collection. They fetched £225,189, with 16 per cent unsold. The top price was an unexpected $17,600 (estimate $1,600-$2,000) or £12,138 for a German faience potich decorated with flowers.

In London a sale of continental pictures at Christie's made £416,610, with 21 per cent unsold.

Dominic McGlinchey (left) being led across the border by a member of the Royal Ulster Constabulary.

McGlinchey returned to republic to face charges

Dominic McGlinchey, aged 32, the reputed Irish National Liberation Army leader, was back in the Irish Republic last night for trial firearms charges.

His extradition for the second time followed the quashing of his conviction and life sentence for the murder of an elderly postmistress by the Northern Ireland Court of Appeal on Wednesday, and the withdrawal yesterday of an application by the Crown for leave to appeal to the House of Lords against the Court of Appeal decision.

Mr Ronald Appleton, QC, for the Crown, said that it was decided the court of appeal decision did not raise any point of law of public importance.

McGlinchey had been held as a remand prisoner at the Crumlin Road jail, in Belfast, on Thursday and had taken only two steps to freedom, clutching his belongings in two brown paper sacks, when he was rearrested on an extradition warrant issued in the republic on May 18 last year.

He was ushered into an RUC Land-Rover, and driven 20

Graffiti dispute threatens 250 schools

From Peter Davenport Manchester

A message on a blackboard in the entrance hall of Poundwick High School yesterday summed up the confusion and disruption of the so-called graffiti dispute. It said: "We will let you know when things are normal and hope it will be as soon as possible."

But, after the failure of the latest attempt to find a solution no one yesterday, teachers, unions or council officials, could say when that will be. And the dispute that is keeping almost 1,000 pupils away from their desks at the Wythenshawe school now threatens to engulf 66,000 other children at the 250 schools in Manchester.

The issue that began as a local affair now has national prominence with the question of who controls authority and discipline within a school, the headmaster and his governors or local councillors.

The dispute began in June with the suspension of five boys after obscene slogans were found daubed, in letters one foot high, across 44 panels and 21 windows at the lower school.

The school decided to expel the boys, but Labour councillors say the boys must be taken back by the school.

Both sides remain entrenched. The teachers, backed by their unions, refuse to have the boys back and the council says they must return.

Mr Keith Halstead, the headmaster, and his governors remain convinced of the boys' involvement and stand by the decision to expel them. Labour councillors say that although at least four of the boys admitted writing some of the less offensive slogans there is no proof that they did anything more serious.

A subcommittee of the education committee overturned the expulsion order saying it was too severe. Since then, almost 50 of Poundwick's teachers have been sent home in breach of contract or have gone on strike in support of colleagues. Head

Councillor Nick Harris, chairman of the education policy sub-committee who has been called in to negotiate a solution after talks between union leaders, education chiefs and councillors failed. The meeting was adjourned until next Wednesday.

The 2,700 members of the National Union of Teachers will now be balloted and urged by their leaders to stage a number of half-day strikes in support of suspended colleagues at the school.

The Secondary Heads Association has staged walkouts.

teachers in the city have threatened strikes and stoppages and 2,700 members of the National Union of Teachers are set to take similar action.

The affair has generated such emotion that the police have been called to investigate a stream of abusive mail and telephone calls to the four Labour councillors on the South

Councillor Nick Harris, chairman of the council's education policy sub-committee, has been called in to try to negotiate a solution, but he admits: "It could be a long haul. The teachers are all being paid by their unions and I hear talk of it lasting a month or more. It is a disaster, especially for the children preparing for examinations."

He made it clear that the council will accept nothing less than the five boys being admitted back into the school. Their parents have threatened the council with legal action if the decision to do so is reversed.

The teachers at Poundwick meet each day in a church hall to plan their SOS - Save Our School - campaign.

A deputy headmaster, Mr John Hart, said: "We have had tremendous backing for parents and from teachers around the country. The issue has gone beyond the graffiti and the implications are quite profound for schools."

"If these boys are forced back into the school it is our professional belief that pupils will take it as an open invitation to behave as they like. We will have no ultimate deterrent."

September 25: Three teachers sent home without pay.

September 26: Six more sent home, 19 colleagues walk out in sympathy. Governors meet to express support for head and staff.

September 27: Nine more teachers sent home.

October 2: Forty-nine teachers have been sent home or are on strike.

UNRESERVED LIQUIDATION AUCTION PERSIAN CARPETS, RUGS & RUNNERS

AND OTHER HANDMADE ORIENTAL RUGS. BEING PLEDGED NOW FORFEITED, AND ORDERED FOR IMMEDIATE AUCTION BY MERCHANT BANK HAMILTON SOMERSET (LONDON) LTD.

All bales will be removed from ACE SHIPPING LTD and other points at H.M. Customs Bonded Warehouses for convenience of sale, and will be sold piece by piece at:

HILTON INTERNATIONAL HOTEL, KENSINGTON HOLLAND PARK AVENUE, LONDON W11 on SUNDAY 13th OCTOBER at 3PM

Viewing from 1pm. Large portions of the collection are of extremely high quality - seldom seen on the market today.

Payment: cash, cheque or all major credit cards.

Auctioneers: A Wellesley Bros & Partners Ltd 141/146 New Bond Street London W1 Tel 493 4570

مكتبة الأصيل

Scientists near to finding origin of cystic fibrosis after gene is identified

By Pearce Wright, Science Editor

The first big advance in understanding the cause of cystic fibrosis is claimed by an international group of scientists. It is the most common inherited disorder among children in Britain, occurring in about one in 2,000 births.

The defect causes congestion of the lungs in a condition which shortens life to the late twenties. But the cause of the fault in the tissue of the lung has baffled doctors.

Scientists have been conducting collaborative research in London, Copenhagen, San Francisco, Boston and Toronto. Professor Bob Williamson, leading genetic research groups, at St Mary's Hospital, London, said yesterday that the optimism was because of a breakthrough by Dr Hans Eiderberg's team in Copenhagen, announced in Helsinki six weeks ago.

"Our ignorance about the cystic fibrosis gene and the faulty biochemistry had been virtually total. We did not even know which chromosome carried the defective gene," Professor Williamson said.

"With the gene probes and markers, we should know within a matter of weeks we should have mapped its whereabouts on the chromosome."

That would open the way for perfecting methods for diagnosis, as early as the tenth week of pregnancy, and for testing brothers and sisters who could be at risk as carriers.

Professor Williamson believed that, given the funds, the screening system could be developed in between two and three years. He was more cautious about the prospects of improving treatment to extend the life of patients. But he said that if the improvements in managing other genetic conditions, such as sickle cell anaemia, phenylketonuria and haemophilia, after their cause was understood, were examples, then progress in treatment should be possible in the long term.

Preliminary details of the discovery are reported in the latest issue of Nature.

They describe the identification of a gene responsible for the production by the body of a substance in the blood of cystic fibrosis sufferers, known as the enzyme paroxonase.

The isolation of the gene in Copenhagen was done with special material prepared by the St Mary's Hospital team. After Dr Eiderberg's finding, the group in Toronto identified another gene unique to the cells of tissue from cystic fibrosis patients.

The discovery of these two "markers" should enable a diagnostic test to be perfected. They also provide the biochemical beacons that the scientists believe will allow them to isolate the defective gene responsible for cystic fibrosis.

When that is analysed and, hence, the reason understood for its instructions for harmful substances to be produced, corrective action to counteract the harmful effects might be possible.

Speaking for the Cystic Fibrosis Research Trust, financing Professor Williamson's work, Mrs Barbara Bentley, deputy director, said: "This is tremendous news for all our parents and supporters."

"There is a long way to go and there are still hurdles to overcome. But it is at last possible to look forward to the eventual conquering of this disease."

The advance in the genetics of cystic fibrosis is a reflection of immense progress now emerging with the development of gene probes, for mapping the 40,000-50,000 genes in the chromosomes of every body cell.

Payroll murderer loses appeal

A corporal who was sentenced to life imprisonment for the murder and robbery of an Army payroll clerk, had his appeal against conviction dismissed yesterday.

The Court of Criminal Appeal in Edinburgh rejected claims that there had been a miscarriage of justice. Lord Grieve, which had led to a possible miscarriage of justice.

Corporal Andrew Walker, aged 31, of The Royal Scots, was convicted unanimously in the High Court in May of murdering Staff Sergeant Terence Hosker, aged 39, retired major, Mr David Cunningham, aged 56, and Private John Thomson, aged 25, with a sub-machine-gun, and stealing £19,000 from the payroll at Pennycook, Midlothian, on January 17.

The judge recommended he should serve a minimum of 30 years.

Mr Donald Macquay, QC, for Walker, claimed the trial judge had indicated his own views that defence criticism of ballistic evidence concerning the murder weapon was "unconvincing".

Rejecting the appeal on both grounds, the court said there was no suggestion that the evidence was insufficient.

Oxford sets up Islamic study centre

From Our Correspondent Oxford

Oxford is to have the first centre for Islamic studies to be established at a key Western university. Leading Muslim academic and political figures are in Oxford this weekend to approve the final arrangements.

The centre is being heralded as a potentially vital link with Islamic countries which could advance diplomatic relations with the West and lead to closer economic and cultural ties.

Dr David Browning, fellow of St Cross College, has travelled thousands of miles during the past three years to help set up the centre. Among those who have agreed to be trustees are the former Prime Minister of Indonesia, Mr Muhammad Nasir, the ruler of Sharjah in the United Arab Emirates, Sheikh Sultan Muhammad al-Qassimi, and the secretary-general of the World Muslim League, Dr Abdullah Omer Nasel.

The centre, which will be run as a self-financing autonomous body, will keep close links with Oxford University. It will be based initially at St Cross College, and the president of Magdalen College, Dr K. H. Griffiths, will be on the board of trustees.

Probation for mother who tried to kill sons

A mother with suicidal tendencies who tried to kill her two children by drugging their Westland was yesterday put on probation for two years.

Sharon Foster, aged 20, of Charlwood Street, Plumpton, south London, put six Anadin tablets in each of her son's bowls of cereal.

She later told the police she was pregnant and could not cope with a third child. She said "I intended to kill myself and I couldn't leave them. There would be no one to look after them." Southwark Crown Court was told.

London, aged three, and Delanie, 18 months, were taken to Westminster Children's Hospital after the woman's boy friend called the police.

The court was told she had an abortion soon after her arrest and now has the custody of the two boys.

Bats leave the belfry for a quiet life

By Hugh Clayton, Environment Correspondent

A survey of churchyards by Women's Institute members has shown that bats do not live in belfries. They prefer church porches, which are further from the noise of the bells and harbour fewer cobwebs than belfries.

The survey of hundreds of the 20,000 British churchyards shows that bats are among the dwindling wild species that have made churchyards important wildlife refuges.

Miss Francesca Greenoak, whose book based on the survey results was published yesterday, writes that "in some counties changes in land use have turned churchyards into a last refuge for certain species, such as the Man Orchid in Suffolk, where it is now very rare."

The Green-Winged Orchid, which used to grow in many meadows, is now increasingly confined to nature reserves and undisturbed spots such as churchyards. The importance of such places to the survival of wildlife will grow as more land is lost to suburban and industrial sprawl and to industrial farmland.

Bicycle and a painting for Benn

By Rupert Morris

Mr Tony Benn, Labour MP for Chesterfield, acquired a bicycle and a painting yesterday.

The bicycle was a revolutionary electric model, which he bought for £450 from the inventor, Mr David Stone, of Glemsford, Suffolk.

Mr Benn, who was Minister of Technology from 1966 to 1970, said he would use it to make calls in his Derbyshire constituency. The battery-powered machine is capable of 15mph and has been selected for the British stand at Expo '86 in Toronto.

The painting, an oil believed to be entitled "Moses", was left to him by his former nanny, Mrs Aenna Oestreich, of west London, who died in March when he was 90.

Mr Benn, who was Minister of Technology from 1966 to 1970, said he would use it to make calls in his Derbyshire constituency. The battery-powered machine is capable of 15mph and has been selected for the British stand at Expo '86 in Toronto.

The painting, an oil believed to be entitled "Moses", was left to him by his former nanny, Mrs Aenna Oestreich, of west London, who died in March when he was 90.

The tipster Princess

Mr George Stephens, a patient at St Joseph's Hospice in Hackney, east London, put £1 to win on a horse in the 3.15 at Hexham yesterday picked for him by the Princess of Wales.

The Princess, arrived at the hospice, met Mr Stephens, aged 56, from Barnet, north London, during her tour. He was deciding his bet.

"I'll make it out for you", she said, ringing a horse named Charles Duke.

The Princess, however, is not a reliable tipster. Charles Duke was misplaced.

Later in her tour she was presented with a book of poems written by a patient, Mrs Lydia Parsons, aged 78, from Hoddeston, Hertfordshire.

Several patients were told by the Princess how impressed she was with the hospice.

Jewellery trade improves

By Derek Harris, Industrial Editor

The volume of jewellery sent to assay offices for hallmarking increased nearly 25 per cent in the third quarter, compared with the same period last year.

The assay offices, in London, Edinburgh, Birmingham and Sheffield, described the rise as "very encouraging", and there are indications that the trend will continue.

The number of jewellery pieces submitted for assay was 5.76 million. Gold jewellery was by far the most popular, with just over 4.86 million pieces sent, compared with 893,779 for silver and 2,348 in platinum.

Since 1980, jewellers have seen turnover increase at almost three times the rate of all other retailers, and more than twice that of non-food sectors. According to Mintel, the retail consultants, turnover rose by 34 per cent.

Nancy Pliener, who specializes in sculpting ceramic surrounds for clocks using mythological beasts and plants, with an example of her work. She is exhibiting at Studio Ten and a Half in Hull from today. Mrs Pliener, aged 29, was a teacher before becoming a full-time sculptress two years ago (Photograph: Andrew Varley).

Non-smoker offers to pay cabby's fine

A London restaurateur who forbids smoking in his restaurants yesterday offered to pay a fine imposed on Mr Richard Carless, a taxi driver, for refusing to carry a pipe-smoking would-be passenger.

Mr Carless, of Curly Tye, Basildon, Essex, had been fined £20 by Uxbridge magistrates for breaking a Heathrow by-law; he appealed against conviction and sentence on Thursday Southwark Crown Court increased his fine to £50.

The restaurateur, Mr Bob Peyton, who has restaurant interests in Barcelona and Paris as well as in the West End, said: "We anti-smokers have to stick together."

"I agree with Mr Carless and I would like to pay his fine for him. Our policy forbids pipe or cigar smoking in any of our restaurants."

"Because it is impossible to prevent cigarette smokers coming to the restaurants we have special sections. When customers arrive they are always asked if they want to smoke, but pipe smoking is completely out."

Farm inquest goes on after trial

An inquest on Mrs Sheila Caffell, her twin sons and adoptive parents was adjourned at Witham, Essex, yesterday until after the trial of the man accused of causing their deaths.

Dr Charles Clark, the Essex coroner, was told by Police Constable Norman Wright that an inquest had been opened and adjourned for two months at Braintree on August 14.

Jeremy Bamber, aged 24, Mrs Caffell's adoptive brother, was arrested on September 29 and charged with the killings at White House Farm, Tolleshunt D'Arcy, on August 6. Mr and Mrs Nevill Bamber, aged 62, and their grandsons, Nicholas and Daniel, aged six, were found with multiple gunshot wounds. Mrs Caffell, aged 27, had been shot twice through the head.

At the earlier inquest, Det Insp Robert Miller told the coroner that the deaths had been instantaneous, particularly of the boys, who had been killed while asleep.

Mr and Mrs Bamber had been shot by another person but in the case of Mrs Caffell it appears the wound had been inflicted by her own hands.

Rescue fund for Bernini sculpture is given £¼ m

By David Hewson Arts Correspondent

A gift of £250,000 has been made to the rescue fund set up to keep in Britain the Bernini bust of dal Pozzo, the seventeenth-century Arch Bishop of Pisa.

The work is priced at £3million, making it the world's most expensive sculpture, and is being sold by the Castle Howard estate, which hopes to keep the rest of its collection together through the sale to pay estate duties.

It is in the highest class of sculpture and the £3million being asked of the Victoria & Albert Museum, which wishes to buy it, is far less than could be achieved on the open market.

The National Art-Collections Fund, which is the chief private charity for assisting national art purchases, announced yesterday its £250,000 gift towards the museum's purchase fund.

The art-collections fund and its gift makes it more likely that the bust will stay in Britain. The NACF will also give £250,000 towards the attempt to raise £765,000 to buy a Tintoretto painting "Christ Washing the Disciples' Feet", on sale from St Nicholas Cathedral, Newcastle upon Tyne, for the Tyne and Wear County Museums.

The local authority has already offered £100,000 of the cost of the purchase which, again, is thought to be well below market prices.

It is hoped by the family of the late Lord Howard of Henderskelfe, the former chairman of the BBC who owned Castle Howard, that the sale of the Bernini will solve the financial problems of the estate. It would also enhance the Victoria & Albert's collection of Italian sculpture which rivals any in Italy.

The Tintoretto was given to the cathedral in 1818 and measures more than five metres wide.

ELDERS IXL GROUP TURNOVER 1981-1985 AUSTRALIAN $ (MILLION)

For years we've been known for our lager. This year we're known for being larger.

As you can see from our turnover graph Elders IXL grew larger than ever in 1985. But our turnover isn't the only thing that's grown. Net profit after tax is up by 50%. Dividends are up by 41%. Earnings per share are up by 40%. As you'd expect Australia's most famous export, the amber nectar, produced its fair share of those profits.

But so did all our other activities - all with increased profits. Like the wool broking, livestock sales, rural financing and other activities of Elders Pastoral Group. Like Elders Finance Group with its comprehensive range of banking services. Like Elders International, our worldwide trading operation.

Our success across such a wide sphere of operations is proof of the experience, expertise and depth of our management team. It all adds up to a company with a commitment to growth through development, expansions and acquisitions. No small beer.

Elders IXL

THE AUSTRALIAN FOR LARGER

CONSERVATIVE CONFERENCE/BLACKPOOL

Trade union democracy • Inner cities • The next decade

PRIME MINISTER'S ADDRESS

Delegates cheer Thatcher's vision for Britain

'Let us set our sights on a resurgence of enterprise'

'Come with us then towards the next decade. Let us together set our sights on a Britain where three out of four families own their home, where owning shares is as common as having a car, and where families have a degree of independence their forefathers could only dream about.'

A Britain where there is a resurgence of enterprise, with more people self-employed, more businesses and more jobs.

A Britain where there is a standard of health care far better than anything we have ever known.

A Britain where savings keep their value and where people can look forward to retirement, certain of their pension, confident of their buying power.

A Britain where standards in our schools are a source of pride, and where law-abiding men and women go their way in tranquillity with their children, knowing that their neighbourhood is safe, and their country secure.

Reports by Alan Wood, Robert Morgan, Derek Barnett, Anthony Hodges, Sheila Beardsall

Labour Party, she said the last week the Labour leader gave what they were told was a clarion call to moderation. It was said to be a turning point. "But by their fruits ye shall know them."

Last week at Bournemouth the Labour Party voted to scrap the laws giving union members a secret ballot and hand back to the leaders, those barons of the block vote, their former feudal powers.

It voted to give up the British independent nuclear deterrent for nothing in return, to take political control over the operations of the police, and to indemnify councils and trade unions who broke the law for political ends.

"Anything else?" she commented. "I have hardly started."

Here are some Labour policies for the general election in two to three years' time. They would nationalize and renationalize our industry with scant regard for the newly acquired shares of employees: there would be no automatic right to buy your own council house.

"Decisions would be left to Labour councils like Sheffield, Hackney and Camden; they would hijack and direct the pension and insurance fund money of some 12 million people; independent schools would go, and go quickly; there would be the usual mishmash of higher taxes and, I need hardly say, higher borrowing."

The Labour Party was two different factions in a state of civil war with the Left steadily gaining ground. As the old stagers retired or were forced out they were replaced by the new militant left.

She continued: "You can see socialism in action today in the council chambers of local government in Liverpool, Lambeth, Haringey and many others. That's what it would be like if Labour ever got power at Westminster."

Turning to the Liberals and Social Democrats, the Prime Minister asked: "and where do the so-called Alliance stand? Take defence. Did we see them reaffirm one-sided disarmament or did they decide this year to keep a few missiles? Or is it a case of defending all of the people some of the time or some of the people all of the time?"

Those who wanted the country to have a strong and sure defence could not rely on the Labour Party or the Alliance. They could rely on the Conservative Party.

"Does any who has witnessed Mr Gorbachov's performance think that he respects weakness?" Mrs Thatcher asked. "No, she said, it was recognition of the West's strength and cohesion that had brought the Soviet Union back to the negotiating table."

She continued: "Our wish is to see substantial reductions in nuclear weapons provided they are balanced and verifiable. I know that will be President Reagan's objective at his meeting with Mr Gorbachov and he has our full support and good wishes as he goes to Geneva. The West could not have a better or a braver champion."

On law and order, Mrs Thatcher said the whole country was rightly concerned about security at home and violence in the streets. "We utterly condemn anyone and everyone who takes part in riots in Britain. Whoever these people are who riot, burn and murder, whoever they are organized by, there is no excuse, no justification whatever, for such crime and vandalism."

"Those who take to the streets on the first available pretext, to fire, loot and plunder, will be subject to the full rigours of the criminal law."

In Tottenham and Handsworth the police had suffered a hail of bricks and petrol bombs, apparently ready to hand. Yet one of the delegates to the Labour Party conference had been loudly applauded when he called the police "the enemy".

The overwhelming majority of the British people regarded the police as friends and were deeply thankful for their courage.

"It is not the police who create threats to public order. All too often they are the victims, as we saw only too tragically at Tottenham. Nor is it social conditions that generate violence. Yes, unemployment breeds frustration, but it is an insult to the unemployed to suggest that a man who does not have a job is likely to break the law."

In a free country everyone had to choose and the overwhelming majority, black or white, in or out of work, living in the suburbs or city centres, freely made their choice. They respected the law and would have no truck with crime masquerading as social protest.

"The Government will continue steadfastly to back the police," she continued. "If they need more men, more equipment, different equipment, they shall have them. We do not economize on protecting life and property, and we shall of the West's strength and cohesion that had brought the Soviet Union back to the negotiating table."

Concern about violence went beyond the riots. A child abused within her own home could not begin to know where to look for safety, an elderly couple should not have to look about them in fear. A teenager who had slid towards drugs, might no longer be able to help himself.

Police, social workers, the voluntary organizations, all must, and did, respond but that was not enough. "We are all involved. We cannot pass by on the other side," she said.

Government apart, the strengths of a civilized nation depended on the natural authority of the family, the school, the church and the great institutions. It was when the authority weakened, and it had weakened, that nations turned to the power of the state.

When the power of the state increased, the dignity of the individual declined. "Our national character and greatness was not founded on the all-embracing power of government. It was founded on freedom, on freedom, on freedom, on freedom, on freedom, within the law. For without the law, there can be no freedom."

"In Britain, we have seen the hard Left operating within our political system, conspiring through union power or local government to break, defy and subvert the law. Because the Labour party will not expel these people, a unique responsibility is placed on today's Conservative party and Government. We have to conserve the rule of law itself, conserve it for the people of all parties and of none. That is our overriding duty. Success will require the co-operation of every law-abiding citizen. No one can opt out."

Leading article, page 9

Ms Angela Beatham, from Preston, said: "This Government has provided us with a land of hope and glory but until GCHQ workers are given back their individual rights to decide whether or not to belong to a trade union we will find it very difficult to convince the country that we really are the mother of the free."

Ms Lesley Fields, from Holborn and St Pancras, moved the motion which was carried, urging the Government to examine other areas where the unions could be made more democratic and responsive to the feelings of the membership but not to introduce legislation which would lessen individual employment protection.

Many speakers urged the Government to do more to restore democracy to the unions. Most were trade unionists and called on Conservatives to take a more active part in their unions.

"We have to stick to our task for the sake of our industry and our services, for the sake of jobs and, above all, for the benefit of individual trade unionists whose essential personal liberties we protect and intend to maintain," he said.

The country was no longer dominated by the trades union bosses but the Labour party still was, Mr Clarke said.

The monster of excessive trades union power that had nearly destroyed the economy in the late 1970s was now caged by sensible, modern, industrial relations laws. But it was not yet a domesticated beast.

"We have to stick to our task for the sake of our industry and our services, for the sake of jobs and, above all, for the benefit of individual trade unionists whose essential personal liberties we protect and intend to maintain," he said.

"If Scargill and Todd think they can hold back the tide of democracy, they are as foolish as King Canute: they cannot in our free and open society. The ballot must be here to stay in trade union affairs, we put it there and we are pledged to keep it there for the exercise of democratic rights."

"We have to stick to our task for the sake of our industry and our services, for the sake of jobs and, above all, for the benefit of individual trade unionists whose essential personal liberties we protect and intend to maintain," he said.

The country was no longer dominated by the trades union bosses but the Labour party still was, Mr Clarke said.

The monster of excessive trades union power that had nearly destroyed the economy in the late 1970s was now caged by sensible, modern, industrial relations laws. But it was not yet a domesticated beast.

"We have to stick to our task for the sake of our industry and our services, for the sake of jobs and, above all, for the benefit of individual trade unionists whose essential personal liberties we protect and intend to maintain," he said.

"If Scargill and Todd think they can hold back the tide of democracy, they are as foolish as King Canute: they cannot in our free and open society. The ballot must be here to stay in trade union affairs, we put it there and we are pledged to keep it there for the exercise of democratic rights."

"We have to stick to our task for the sake of our industry and our services, for the sake of jobs and, above all, for the benefit of individual trade unionists whose essential personal liberties we protect and intend to maintain," he said.

Those who wanted the country to have a strong and sure defence could not rely on the Labour Party or the Alliance. They could rely on the Conservative Party.

"Does any who has witnessed Mr Gorbachov's performance think that he respects weakness?" Mrs Thatcher asked. "No, she said, it was recognition of the West's strength and cohesion that had brought the Soviet Union back to the negotiating table."

She continued: "Our wish is to see substantial reductions in nuclear weapons provided they are balanced and verifiable. I know that will be President Reagan's objective at his meeting with Mr Gorbachov and he has our full support and good wishes as he goes to Geneva. The West could not have a better or a braver champion."

On law and order, Mrs Thatcher said the whole country was rightly concerned about security at home and violence in the streets. "We utterly condemn anyone and everyone who takes part in riots in Britain. Whoever these people are who riot, burn and murder, whoever they are organized by, there is no excuse, no justification whatever, for such crime and vandalism."

"Those who take to the streets on the first available pretext, to fire, loot and plunder, will be subject to the full rigours of the criminal law."

In Tottenham and Handsworth the police had suffered a hail of bricks and petrol bombs, apparently ready to hand. Yet one of the delegates to the Labour Party conference had been loudly applauded when he called the police "the enemy".

The overwhelming majority of the British people regarded the police as friends and were deeply thankful for their courage.

"It is not the police who create threats to public order. All too often they are the victims, as we saw only too tragically at Tottenham. Nor is it social conditions that generate violence. Yes, unemployment breeds frustration, but it is an insult to the unemployed to suggest that a man who does not have a job is likely to break the law."

Leading article, page 9

Ms Angela Beatham, from Preston, said: "This Government has provided us with a land of hope and glory but until GCHQ workers are given back their individual rights to decide whether or not to belong to a trade union we will find it very difficult to convince the country that we really are the mother of the free."

Ms Lesley Fields, from Holborn and St Pancras, moved the motion which was carried, urging the Government to examine other areas where the unions could be made more democratic and responsive to the feelings of the membership but not to introduce legislation which would lessen individual employment protection.

Many speakers urged the Government to do more to restore democracy to the unions. Most were trade unionists and called on Conservatives to take a more active part in their unions.

"We have to stick to our task for the sake of our industry and our services, for the sake of jobs and, above all, for the benefit of individual trade unionists whose essential personal liberties we protect and intend to maintain," he said.

The country was no longer dominated by the trades union bosses but the Labour party still was, Mr Clarke said.

The monster of excessive trades union power that had nearly destroyed the economy in the late 1970s was now caged by sensible, modern, industrial relations laws. But it was not yet a domesticated beast.

"We have to stick to our task for the sake of our industry and our services, for the sake of jobs and, above all, for the benefit of individual trade unionists whose essential personal liberties we protect and intend to maintain," he said.

"If Scargill and Todd think they can hold back the tide of democracy, they are as foolish as King Canute: they cannot in our free and open society. The ballot must be here to stay in trade union affairs, we put it there and we are pledged to keep it there for the exercise of democratic rights."

"We have to stick to our task for the sake of our industry and our services, for the sake of jobs and, above all, for the benefit of individual trade unionists whose essential personal liberties we protect and intend to maintain," he said.

The country was no longer dominated by the trades union bosses but the Labour party still was, Mr Clarke said.

The monster of excessive trades union power that had nearly destroyed the economy in the late 1970s was now caged by sensible, modern, industrial relations laws. But it was not yet a domesticated beast.

"We have to stick to our task for the sake of our industry and our services, for the sake of jobs and, above all, for the benefit of individual trade unionists whose essential personal liberties we protect and intend to maintain," he said.

"If Scargill and Todd think they can hold back the tide of democracy, they are as foolish as King Canute: they cannot in our free and open society. The ballot must be here to stay in trade union affairs, we put it there and we are pledged to keep it there for the exercise of democratic rights."

Those who wanted the country to have a strong and sure defence could not rely on the Labour Party or the Alliance. They could rely on the Conservative Party.

"Does any who has witnessed Mr Gorbachov's performance think that he respects weakness?" Mrs Thatcher asked. "No, she said, it was recognition of the West's strength and cohesion that had brought the Soviet Union back to the negotiating table."

She continued: "Our wish is to see substantial reductions in nuclear weapons provided they are balanced and verifiable. I know that will be President Reagan's objective at his meeting with Mr Gorbachov and he has our full support and good wishes as he goes to Geneva. The West could not have a better or a braver champion."

On law and order, Mrs Thatcher said the whole country was rightly concerned about security at home and violence in the streets. "We utterly condemn anyone and everyone who takes part in riots in Britain. Whoever these people are who riot, burn and murder, whoever they are organized by, there is no excuse, no justification whatever, for such crime and vandalism."

"Those who take to the streets on the first available pretext, to fire, loot and plunder, will be subject to the full rigours of the criminal law."

In Tottenham and Handsworth the police had suffered a hail of bricks and petrol bombs, apparently ready to hand. Yet one of the delegates to the Labour Party conference had been loudly applauded when he called the police "the enemy".

The overwhelming majority of the British people regarded the police as friends and were deeply thankful for their courage.

"It is not the police who create threats to public order. All too often they are the victims, as we saw only too tragically at Tottenham. Nor is it social conditions that generate violence. Yes, unemployment breeds frustration, but it is an insult to the unemployed to suggest that a man who does not have a job is likely to break the law."

Leading article, page 9

Ms Angela Beatham, from Preston, said: "This Government has provided us with a land of hope and glory but until GCHQ workers are given back their individual rights to decide whether or not to belong to a trade union we will find it very difficult to convince the country that we really are the mother of the free."

Ms Lesley Fields, from Holborn and St Pancras, moved the motion which was carried, urging the Government to examine other areas where the unions could be made more democratic and responsive to the feelings of the membership but not to introduce legislation which would lessen individual employment protection.

Many speakers urged the Government to do more to restore democracy to the unions. Most were trade unionists and called on Conservatives to take a more active part in their unions.

"We have to stick to our task for the sake of our industry and our services, for the sake of jobs and, above all, for the benefit of individual trade unionists whose essential personal liberties we protect and intend to maintain," he said.

The country was no longer dominated by the trades union bosses but the Labour party still was, Mr Clarke said.

The monster of excessive trades union power that had nearly destroyed the economy in the late 1970s was now caged by sensible, modern, industrial relations laws. But it was not yet a domesticated beast.

"We have to stick to our task for the sake of our industry and our services, for the sake of jobs and, above all, for the benefit of individual trade unionists whose essential personal liberties we protect and intend to maintain," he said.

"If Scargill and Todd think they can hold back the tide of democracy, they are as foolish as King Canute: they cannot in our free and open society. The ballot must be here to stay in trade union affairs, we put it there and we are pledged to keep it there for the exercise of democratic rights."

"We have to stick to our task for the sake of our industry and our services, for the sake of jobs and, above all, for the benefit of individual trade unionists whose essential personal liberties we protect and intend to maintain," he said.

The country was no longer dominated by the trades union bosses but the Labour party still was, Mr Clarke said.

The monster of excessive trades union power that had nearly destroyed the economy in the late 1970s was now caged by sensible, modern, industrial relations laws. But it was not yet a domesticated beast.

"We have to stick to our task for the sake of our industry and our services, for the sake of jobs and, above all, for the benefit of individual trade unionists whose essential personal liberties we protect and intend to maintain," he said.

"If Scargill and Todd think they can hold back the tide of democracy, they are as foolish as King Canute: they cannot in our free and open society. The ballot must be here to stay in trade union affairs, we put it there and we are pledged to keep it there for the exercise of democratic rights."

Walker told 'back us or go'

By Anthony Bevins Political Correspondent

Mr Nigel Lawson, Chancellor of the Exchequer, yesterday suggested that if his Cabinet colleague, Mr Peter Walker, did not go along with the Government's economic policies, he should do the honourable thing... and get out.

Mr Walker's controversial Thursday night speech on unemployment, which he told a Blackpool fringe meeting of the Tory Reform Group that the Government appeared complacent and uncaring, added a sour note to a week of sweetness and light and provoked the strongest possible backlash from senior ministers.

The Chancellor said in a breakfast time television interview: "I am not sure what Peter is getting at. I find it a little difficult to understand."

"Clearly, he must support other government economic policies, and he is a member of the Cabinet. He is a man of honour. If he disagreed with the policy I am sure he wouldn't wish to remain a member of the Cabinet. Asked whether the Government was complacent and uncaring, Mr Lawson said: "That is wholly wrong."

Mr Norman Tebbit, the party chairman, agreed with Mr Walker's view that the Government must not appear complacent. But he then added: "Certainly I don't think David Young, the Secretary of State, looked complacent about it yesterday when he was replying to the debate."

Lord Young's cabinet colleague at the Department of Employment, Mr Kenneth Clarke, told The Times: "I am sure Peter is not suggesting I am uncaring about unemployment or complacent about it. I'd be very annoyed if he was; if he did say that."

Mr Clarke also replied to Mr Walker's statement that it would be "political suicide" for the Government to say, as the Prime Minister herself did in Newcastle last month, that people should be more positive about unemployment and proclaim the numbers of people who were in work.

He accused Mr Walker of "polarizing" the situation, and added: "It's quite important that the number of people employed is increasing. I don't go round saying that is an answer to unemployment, but it is important that people appreciate that the number of people in jobs is going up."

"That doesn't mean I am remotely complacent about the fact that there are three million out of work."

The week's conference also ended on a confused note for Mr Jeffrey Archer, the party's new deputy chairman, who said in an interview with a Young Conservative newspaper that presentation of government policies have been pathetic.

"It's been non-existent," he said. "You wouldn't buy a used car off this Government, would you?"

Mr Archer also said: "I am the senior volunteer in the party, so I can say what I like, and if I am sacked then I would go back to a million pound a year job as a writer."

But Mr Archer, who was in trouble with the party hierarchy earlier in the week for comments on the unemployed and their willingness to work, said yesterday afternoon that he had been incorrectly reported. "Now the conference is over," he said, "I believe we have got a Rolls-Royce well worth selling."

1986 conference

Next year's Conservative Party conference will be in Bournemouth from October 7 to October 10.

GLC loses appeal on rebuilding

The Court of Appeal gave permission yesterday for the London Borough of Hammersmith and Fulham to approve plans for the £13 million redevelopment of Hammer-smith Broadway.

The judges refused to overturn the decision of a High Court judge in January not to grant the Greater London Council a declaration that the application for planning approval by the Bredero Company was invalid and an order preventing the council from considering it.

The GLC claimed that by omitting a bus garage and a public library included in the original plans, for which outline permission was granted in November 1980, the scheme was "significantly different".

But the judges said the original permission did not specifically require there to be a bus garage or a library and it could not be invalidated merely by an omission of a use which was permitted.

Tougher action promised on council waste land

The Government intends to get tougher in compelling councils and other public authorities to site derelict and waste land in cities which they own, Mr William Waldegrave, Minister for Environment, Countryside and Local Government, told the conference when it carried a motion calling on the Government actively to improve the quality of life in cities, towns and the countryside.

He said that it was wrong for public authorities to sit on such land. The department had details of 120,000 acres, larger than the Isle of Wight and mostly in towns. Some 60 per cent of it belonged to local councils. So far the Government had got them to sell 20,000 acres and put 6,000 acres back into use. But that was not enough. They would start using the law to make them sell. "We are going to get that land back into use," he said.

He described as the greatest community destruction scheme in Britain's history the post-war activities of the super-planners, saying they had nearly destroyed the cities. The houses that went had lasted a century whereas in less than 20 years some of the new homes had had to go because people had refused to live in them any more. Out of the rubble of failed urban planning came the Hattons, Livingstones and Bernie Grants.

Environmental concern was not an optional extra; it had to be part of the basic philosophy of a party. It had to be part of creating jobs, and of their farming, energy and industry policies.

No government calling itself conservative would dream of betraying the ideal of the Green Belt. Modern farmers had the technology to cultivate downlands, moorlands and water meadows but surely it was crazy to encourage them if the country did not need the produce? They were having to change the balance by getting European policy changed and by developing themselves new ideas.

During the debate Mrs Margaret Fry, Torridge and West Devon, expressed anger at the hypocrisy shown by so-called preservationists and conservationists over the Okehampton by-pass. They proclaimed that the proposed southern route, which would pass through the edge of Dartmoor, would desecrate Bluebell Wood and the deer park. Those people were driven only by emotion and pressure groups. The wood had only recently been given that name and had been covered in quarry dust. There had not been a deer in the park for more than 100 years.

Mr Waldegrave told her that the Government was clear that the southern route must go through.

Turning her attention to the Labour Party, she said the last week the Labour leader gave what they were told was a clarion call to moderation. It was said to be a turning point. "But by their fruits ye shall know them."

Last week at Bournemouth the Labour Party voted to scrap the laws giving union members a secret ballot and hand back to the leaders, those barons of the block vote, their former feudal powers.

It voted to give up the British independent nuclear deterrent for nothing in return, to take political control over the operations of the police, and to indemnify councils and trade unions who broke the law for political ends.

"Anything else?" she commented. "I have hardly started."

Clarke gives warning to Left over workers' rights

If the left appeared to be getting the upper hand once more, the Government would not hesitate to introduce further legislation to protect and maintain the rights of individual trades unionists within the trade union movement, Mr Kenneth Clarke, chief economic spokesman on employment, said during a debate on the trade union movement.

The Conservative Party was the true defender of civil liberties in Britain today, he said, and he gave a warning to those who might think of reversing legislation already passed.

"We are observing closely the present appalling warfare within the trades union movement between militant and moderate," he said. "If the left appear to be getting the upper hand again, if the ordinary member still cannot enjoy the right to go to work despite a strike call, if the closed shop, where it survives, continues to be abused, if unions cannot ensure proper management of funds they raise from members, if the halloping provisions are flouted or undermined - then gently, gently, softly, step by step, we will mobilise public opinion again."

"We will call upon trades union opinion, we will have green papers, we will consult, we will have white papers and we will not shrink from introducing further legislation to protect and maintain the rights of individual trades unionists within their trade union movement," he said to loud applause.

"If Scargill and Todd think they can hold back the tide of democracy, they are as foolish as King Canute: they cannot in our free and open society. The ballot must be here to stay in trade union affairs, we put it there and we are pledged to keep it there for the exercise of democratic rights."

"We have to stick to our task for the sake of our industry and our services, for the sake of jobs and, above all, for the benefit of individual trade unionists whose essential personal liberties we protect and intend to maintain," he said.

The country was no longer dominated by the trades union bosses but the Labour party still was, Mr Clarke said.

The monster of excessive trades union power that had nearly destroyed the economy in the late 1970s was now caged by sensible, modern, industrial relations laws. But it was not yet a domesticated beast.

"We have to stick to our task for the sake of our industry and our services, for the sake of jobs and, above all, for the benefit of individual trade unionists whose essential personal liberties we protect and intend to maintain," he said.

"If Scargill and Todd think they can hold back the tide of democracy, they are as foolish as King Canute: they cannot in our free and open society. The ballot must be here to stay in trade union affairs, we put it there and we are pledged to keep it there for the exercise of democratic rights."

"We have to stick to our task for the sake of our industry and our services, for the sake of jobs and, above all, for the benefit of individual trade unionists whose essential personal liberties we protect and intend to maintain," he said.

The country was no longer dominated by the trades union bosses but the Labour party still was, Mr Clarke said.

to protect and maintain the rights of individual trades unionists within their trade union movement," he said to loud applause.

"If Scargill and Todd think they can hold back the tide of democracy, they are as foolish as King Canute: they cannot in our free and open society. The ballot must be here to stay in trade union affairs, we put it there and we are pledged to keep it there for the exercise of democratic rights."

"We have to stick to our task for the sake of our industry and our services, for the sake of jobs and, above all, for the benefit of individual trade unionists whose essential personal liberties we protect and intend to maintain," he said.

The country was no longer dominated by the trades union bosses but the Labour party still was, Mr Clarke said.

The monster of excessive trades union power that had nearly destroyed the economy in the late 1970s was now caged by sensible, modern, industrial relations laws. But it was not yet a domesticated beast.

"We have to stick to our task for the sake of our industry and our services, for the sake of jobs and, above all, for the benefit of individual trade unionists whose essential personal liberties we protect and intend to maintain," he said.

"If Scargill and Todd think they can hold back the tide of democracy, they are as foolish as King Canute: they cannot in our free and open society. The ballot must be here to stay in trade union affairs, we put it there and we are pledged to keep it there for the exercise of democratic rights."

"We have to stick to our task for the sake of our industry and our services, for the sake of jobs and, above all, for the benefit of individual trade unionists whose essential personal liberties we protect and intend to maintain," he said.

The country was no longer dominated by the trades union bosses but the Labour party still was, Mr Clarke said.

The monster of excessive trades union power that had nearly destroyed the economy in the late 1970s was now caged by sensible, modern, industrial relations laws. But it was not yet a domesticated beast.

"We have to stick to our task for the sake of our industry and our services, for the sake of jobs and, above all, for the benefit of individual trade unionists whose essential personal liberties we protect and intend to maintain," he said.

"If Scargill and Todd think they can hold back the tide of democracy, they are as foolish as King Canute: they cannot in our free and open society. The ballot must be here to stay in trade union affairs, we put it there and we are pledged to keep it there for the exercise of democratic rights."

TRADE UNIONS

to protect and maintain the rights of individual trades unionists within their trade union movement," he said to loud applause.

"If Scargill and Todd think they can hold back the tide of democracy, they are as foolish as King Canute: they cannot in our free and open society. The ballot must be here to stay in trade union affairs, we put it there and we are pledged to keep it there for the exercise of democratic rights."

"We have to stick to our task for the sake of our industry and our services, for the sake of jobs and, above all, for the benefit of individual trade unionists whose essential personal liberties we protect and intend to maintain," he said.

The country was no longer dominated by the trades union bosses but the Labour party still was, Mr Clarke said.

The monster of excessive trades union power that had nearly destroyed the economy in the late 1970s was now caged by sensible, modern, industrial relations laws. But it was not yet a domesticated beast.

"We have to stick to our task for the sake of our industry and our services, for the sake of jobs and, above all, for the benefit of individual trade unionists whose essential personal liberties we protect and intend to maintain," he said.

"If Scargill and Todd think they can hold back the tide of democracy, they are as foolish as King Canute: they cannot in our free and open society. The ballot must be here to stay in trade union affairs, we put it there and we are pledged to keep it there for the exercise of democratic rights."

</

Professor Lown (left) and Dr Chazov in Geneva yesterday after learning that the organization they founded in 1980 had won the Nobel Peace Prize.

The research is continuing and includes testing the attitudes of some teenagers in two London schools.

_____

Peres jubilant • Reagan boycott threat • Passengers describe ordeal • How Tomcats were scrambled

Israelis salute US action as landmark in war on terror

From Ian Murray, Jerusalem

Israel was jubilant yesterday about the capture of the four hijackers of the Achille Lauro, and for several different reasons.

One was admiration for the skill of the operation. "We congratulate you and the US Navy on the flawless implementation," Mr Shimon Peres, the Prime Minister, said in a telegram to President Reagan.

Another was satisfaction that the hijackers were to be brought to justice. "A major contribution to the international struggle against the double plague of cold-blooded murders and outright lies by both the perpetrators and their supporters," the message went on.

Most important of all was the belief that America had now firmly and irrevocably joined Israel in branding the Palestine Liberation Organization as nothing but a terrorist organization. "Your action is a landmark in the fight to eradicate terrorism, a shining example of your resolve," Mr Peres said.

The telegram sent to Mr George Shultz, the Secretary of State, underlined this. "We stand reassured by the evidence that we are together in the war against terrorism."

Mr Yitzhak Shamir, the Foreign Minister, also made this point forcefully in a news conference yesterday afternoon when he returned from Washington.

He had noticed, he said, that the hijack of the ship had brought American public opinion and, more importantly, Congress, round to the view that the PLO was responsible for the spate of terrorist activities.

The success of the Americans in capturing the hijackers, he said, meant that the US should now be encouraged to take the lead in the struggle against terrorism.

But he was despairing of making Britain understand. There was enough evidence to show that the PLO was responsible for the recent terrorist attacks, he said, but he did not think it would be good enough to convince Britain.

He was therefore resigned to a visit to Britain next week by two PLO executive members, Mr Mohammed Milhem and Bishop Elias Khoury. "It seems to me that the British will not change their decision."

Israel was also dissatisfied with answers it received during the day from Egypt about the shooting of seven Israelis in the Sinai last weekend by an Egyptian.

The reply from Cairo said there had been no delay in getting quick medical treatment for the wounded people. This is at total variance with the evidence of Israeli witnesses of the tragedy and the postmortem reports, which show that five of those who were shot died to death for want of treatment.

The reply from Cairo about why President Mubarak had described the shooting as a minor incident which could have happened anywhere was also unsatisfactory to the Israelis.

The reply is regarded here as adding to what is seen as insensitivity, because President Mubarak is still refusing to apologize.

Both sides claim they do not want the affair to interfere with any attempt to thaw the "cold peace" between them, but it is becoming an obstacle to moves designed to re-build good relations.

UN anniversary dispute

Reagan boycott threat over Arafat invitation

From Zoriana Pysarsky, New York

Diplomatic efforts were under way yesterday to avert a clash between the United States and the United Nations over a proposal to invite Mr Yasser Arafat, the chairman of the Palestine Liberation Organization, to take part in General Assembly proceedings commemorating the UN's 40th anniversary.

At risk is President Reagan's decision to address the Assembly on October 24. American officials have made clear that Mr Arafat's presence after it had earlier been agreed that only member and observer states at the UN would participate in the proceedings, would result in President Reagan cancelling his visit.

The grounding of the Boeing 737

Endless practice makes perfect for Tomcat crews from the Saratoga

By Rodney Cowton

The interception of the Boeing 737 will have given the crews of the American F14 Tomcats an opportunity to carry out something which they endlessly practise.

Given that the Americans appear to have had precise information about the "target" aircraft, the process of interception will not have been difficult. The flight of the airliner will have been monitored probably from the moment it took off by radar, including those about the two E2C Hawkeye surveillance aircraft which took off from the carrier Saratoga before the Tomcats.

The Hawkeye has radar capable of tracking hundreds of targets at up to 300 miles away, and can simultaneously direct and control 20 to 30 interceptions by aircraft such as the Tomcat.

The Tomcat's own radar can pick up targets 200 miles away and can track at least 24 targets simultaneously. One of the chief roles of the Tomcats in war is to protect the American carrier battle groups against unpredictable enemy aircraft attacks. Locating the aircraft with the hijackers, aboard will therefore have been no problem, particularly if, as seems to have been the case, it was in communication with civil air traffic control.

Tomcats are capable of flying at more than twice the speed of sound, but it is unlikely that the interception will have required much high speed activity. The speed of the airliner will have comfortably matched the Tomcats' cruising speed of 400-500 mph.

With external fuel tanks the Tomcats are believed to have a maximum range of about 2,000 miles, but the effective range would depend on what weapons the aircraft was carrying. It seems the operation lasted about 2½ hours, and may have

United States military police on alert at Sigonella, Sicily, where the plane landed; Mr Caspar Weinberger, Defence Secretary (left), at a Pentagon briefing yesterday; the Saratoga (centre), mother ship of the intercepting fighters; and Abu Abbas, head of the Palestine Liberation Front.

Gunmen's victim Witnesses tell how hostage died

Zurich (Reuters) - Swiss hostages released from the Achille Lauro yesterday gave a grisly account of the killing of the American passenger Leon Klinghoffer, saying fellow passengers had been ordered to throw his body overboard.

Fourteen Swiss nationals flew to Zurich from Egypt after disembarking from the Italian liner.

They told the Swiss news agency SDA they had heard shots soon after Klinghoffer, aged 69, was pushed in his wheelchair out of the ship's dining room.

"Then one of the terrorists, with bloodstained shoes and trousers, came back into the dining room and ordered two passengers to throw the body of Klinghoffer over the side," the agency quoted passenger Rene Sprecher as saying.

She said the hijackers had fired wildly with machine pistols, wounding two people, when they burst into the ship's dining room during lunch on Monday.

"It took a long time before a doctor could look after the passengers who had been hit," another passenger told SDA.

American fury at London visit

PLO leaders due on Monday

By Nicholas Ashford, Diplomatic Correspondent

murder of an elderly American passenger has revived the image of the PLO as an organization dedicated to violence - even though the hijackers' exact relationship to the PLO is unclear.

The Americans are understood to be furious that the visit is to go ahead, although they have maintained a steely silence in public.

The Israelis have not felt similarly constrained. Mr Yitzhak Shamir, the Israeli Foreign Minister, said during a stop-over in London yesterday, that Britain's decision to allow the visit to go ahead would "strengthen international terrorism".

In defending the decision to go ahead with the visit, Sir Geoffrey repeated Britain's assertion that the two PLO representatives had publicly repudiated terrorism and violence.

He said it was important to have contact with Palestinian moderates "if we are to have any chance of encouraging the prospect of a peaceful negotiated settlement of the Arab-Israeli dispute".

This explanation was rejected by Mr Winston Churchill MP, a Conservative right winger, who urged Mrs Thatcher to intervene and cancel the trip.

Mr Milhem's and Bishop Khoury's reputations as moderates have been challenged by the British-Israel Public Affairs Committee which says that Mr Milhem, a close colleague of Mr Yasser Arafat, the PLO leader, is on record as denying the right of Israel to exist and as being a supporter of, if not a participant in, violent means to political ends.

Bishop Khoury was arrested by Israel in 1969 and later deported from the West Bank for allegedly being involved in supplying explosives to terrorists who blew up a supermarket in Jerusalem, killing two shoppers and injuring eight.

Both men became members of the PLO 15-man executive committee last November.

The Foreign Secretary yesterday applauded the US seizure of the four hijackers of the Achille Lauro. It was important, he said, that effective action had been taken against "this particularly wanton act of terrorism which must surely be in the interests of the whole world," he added.

548 ashore

Passengers await ship's call at Ashdod

From John Earle

A total of 548 passengers from the Achille Lauro are in Israel and have asked the shipowner's representative in Tel Aviv if they can rejoin the vessel as soon as possible.

Many had been on a shore excursion in Egypt when the hijacking took place.

The company said yesterday that the passengers in Israel included Italians, 160 Austrians, 70 West Germans, 55 Americans, 50 Swiss, 20 British, 16 Spaniards, six Canadians, five Brazilians, three Argentines and two Peruvians.

It is reported from the Middle East that those taken hostage on board numbered 447. They included 27 Italians, 16 Austrians, 17 Americans, 15 Swiss, nine South Africans, five West Germans, four French, four Dutch, three Greeks, two Spaniards and two Belgians.

International law

Expert questions the right to divert aircraft

International law normally only permitted a country to divert aircraft flying over its territory if the aircraft did not have that country's authorization, an international law expert said last night.

Professor Rosalyn Higgins, who teaches international law at the London School of Economics, said it seemed the US had taken the law into its own hands. "It is hard to see that the actions of the American Government were lawful actions," she said.

Referring to the takeover of the ship, Professor Higgins said: "This is not a case of piracy at sea as when one ship takes over another ship for private gain. In this case, murder and plunder has occurred aboard a ship."

Washington explains why

President ordered interception of plane

Washington (Reuters) - The following is the text of a statement on Thursday night by the White House spokesman, Mr Larry Speakes, on the US operation to intercept the hijackers:

At the President's direction, US military forces intercepted an aircraft over international airspace that was transporting the Achille Lauro terrorists. The aircraft was diverted to the airport at Sigonella, Italy. In co-operation with the Government of Italy, the terrorists were then taken into Italian custody for appropriate legal proceedings.

Earlier today, upon learning that the terrorists would be flown from Egypt to their freedom, the President directed that US forces intercept the aircraft and escort it to a location where the terrorists could be apprehended by those with appropriate jurisdiction.

US F14 aircraft, flying from the carrier Saratoga, detected the aircraft in international airspace and intercepted it. They instructed it to follow them and escorted it to the military airport at Sigonella, Italy. This operation was conducted without firing a shot. The aircraft landed with Italian consent and was surrounded by American and Italian troops. The terrorists aboard were taken into custody by Italian authorities. The Egyptian aircraft, with its crew and other personnel on board, is returning to Egypt.

We have been assured by the Government of Italy that the terrorists will be subject to full due process of law. For our part, we intend to pursue prompt extradition to the United States of those involved in the crime. This action affirms our determination to see that terrorists are apprehended, prosecuted and punished.

This episode also reflects our close co-operation with an exemplary ally and close friend - Italy - in combating international terrorism. The American Government and people are grateful to Prime Minister Craxi, his Government and the Italian people for their help.

We are also grateful to the Government of Tunisia for its refusal to permit the aircraft transporting the terrorists to land in Tunisia.

Finally, we must at this point note our gratitude to the Government of Egypt for its efforts to end this dangerous crisis without additional loss of life. We strongly disagree with the Government of Egypt, however, on disposition of the terrorists. From the onset, the United States Government made clear to all the governments involved our firm opposition to negotiations with the terrorists or concessions to them. We also made clear our expectation that the terrorists would be brought to justice.

We were therefore deeply distressed to learn that those responsible for the death of Leon Klinghoffer might be permitted to go free. We said yesterday we were determined to see justice done and that we would use every appropriate means to that end.

The decision on ending the hijacking was an independent one by the Government of Egypt. When we were consulted, we advised strongly against any arrangements which would permit the terrorists to escape justice. Since the time the terrorists were taken off the ship, we have continued intensive contacts with the Government of Egypt to pursue that point.

The United States wants to emphasize the fundamental and durable interests that the United States and Egypt share, interests which transcend this difficult incident.

In closing, the President wants to emphasize once again that the international scourge of terrorism can only be stamped out if each member of the community of civilized nations meets its responsibility squarely - passing up no opportunity to apprehend, prosecute and punish terrorists wherever they may be found. We cannot tolerate terrorism in any form. We will continue to take every appropriate measure available to us to deal with these dastardly deeds.

German president leaves with Holocaust message

From Ian Murray, Jerusalem

The first West German head of state to visit Israel left the country yesterday with two clear messages: Israelis will only forgive Germany for the Holocaust if it is never forgotten. And Israel will find it very difficult to forgive West Germany if it goes ahead with a deal to build a $3.5 billion (2.4 billion) arms ammunition factory in Saudi Arabia.

President von Weizsacker was able, during his four-day visit, to give personal assurances that his country would never forget what the Nazis did to the Jews in the last war. He was less convincing over whether the arms deal would be stopped.

The trip was a pilgrimage of repentance on behalf of the German nation 30 years after the end of the war and 20 years after they first forged diplomatic relations.

Herr von Weizsacker spent an hour at the Holocaust museum and wrote a penitential message in the visitors' book. Once or twice he was treated to small demonstrations by young Jews carrying placards saying: "Welcome, Herr President".

There was one such demonstration by the Walling Wall, which he had to visit as a private tourist so as not to offend Arab sensibilities.

On his last evening, he allowed himself to be cross-examined for more than an hour by a group of Israeli teenagers. What could young Germans be proud about without national pride or any possibility of national identity? he was asked. "We in Israel have much to be proud about. What can make you proud?"

The President seemed almost envious of this patriotism but tried to explain the difference. "Our own problem in Germany is that we provided the young generation with a country built on the ruins of the Nazi regime in which there is a high standard of living and a free democratic system," he said. "But the young people in Germany want more than that. They want ideals and new content."

There was much less frankness in talks about the arms deal. The President told his hosts that he did understand Israel's security needs and that his country would exercise restraint in sales. His views were echoed by Hans-Dietrich Genscher, the West German Foreign Minister, who accompanied the President.

If West Germany was offered the contract, Herr Genscher said, Bonn would accept it only after studying the security needs of the area.

He refused categorically to stop West Germany building its 40 per cent share of the Tornado fighter aircraft being sold to Saudi Arabia under the recent contract won by Britain.

Cairo's view

Egypt is taken by surprise

Cairo (AP) - The following is the text of a statement issued yesterday by the Egyptian Foreign Ministry in reaction to the forcing down of the plane carrying the hijackers:

The Government of the Arab Republic of Egypt was greatly surprised by the surprise attack on the plane carrying hijackers of the Italian ship along with two PLO officials who had participated in negotiations with hijackers. The interception of the plane occurred when it was on its way back to Cairo after the Tunisian authorities denied it access and announced that the airport was closed to it, despite Tunisia's earlier approval for the plane to land at Tunis Airport.

Egypt, which always has condemned terror and violence in all forms by air or on land or by sea and which also denounced the hijacking of the Italian ship in line with its well-known and declared principles, negotiated with the hijackers of the ship on humanitarian grounds to save the lives of more than 400 people who did not include a single Egyptian and who were in grave and certain danger. It did so at the insistence of some countries that had nationals on board the ship. These countries signed a document asking Egypt to negotiate without their making any specific demands regarding the fate of the hijackers in the event of their surrender.

Egypt ended the hijack peacefully, although the ship was outside its territorial waters and at a time when its information was that there had been no victims of the hijack as acknowledged by the captain of the ship in the tape-recording that was played by the Deputy Prime Minister and Foreign Minister at his press conference.

It is well known that the world followed with satisfaction Egypt's efforts to save the lives of the hostages.

Chronology

Countdown to capture of hijackers

New York (AP) - Here is a chronology of some of the events leading up to the capture by US and Italian authorities of four Palestinian terrorists who hijacked the Italian cruise ship Achille Lauro.

WEDNESDAY
-1510: Falling attempts to make port in other countries, the hijackers return to Egypt and agree to surrender to Palestine Liberation Organization officials. They later are taken off the ship to the Egyptian navy base at Port Said.

THURSDAY
-0210: The Achille Lauro steams into Port Said with the former hostages aboard.
-Noon GMT: President Mubarak of Egypt says he had allowed the hijackers to fly out of the country on Wednesday night.

-Evening: President Reagan, during a visit to a baking plant in Chicago, approves a plan to intercept the jet liner carrying the four pirates.

-3000: Mr Reagan gives the final order for the interception and "at least four" F14 jet fighters, along with radar planes and tankers.

-2130: The F14 Tomcats intercept the Egyptian Boeing 737 en route from Cairo to Tunis. Tunisia and Greece refuse to permit the jet to land and the 737's pilot agreed to land at a Nato base in Sicily.

-2330: The airliner touches down at Sigonella, a Nato base near Catania, and is surrounded by Italian and US forces.

FRIDAY
-Italian authorities agree to take the hijackers into custody and the Egyptian plane is given permission to leave.

Queen hears Belize plea for soldiers to stay

Belize City (Reuters) - The Queen, touring the only Commonwealth state she had never visited before, has been positively but firmly reminded by the Prime Minister of Belize that it relies on British troops for its security.

The Queen held out no pledge of a continued British military presence when she responded in a state dinner speech, but instead emphasized the growing role of British-trained local troops.

The 1,600-man British force, including 680 Marines, is here to defend the former British Honduras - the only English-speaking state in Central America - against any move by Guatemala, which has territorial claims.

Mr Manuel Esquivel, the Prime Minister, made his thinly veiled plea for a continued British military presence in a speech to the Queen in the Belize parliament.

"I have been glad to find... British troops working alongside the Belize defence force, which may be small in numbers but is rapidly growing into a dedicated and efficient deterrent against external aggression. It is heartening to find that the British troops are so warmly regarded here and I look forward to meeting them."

During a state dinner, the Queen appeared to pick at her food, and roast rodent may have been the reason.

One delicacy served was roast gibbon, a long-legged rodent not unlike a rat.

Libya deal with Moscow

Moscow (Reuters) - The Libyan leader, Colonel Gaddafi, and Mr Mikhail Gorbachev agreed yesterday on a long-term economic accord, but communiques made no mention of an expected friendship treaty.

Colonel Gaddafi arrived here on Thursday to a red-carpet welcome on his first official visit for more than four years. Diplomats had expected him to finalize a friendship treaty to which the two countries pledged themselves in 1983.

Tass said the two leaders discussed bilateral and international issues "in an atmosphere of friendship and mutual understanding". The words imply a significant difference of views.

Mr Gorbachev and Colonel Gaddafi noted "untapped possibilities" for deepening Soviet-Libyan relations and agreed on a "long-term programme for developing economic, trade, scientific and technical co-operation".

IF YOU'VE GOT A BAD BACK BUY ONE

64-72 New Oxford St., London WC1. 01-626-2345
write for full catalogue 50p plus 40p postage.

are scrambled president with t message

ray, Jerusalem
d hour by a group of e teenagers. What could y Germans be proud
y possibility of national e he was asked. "We e have much to be proud
e. What can make you
e. The President seemed
e. I tried to explain the
e. "Our own problem
e. many is that we
e. young generation
e. built on the ruins
e. regime in which
e. standard of living
e. But the young people
e. Germany was more
e. They want ideals
e. content."

There was much less ness in talks about deal. The President
e. hosts that he did
e. Israel's security
e. his country's needs
e. restraint in order
e. were echoed by
e. Dietrich Fischer
e. German Foreign
e. accompanied the
e. West German
e. the contract. Herr
e. said. "We will
e. after studying the
e. of the area."

He refused to
e. stop West German
e. 40 per cent share
e. Tornado fighter
e. sold to Saudi
e. recent contract
e. Britain

Chronology
Countdown to capture of hijackers

NEW YORK, AP - Here
e. chronology of the
e. events leading up to
e. the capture of the
e. hijackers. The
e. hijacking took place
e. on September 26.
e. The hijackers
e. demanded a
e. ransom of $2 million.
e. The ransom was
e. paid on October 1.
e. The hijackers
e. were released on
e. October 2.

Belize plea
rs to stay

th Moscow

Salvador rebels kill 40 in night raid on army recruits

La Union, El Salvador (NYT) - Left-wing guerrillas killed at least 40 Salvadoran soldiers and wounded 68 in a pre-dawn raid on the main training base for government recruits near this coastal town.

It was the most damaging action against government forces this year and one of the few large attacks in the last year and a half. It suggested that the guerrillas still have the ability to carry out well-planned hit-and-run actions at a time when their military fortunes have otherwise seemed to be slipping.

Despite warnings of possible rebel attack, security at the base appears to have been lax. Guerrilla squads penetrated the perimeter before dawn, on Thursday and dropped grenades into barracks of sleeping troops, according to three different accounts by soldiers. From about 100 yards away, other rebels fired rifles, RPG rockets, and mortars point-blank into the barracks.

Five American military advisers were at the base, according to Mr James Williams, a spokesman for the US Embassy. None of the Americans was hurt, he said, adding that he "BELIEVED" the advisers had not taken part in the fighting.

Although army officials contended that their soldiers died fighting, interviews with more than a dozen dazed recruits indicated that most were blown out of their beds. Almost all the dead were aged 17 to 18 and had less than four weeks training, according to Lieutenant Colonel Joaquín Cerna Flores, commander of the 2,000-man base, 110 miles east of San Salvador.

Ten guerrillas were also killed in the attack, which began with a volley of rocket fire at 1.30. Colonel Cerna said. No rebels were captured, he added. Other soldiers said, however, that at least two guerrillas had been taken prisoner.

Some soldiers complained their sentries had failed to warn of the attack or hold off the rebels. One recruit, who said he had been in the Army for four weeks, explained how he had scrambled from his bed, fired at guerrillas rushing on his barracks and then covered in a hole during the rest of the attack.

Asked why he had not kept firing, the recruit answered that he had only a handful of bullets and did not know how to feed individual rounds into his automatic rifle.

The attack was a sharp reminder that the country remains very much at war. Guerrilla attacks on public transport and sabotage of electrical installations are a daily occurrence and the hopes for peace encouraged by talks almost a year ago are becoming a distant memory.

The rebel raid, Venceremos, said the attack was launched to mark the fifth anniversary of the founding of the rebel Farabundo Martí National Liberation Front. In a communiqué, the guerrilla general command claimed its forces had killed or wounded 200 soldiers and declared that the eastern half of the country was "a zone of war where there will not be peace for our enemies".

● SAN SALVADOR: The kidnappers of President Duarte's daughter have warned him that failure to meet their demands can only delay her release (Reuters reports).

In the third emotional radio contact between Señor Duarte and the kidnappers, the guerrillas refused to include the fate of 23 town mayors they are holding in the negotiations.

The President has been insisting that the guerrillas free the mayors, taken from their towns in the past five months, along with his daughter, Señora Inés Guadalupe Duarte Durán, and her friend, Señora Ana Cecilia Villalón, in exchange for 25 rebels in government jails.

Opening surprise by Karpov

Moscow - The fourteenth game in the world chess championship between Anatoly Karpov and Gary Kasparov was drawn on Thursday after a keenly contested and innovative game (Raymond Keene writes).

In the opening, a Taimanov variation of the Sicilian Defence, as in game 12, Karpov sidestepped the challenger's preparation with his fifth move. The champion then introduced an entirely new sixth move of his own 6 P-KN4. This gained space on the king's wing but also created future long-term defects in white's pawn structure. But by means of expert simplification the champion avoided all difficulties.

Fourteenth game

White Karpov, Black Kasparov, Sicilian Defence

1 P-K4 P-Q4 2 N-K3 P-K3 3 N-K3 P-Q4 4 P-K4 N-K3 5 N-K3 P-Q4 6 P-KN4 N-K3 7 P-Q4 N-K3 8 P-Q4 N-K3 9 P-Q4 N-K3 10 P-Q4 N-K3 11 P-Q4 N-K3 12 P-Q4 N-K3 13 P-Q4 N-K3 14 P-Q4 N-K3 15 P-Q4 N-K3 16 P-Q4 N-K3 17 P-Q4 N-K3 18 P-Q4 N-K3 19 P-Q4 N-K3 20 P-Q4 N-K3 21 P-Q4 N-K3 22 P-Q4 N-K3 23 P-Q4 N-K3 24 P-Q4 N-K3 25 P-Q4 N-K3 26 P-Q4 N-K3 27 P-Q4 N-K3 28 P-Q4 N-K3 29 P-Q4 N-K3 30 P-Q4 N-K3 31 P-Q4 N-K3 32 P-Q4 N-K3

Because of what they see as serious deficiencies, leaders of Brazil's landless peasant movement have said they will be urging their members from the beginning of November to occupy large, unproductive estates.

They say they have decided on this risky course of action because, despite all its promises, Brazil's democratic Government, which has been in power for six months, is not carrying out a rapid and radical programme of land reform.

Bush on Peking mission to reinforce China links

From Mohsin Ali, Washington

Vice-President George Bush arrives in Peking tomorrow for talks on Sino-American commerce, arms control and nuclear cooperation issues, and the guerrilla wars in Afghanistan and Cambodia.

He will discuss the latest Soviet arms control proposals, and will emphasize that the US wants the Soviet Union to dismantle its intermediate-range missiles and not merely transfer them to Soviet Asia for targeting on China, Japan and other Asian countries.

The six-day tour reciprocates the state visit to Washington earlier this year by President Li Xianmin of China. It is aimed at helping to make the US-China relationship stable and enduring.

Among issues likely to come up is a controversial 30-year US-China nuclear pact, negotiated by the Reagan Administration, under which US firms could sell nuclear power technology to China.

Mr Bush will meet the American Chamber of Commerce and inspect a Jeep

Rural fears on Brazil land reform

From Susan Branford

After successive delays, president Sarney of Brazil has signed the Agrarian Reform Bill. It has not been well received by the rural unions, which are claiming that the Government has given in to pressure from the landowners.

The Bill retains the overall target of distributing land to 1.6 million families by the end of 1989 and 7.1 million by the year 2000. The target for the end of 1986 is the settlement of 150,000 families. Land will be distributed, not only in the frontier areas of the Amazon, but also in the developed south and south-east of the country.

But the unions are disappointed the plan does not specify the areas to be expropriated. The Government says this will be left to later in the year, when regional plans will be formulated. The unions believe this makes it likely that the plan will lack punch.

They also are critical of the Government's eleventh-hour decision, apparently under pressure from the landowners, to exclude certain categories of large estates.

Because of what they see as serious deficiencies, leaders of Brazil's landless peasant movement have said they will be urging their members from the beginning of November to occupy large, unproductive estates.

They say they have decided on this risky course of action because, despite all its promises, Brazil's democratic Government, which has been in power for six months, is not carrying out a rapid and radical programme of land reform.

Long Distance Form Mark Lawson looks at EastEnders

"Diversity and vitality... humorous and lively... will provoke discussion at home and work", promised the BBC of its twice-weekly soap opera EastEnders at its launch in February of this year. After measuring the first two episodes against the wording of that guarantee, I dispute all of the adjectives and most of the nouns and then stopped watching. Now I come before you as a convert. Episodes 64 to 68, which climaxed in the revelation of the father of the schoolgirl Michelle Fowler's unborn child, fitted the original description. They were diverse and vital, humorous and lively, and must have provoked much discussion.

EastEnders is selling well, currently claimed to average around 14m viewers per episode. But what exactly is the product on offer and is the series the originally promised "Soap opera for the 1980s"?

The location - Albert Square, in the fictional East London borough of Walford - was always easy to place on the map: right past the Crossroads motel and carry on Coronation Street. As in the parent programmes, the characters were also "characters" in the colloquial sense: Ethel, a pensioner with a funny, furry hat and a similar dog, and Lou, a fearsome matriarch, were the kind of women traditionally featured in long-running soap operas.

It is in characterization that EastEnders has most noticeably matured. At the start the cast were like men and women in a famous set of children's stories, planned to a single characteristic: Mr Grumpy, Mr Lippy-Foot, Ms Feminist-Efficiency, Master Truculence. Now the writers and actors allow for facets and irrationality. The three generations of women in the Fowler family (widow, working mother, schoolgirl) are distinguished by language and mannerism to give the feel of real lives.

It is easy to mock what is said in EastEnders - recently a man who was "no spring chicken" confessed to feeling "pleased as punch" but, beyond the clichés, which are anyway a necessary part of realistic speech, there is some fine phrase-making. The pregnant Michelle complained of being treated as "a problem that has to be solved, like a bunged-up sink", which neatly expresses the stressing of expediency over emotion.

The success of EastEnders is evidence of how restrictive and anti-innovative the traditions of television are. For all its brave claims to be a post-recession soap opera, the series is really old whines in new bottles, playing safe as the ratings dictate that it must. Albert Square is an East London idyllia of no real problems; while its residents planned an harmonious carnival, real-life Inner London was erupting in riots. A 16-year-old schoolgirl becomes pregnant (a controversial plot development) but her decision to keep the child, made against the pro-abortion pressure of her elders, reaffirms traditional morality while posing as a victory for youthful instinct over age. The foot held over the cliff-edge is anchored by hands fixed firmly to the fence.

Susan Tully as Michelle Fowler - a date on the calendar?

But I cannot stop watching. This week, I received a copy of the Coronation Street Silver Jubilee Calendar. Most days are marked with a famous fictional fact (Jan 27 - Valerie Barlow electrocuted, 1971; Feb 8 - Eddie Yeats stole Mike Baldwin's flat key, 1982). I would not bet against EastEnders reaching a similar celebration of its own Oct 3 - Michelle tells Den the child is his, 1985.

Radio Familiar misfortunes

The Family (Radio 4, Tuesdays, repeating Thursdays) producer Sally Thompson is living up to expectation, identifying with some precision a selection of the myriad experiences that shape us as babies, young children and - next week - as adolescents to make us what we irreversibly become. But I think it may not be intending to include many of the kind of influences featured in the edition of File 4 (producer Max Eastman) which last Tuesday immediately preceded it. This was a report by Stuart Simon on the prevalence and nature of the sexual abuse of children.

It was a shocking but by no means a sensational programme which, as it happened, most simply expanded on a news story in The Times last Wednesday ("Child sexual abuse 'now at epidemic proportions'", p.3). Its strength lay to a great extent in Mr Simon's level tone no matter what new shame he was unveiling. He maintained a tone which was detached but not distant and which must have done much to persuade his subjects to talk as freely as they did.

The programme also gained by working on a broad canvas and not shrinking from the truly dreadful: one instance was a child whose step-father, step-uncle and step-grandfather inflicted on her, when she was between four and six, oral, anal and vaginal intercourse. They worked as a trio. Another was the man who copulated with his wife and then with his daughter one after the other in the same bed. And yet it seems to have been a considerable time before the wife realized or could bring herself to admit what was going on. This, we heard, is not uncommon response, an unwillingness to bring the matter into the open, and it was expressed in one case by the feeling that, if there had to be infidelities, it was maybe better to keep them in the family. And yet the damage is terrible.

The girls who spoke were psychologically scarred but the suffering is not all on the victims' side and to make this understandable added yet more weight to an exceptional report. Weight is also a feature of Radio 3's The Star Wars History (Sundays; producer Anne Winder) in which Michael Charlton, upheld by that immense authority which on less serious occasions can cometimes seem a shade oppressive. It is talking to a number of eminent politicians and soldiers - mostly American - about the succession of events that has led President Reagan to announce his Strategic Defence Initiative.

Mr Charlton is giving his listeners many useful insights into the strings that manipulate the actors in the unending rivalry of East and West: how the American view - reinforced by years of misapplied psychology that conflict is unnatural evokes the feeling amounting to certainty that opponents of democracy must be by their very nature evil. In turn this "certainty" makes it hard to accept the idea of détente since that involves compromise with evil.

All in all these programmes - there are still four to come - are beginning to create an understanding of why the process of arms control, which to the layman looks like a simple matter of goodwill and common sense, is so immeasurably tangled and recalcitrant.

It could be luck, it could be judgement, which has placed US-UK (Radio 4, last Thursday) and next, producer Julie Simmons) to coincide with the deliberations of Professor Peacock. Russell Davies has been collecting actuality and interview on how the three great American television networks devise and sell their schedules. Things have come a little way since the Ford Motor Company with staggering arrogance could insist that the Chrysler Building (representing the unacceptable competition) be sprayed out of the New York skyline in some programme it was sponsoring. Individual companies can no longer call the tune to that extent.

If an advertiser does not like his placing, someone else is waiting to snap it up. But advertising as a whole does call the tune, making sure that US television prime time is filled from end to end with stuff amongst which Cagney and Lacey is a matter for congratulation. Or, as we heard, self-congratulation by CBS. This is what the mass audience wants and advertising wants the mass audience. There is no place on the US networks, we were told, for the likes of Ibsen, Brecht, O'Casey, Strindberg. If that is your taste, said one contributor, "move to England and watch the BBC".

David Wade

Visit Christ's birthplace on Christ's birthday.

An insignificant village high in the Judean hills. The last place on earth that you'd ever hear of.

That is, if it hadn't been the birthplace of a man whose message was to influence the future of all mankind.

Can you imagine the awesome sense of history that lies in Bethlehem on Christmas Day itself would evoke? If the prospect appeals, we'll take you on the 1985 Swan Hellenic Christmas cruise.

Between December 20 and January 2, you'll also visit other important places of Christ's ministry (Nazareth, Galilee, Jerusalem) as well as Athens, Alexandria and Rhodes, stronghold of the Crusaders.

And we make every location doubly enjoyable by putting it in its historical perspective.

Fares from £881 include most shore excursions, comprehensive insurance and all gratuities.

For full details, just contact Swan Hellenic, 47 Midland St., London E1 7AL (01-247 7532) or see your ABTA travel agent.

SWAN HELLENIC
A Division of P&O Cruises

ATOL 40

Theatre The mother of curious conventions

Mrs Warren's Profession
Lyttelton

As nobody knew better than Shaw, no aspirant playwright of the 1890s could have shot himself in the foot with surer aim than in offering the carriage trade an evening's instruction in the business of prostitution. For future audiences, too, he did himself no good by calling Mrs Warren's Profession a "blue-book" piece and recommending it as if to an LSE public.

It is always a shock to re-encounter the piece itself and discover it to be so much more complex, personal, funny and craftsmanlike than the arid, argumentative conversation piece that lodges in the memory. In fact, the combat between the sentimental old brothel-keeper and her cold-blooded feminist daughter occupies only two scenes.

Otherwise, the theme of tainted money is pursued in terms of an intricate poisoned comedy involving Shaw's own flight from sexual bondage into liberated work, and underscoring the public arguments with a quality of obsessed personal horror that helps to explain why he embarked on such a professionally suicidal subject.

Anthony Page's production brings all this material into precise and full-blooded expression, demonstrating that, just as there are no heroes and villains in Shaw, neither are there any small parts. One of its great pleasures is to witness the arrival of Mrs Warren's court and watch each incoming figure establishing his credentials.

First on the scene is the art-loving Praed, whom Robin Bailey marks down as a dissimulating adolescent with every dismissive comment on the absurd conventions of the past and who recoils from Vivie into stupefied silences as he tries to muster some gallant response to this go-getting Cambridge high-flyer. John Savident's Crofts arrives, favouring her with a bulldog leer before suffering her crushing handshake.

Mark Payton's Frank likewise telegraphs a simultaneous sense of parasitic charm, and formidable self-knowledge. As for Nicholas Selby's performance of his clerical father, you can see through the sanctimonious mask to the dedicated ex-man-about-town well before the secret of his letters to Mrs Warren comes to light.

Joan Plowright and Robin Bailey

As the evening develops, the running status battle between Mr Payton and Mr Selby is one of the main joys of the comedy; particularly as it is based on mutual affection and, for once, Shaw himself finds a soft spot for a pair of loungers with no business in the world.

The main surprise in the evening is that it reveals Vivie - technically the heroine and temperamentally the most Shavian figure - as the least sympathetic character. In the opening scene with Praed, Jessica Turner pugilistically rams home the argument that poverty is unnecessary if only people had the guts to look for work; thus giving Jeffrey Archer an unlooked-for feminist ally. The build-up to her first clash with her mother exerts its usual appeal. The combat between this cigar-smoking mathematician and a conventional maternal bully is irresistible and you want her to win.

The battle, however, is over very quickly, and your sympathy for her is nothing compared with the feelings Joan Plowright arouses in talking about her early years and the means she took for escaping the white lead factory.

Where Vivie is concerned, the play shows her being gradually engulfed in a swamp of poisonous attachments. She has no difficulty in defying her mother. But by degrees everyone else on the stage becomes a part of the same conspiracy to imprison and taint her.

She has no alternative but to uproot herself from this society altogether; but, at the expense of becoming what Shaw, in a supreme insult, called a "private person". As Miss Turner plays it, her survival is an ugly sight.

Joan Plowright's Mrs Warren is everything that Vivie is not: sentimental, vulgar, warm-hearted, and experienced. She does not, however, communicate the idea that mother and daughter are two of a kind in their need for work. Nor does she come over as a sexual specialist. You can imagine her behind the bar, or belting out a music-hall chorus; but not superintending elegant bordellos in Brussels and Budapest.

Otherwise, the production is as beautifully focused an example of Shavian playing as I have seen for many a day; further clarified by Patrick Robertson's use of naturalistic inset stages backing on to a series of enlarged photographic cycloramas.

Irving Wardle

Concert

LSO/Boulez
Barbican/Radio 3

You never know what to expect from Pierre Boulez's conducting, which can be anything from extremely penetrating to totally superficial, often in the same performance. Both the works in this instalment of the Mahler, Vienna and the Twentieth Century series suffered in this way. To use a cricketing analogy, Boulez seemed unable to find a consistent line and length, to an extent that seemed almost wilful.

For all its song-cycle design and language, Mahler's Das Lied von der Erde encompasses as extreme a range of moods as do any of the Symphonies. Boulez sounded far more on terms with some of these than with others; the opening Trinklied vom Jammern der Erde, for instance, had a hard-edged scything ferocity wholly suited to the music, and Boulez's hyper-acute ear brought out some deliciously unfamiliar detail in the inner parts in Von der Jugend. The other side of things was all too comprehensively summed up in the exquisite coda to Von der Schönheit: it is impossible to understand how a musician of Boulez's intelligence can allow himself this kind of cavalier insensibility.

Der Abschied started out in similar fashion, but fortunately and unexpectedly improved a good deal as the movement's great spaces gradually opened out; a quickish tempo brought out an unusual and interesting side of the central funeral march, and the yearning lyrical beauty of the long paragraphs at Ich schne mich und Die liebe Erde was allowed to come across strongly.

The orchestra's contribution was similarly variable; the strings, for once, played with refreshing lightness, but the necessary degree of instinctive sensitivity seemed to desert the woodwind on all but a few occasions.

The two singers seemed to react to Boulez's uneven accompanying very differently. Walter Raffeiner's approach to the tenor songs was almost totally unconvincing - much operatic heaving and straining, and an almost non-existent sense of the appropriate kind of line (Mahler's rhythmic notation implies freedom, but not to that extent). Perhaps because she is herself a remarkable operatic talent, Hanna Schwarz seemed also to understand the character of this most anti-operatic of works. She has a voice of wonderful richness which is also equal to Mahler's demands in the upper register, more consistently gently floated tone would have been in order - as in Ich suche Ruhe, marvellously done here - but her phrasing was idiomatic and unaffected.

Earlier, Schoenberg's Verklarte Nacht made an effective upbeat to the Mahler. Boulez's abrupt gear-changing in the more complex sections turned out to be a legitimate way of clarifying the partwriting and apart from the odd crisis of intonation, the orchestra's string section played with agreeable clarity.

Malcolm Hayes

QUITE SIMPLY
MAGNIFICENT
GLENDA JACKSON
Phedra
NOW PREVIEWING OPENS TUESDAY
ALDWYCH THEATRE
Box Office 836 6404 836 0841 379 6233

IF YOU HAVEN'T
BUY ONE
64-72 New Oxford St., London WC1. 01-636-2345
write for full catalogue 50p plus 40p postage

SPORTING DIARY

Simon Barnes

Blessed trinity?

A team containing three cricketers, a clergyman is flying to India later this month to take on the full Indian Test team in three matches. The organization Christians in Sport describes the tour as cricket's "first missionary journey". The team's chief hope must lie in the hands of the Rev Andrew Wingfield Digby, a renowned cricketer, padre from Dorset who once bowled Eddie Barlow for a king duck and had Viv Richards with the only ball he ever bowled to him. Other members of the party include Jack Bond, the Lancashire manager, who goes as coach, Peter Roebuck, Somerset's new captain, Vic Marks, his county colleague, Simon Hughes of Middlesex and Roger Knight, the former Surrey captain. Wingfield Digby says the team will "play cricket in a fair and sportsmanlike fashion with due regard to the etiquette of the game, and play to win." The Indians must be ground into the dust charitably.

Out, out

It is a little-known fact that Shakespeare included cricketing scenes in his plays. Alan Hewitt writes to tell me of the noteworthy cricketing sequence in King Lear: in Act I, scene v, Lear exclaims "How's that?" (the appeal, of course, follows the earlier dismissal of Kent). I am offering a Times fiver for other examples of pre-cricket cricketing literature.

Winged tie

The British Trust for Ornithology, stung by the impressive cricketing/birding achievements of the Royal Society for the Protection of Birds XI, have fought back with on-pitch signposts. A Lesser Spotted Woodpecker, Tawny and Little Owl, Hobby, and a connoisseur's flock of Crossbills. In the highly-charged series of matches between the two organizations, the score stands at two each. The RSPB's unauthenticated story of a fielder catching a swallow when going for the ball has substance, I learn. George Coatsworth, fielding in the slips for Essex in the 1920s, was the man who did it.

● The Metropolitan Police football team cancelled their match in the Vauxhall-Oxel (nee Lathamian) League last week. Not for such normal, boring reasons as a waterlogged pitch. They cried off because of the Tottenham riots.

Mersey bridge

Liverpool still has a football team playing in Europe - Ford Motors of the North West Counties League, whose members are drawn from the company's Halewood plant. Last season the team won the Ford European Cup, a competition for Ford works teams throughout Europe. They beat Gheant in Brussels, 1-0. Then followed the horrors of the real European Cup Final in Brussels, at the match between Liverpool and Juventus of Italy. Ford of Merseyside thought they would be thrown out of this year's competition, particularly as they were drawn in the first round against an Italian team, in Rome. After long discussions the game went ahead but was switched to Liverpool, where the Italians went down 7-0. Ford secretary John Pilkington said: "We kept a very low profile and didn't publicize the match. The Italians really enjoyed themselves, and said they had never played against a friendlier bunch of people."

Billy laugh

All Is Revealed is a racehorse who loves his pet goat, Billy. Billy is essential to the horse's calmness and wellbeing. In fact All Is Revealed would prefer it if Billy could go racing with him, but his trainer, David Thom, keeps Billy at home for fear of frightening other horses. Thom, however, found a masterful solution at Ascot recently when All Is Revealed got into a nervous state and refused to enter his saddling box. He calmed him down instantly by playing a tape of Billy's bleating. Witnesses refused to believe it was really a goat they were listening to; they said it sounded more like Willie Carson laughing.

Full stretch

Football clubs have to watch every penny these days. Weststone were recently given £3,000 by their supporters' club. They used the money to buy: (i) a new player called Derek Doyle, (ii) a new kit for the season, (iii) new training balls, (iv) new training kit, and there was still enough left to buy (v) a new washing machine.

BARRY FANTONI

'It's varicose veins, I'm afraid. Cut down on standing ovations'

John Fowles launches the second Times/Cape Young Writers Competition with some advice for all who aspire to see themselves in print

When the bug bites - write

In a truly sane world, I suspect, incontinent sufferers from literary ambition would be sent to the nearest psychiatric hospital for a sharp course of aversion therapy. Practical proofs of the dire consequences, once this insidious disease takes root in the mind, are ubiquitous: the odious vanities and insane paranoias of so many fully developed cases, the lifelong lack of rewards for the vast majority, the cruel self-discoveries, the truly appalling demands on time and psychic energy, the sheer futility of such wasted effort in the mirror of eternity... how could any sane person think of this as a career?

Rationally and statistically estimated hope that one may earn a living by it, let alone a worthwhile name, is no greater than in setting out to swim the Atlantic on rubber wings. Meanwhile, in this not quite sane world, the mad challenge of the lemming-rush remains irresistible. Literature is eternal spring, full of seedling writers.

I sometimes get letters from them, asking advice (a bad sign in itself, since something in probable serious future writers instinctively avoids all outside help, the smell of the patron). They use some such phrase as this: "I have decided to become a writer."

I usually tell such innocents that they have tripped at the very first hurdle. You can't "decide to become" a writer, as you might to become a doctor or a plumber. Long before you have a conscious choice, it has been made for you. It is fate (or your genes) that decrees that somehow, you must try to write. In polite terms writing is a vocation, a calling, not a profession; in more honest ones it requires an obsession, a mania, what H. G. Wells called an uncontrollable drive - and one just as likely to bring misery and disappointment as anything else.

Nothing is promised. The need to be born slave of a dominating obsession is particularly great in the novel, because of the time and energy long fiction demands. The kind of person who fancies "trying their hand" at fiction is rarely the ideal type for it: that is the man or woman who can sit down in the full knowledge that two years or more of hard work lie ahead, and no guarantee of success - or even, for a beginner, of being published at the end of it. Alan Sillitoe said it all in the title of his excellent story, The Loneliness of the Long-Distance Runner. Solitude, or the ability to stand it, is of the essence of this literary race, and persistence also. All novelists, however outwardly sophisticated, are peasants at heart. If at least some part of you cannot trudge a furrow, seek your living elsewhere.

I am against giving other writers any except very basic (strictly practical) advice. This is because of my love of the freedom of choice potentially inherent in every act of writing, and most of all in writing fiction. Much of that freedom is severely curtailed in any kind of writing based on either a theory of ideal form, or on protocol and agreed codes, as in journalism and science. The notion of an ideal form often enters where it should be banned, into the novel itself - the idea, here in Britain, that such a thing as the "classic English novel" exists. Belief in this accursed ghost is much disseminated by reviewers and academics; to them, in terms of other arts, no one has composed since Mozart or painted since Rembrandt.

Ideal forms (stereotyping ones, so often) should be strictly excluded from the would-be writer's garret. He needs a very large pot of salt at hand for use against all proffered advice as to how he ought to write

(as also against the judgements of one's nearest and dearest, the most unreliable body of opinion the world has yet discovered). Becoming a good writer, say the cynics, is learning how to hide your faults; it can be equally a matter of obstinately sticking to them.

There is only one fault that every writer must learn to lose; and that lies in the clumsy use of language itself. I occasionally receive manuscripts for opinion. Nine times out of ten the largest fly in the ointment is poor technique: poor spelling, poor punctuation (a dying art), wrong use of words, bad grammar, and all the rest of it. One is never forgiven for pointing this out. Criticisms of narrative or dialogue, of character development, even general philosophy, can be swallowed: the handling of the English language, never. Very often I have received outraged letters in answer, accusing me of a disgusting elitism. "I had to leave school at fourteen..." "I wasn't one of the lucky ones who went to university..." "I'm a writer, not some damned pedantic schoolmarm..." "I thought you were a socialist..."

To all of which I point out that here there is no plea: a writer who doesn't know (and love) words has no more excuse than a carpenter who doesn't know his tools - or the different character of woods. Convinced Marxists, fervent Conservatives, the same rule applies: no political view, no personal misfortune, not even the intrinsic justice or truth of what is being said, can get the clumsy craftsman off.

If you would work in printed words, you must learn to use them, to feel them. A cliché, you may think; alas, I find it very far from that, in many intending writers. They seem blinded to such obvious ground truth by the misty mountain tops of self-prophecy.

There is a general notion, wickedly fostered by the press, of the glided delight of literary success. For what my own experience is worth, it is largely illusory, gilt indeed. Being a bestseller, having some international reputation, is very far from the paradise that every tyro writer tends to dream. It can put intolerable strains on personal life, even on one's work. In this the publisher's hopes and ambitions often run directly counter to those of the writer, or at least to his or her better instincts.

In my own experience, as one grows older, the pleasure and reward lies more and more in the writing, not the being published. I am usually happiest about halfway through a book, that is, between hope and reality; the reality always being the knowledge that one has failed again, and can only try again. It is inevitable with the young writer that personal success, or at least dreams of it, must play a major role. I warn against such dreams, and I know it will be in vain. I shall be accused of being a Jeremiah, a puritanical spoilsport; but it is of the young writer I am thinking. To regard any kind of writing as no more than means to another end (vanity, besetlement, prestige, all the rest) brings a terrible sting in its tail.

My advice here is very simple, though it may seem contradictory. At heart write always for yourself, for family and friends, for admired teachers, for reviewers or publishers; but make sure you write from your real self, not that one besotted by vainglorious dreams of a future self. One day you will realize that the true rewards of writing lie inalienably in the writing itself; and then, with luck, you will be grateful you are mad, and beyond all therapy.

© Times Newspapers Limited, 1985

EMPHASIS THIS YEAR ON NON-FICTION

The first Times/Cape Young Writers Competition inspired entries of extremely high quality. Rights in the winner, Clara's Heart, are already sold to the US, Sweden, Finland and France, and Warner Brothers has acquired a film option. Cape will also publish four other entries during 1986.

The emphasis of the second competition will be on non-fiction. The judges - novelist John Fowles, Education Minister Christopher Patten, Kate Saunders, who was runner-up in the first Times/Cape competition, Peter Stothard, executive editor of the Times leader and opposite-leader pages, and Jonathan Cape editorial director Liz Calder - will be looking particularly for exciting and original non-fiction of all kinds - memoirs, reportage, polemic, satire, biography. Fiction will, of course, also be welcome. All entrants must be under 30 on January 1, 1986; all entries must be by March 31, 1986 and the £5,000 prize winner will be announced in August 1986, when The Times will print an extract from the prize-winning work. Cape will publish the entire work in spring 1987. Further details are available from the Publicity Department, Jonathan Cape, 32 Bedford Square, London WC1. (01-636 3344).

The new Anglican Synod meets next month. Roger Jupp calls for crisis to be confronted

Bishops, return to the fold

and some felt it right to leave. One priest who wrote to me, saying that he and his family would soon be leaving to find a home in the Orthodox Church, felt this mishandling of such a fundamental issue meant that the Church of England was declaring that views held by Jenkins on the virgin conception and the resurrection of Jesus Christ "are an acceptable alternative to orthodoxy", and that it both "approves heresy and orthodoxy, and officially through the voice of her bishops teaches both".

The Church of England, in seeing itself as the Church of the nation, (which I question), is also failing to give a lead in matters of human life and relationships. There is a perceived weakening of morals and Christian standards which have been fundamental to the Church's witness. The value of individual human life is attacked by abortion on demand and experiment on embryos, as is the basic acknowledgement that God is both father and creator, whose gift he alone is to be treated as precious and wonderful.

Marriage is also a gift, and lifelong commitment is a necessary part of the enjoyment of that gift and a means of security in family life. Yet the Church fails to uphold its own doctrine of marriage by failing to preserve it in practice. It now even encourages clergy, albeit passively, to marry divorced couples if it seems right to them to do so, while believing that the discipline of encouraging lifelong fidelity remains unassailed.

Then there is the controversial issue of the ordination of women, which is not generally understood. The fact is that the Church of England cannot claim to be part of the Catholic Church, as it has claimed since the Reformation, if its ministry is so radically changed as to be completely different in form and order from those with whom it claims it shares this heritage.

As a result of the General Synod decision last November to prepare legislation to introduce women into the priesthood (and therefore, surely, into the episcopate), the Church of England is turning its back on a traditional and historical claim fundamental to its very nature and identity.

The claim to be Catholic with other Catholics now seems to some tenuous and to others an outright deception. People need to understand that the ordination of women is part of a much bigger issue, a symptom of a serious malaise in Anglicanism which is heightened by a gradual but continuing slide away from orthodoxy and scriptural and historical norms.

without any reference to the Catholic Church at large.

For example, the Synod has declared that there are no fundamental theological objections to the ordination of women and this is said by its supporters to be the final word on the subject. But has this any meaning or validity when for so many Christians there are still doctrinal objections and when the Churches of Rome and Constantinople declare their opposition under the leading of the Holy Spirit?

The General Synod cannot pronounce on such matters, particularly as it is a creation of Parliament. If it does, then secular edicts will have their day once more.

These are the fundamental issues and because of them Anglicans are not only leaving the Church but some find themselves driven out. The priest who is embracing the Orthodox Church has been prevented from officiating in his parish, and his resignation has been requested; simply because he has shared with his people the questions many are asking.

A liberalizing trend seems to have taken such a grip on the life of the Church of England that the credibility of its witness must soon be seriously questioned, and that the General Synod, with its voracious appetite for legislation and change, is fast becoming - as Dr Pusey said of the Ecclesiastical Commission - our "Protestant Pope".

Is it too late to stem the tide? We are still an episcopal church, so we must call on our bishops to remember their ministerial commission to be shepherds of the people, guardians of the faith and signs of unity. They must quickly find answers to the questions that have remained unanswered for too long. They must set about restoring the impaired image and integrity of the Anglican tradition. Only then can we continue our proper task of bringing Christ and His message to all those people who so desperately need Him.

The author is assistant priest of St James's, Islington, London.

Woodrow Wyatt

Wanted: more blacks in blue

It is easy for those of us living in sedate, comfortable areas, as most Times readers probably do, to take a lofty, tolerant line about black lawlessness. By blacks I mean those principally of West Indian origin rather than the quieter, gentler people from the Indian sub-continent who are as law-abiding as the rest of the population. Hundreds of thousands of whites born to believe that it would always be safe to walk the streets where they live, by night or day, are now in fear. Many find themselves living in what are almost no-go areas, not only for the police but for normal services.

According to report, living on the Broadwater Farm Estate, Tottenham, unless you are black, is hell. Postmen and milkmen refuse to call; insurance men will not visit to discuss claims; mini-cab drivers will not enter. Young white mothers are said to be afraid to shop even by daylight. Men on shift work run from their cars to front doors so frequently kicked in that steel frames have been fitted round the timber and locks.

Doubtless conditions are similar in Brixton, Handsworth and Toxteth. There is a genuine fear among reasonable people that such lawlessness will spread.

After the Tottenham riot last weekend, in which a policeman was stabbed to death and more than 200 others were injured, Bernie Grant, the black leader of Haringey Borough Council and a parliamentary candidate for what is normally a safe Labour seat, declared: "The police were to blame for what happened on Saturday night, and what they got was a bloody good hiding..." He later announced that his council is considering whether to withhold its legally required contribution for the maintenance of the Metropolitan Police.

When blacks using guns, as they did at Tottenham, are encouraged to regard the police as enemies by an elected leader, can it be wondered that whites - and Asians, too - are in fear? It is not the answer to say that some criminal elements among white youths joined in the rioting and the looting and therefore it is not a matter of black hatred against the police and whites.

We have become accustomed to blaming ourselves for the bad behaviour of a sizeable number of blacks. Unemployment, deprivation, low educational achievement and racial discrimination are the principal excuses. But Asians who came here started with the same disadvantages and they are not creating mayhem. The problem could be that instead of encouraging West Indians to become British in thought we have encouraged them to think of themselves as a separate group who should have special privileges. The result could set off a white backlash.

John O'Sullivan

Rights before responsibility

New York When Fabian Bridges, a 30-year-old vagrant, recently checked himself into a Houston hospital for treatment for Aids he brought to an end a small but revealing episode in the great American Aids controversy. Bridges had announced his intention of ignoring an official health order from the city that, as someone with a communicable fatal disease, he "desist from having sexual relations and giving blood".

Because of this defiance, four officers were assigned to follow him around and to enforce the order. But Bridges had his civil rights. So the officers could not actually watch off any prospective partners. They could arrest him only if they actually saw him engaging in sexual relations, or if he were absentmindedly to proposition someone.

This close official attention to an Aids victim is not perhaps what the politically organized homosexual community wanted, but it is what they called for in the early days of the disease. As recently as a year ago, the general public regarded Aids as a disease more or less confined to homosexuals - "Gays" - political militants who are to be distinguished from ordinary, unobtrusive homosexuals - denounced this complacency and called for much greater state finance for research. Some even alleged darkly that a supposedly homophobic Reagan administration was deliberately withholding money so that the "gay plague" would wipe them out.

To counter these prejudices they pointed out that Aids, though mainly spread by homosexual promiscuity, was by no means confined to homosexuals. It was a deadly disease that anyone could catch from intimate contact with an Aids sufferer. It was spreading at an alarming rate, and since the incubation period could be anything from one year to six, many people had the disease without realizing it.

This fervent propaganda produced results. More money was devoted to Aids research, and the public began to shun homosexuals for fear that they might be infected. Homosexuals then set out to re-establish public confidence. They repeated the medical assurances that, for practical purposes, the disease could be contracted only by repeated sexual intercourse with an Aids victim, from using infected needles or from a contaminated blood transfusion. Doctors were wheeled out to argue that public anxiety over the disease's transmission through tears, saliva, food handling and so on was groundless.

Despite all this reassurance, the public remained anxious. It stayed away from restaurants and bars with a homosexual clientele. The reasons are not mysterious. Aids is rather like a black parody of Pascal's wager.

In New York about one-fifth of the police force is black. In Tottenham there is one West Indian policeman (born here), one Asian and one Greek. Of the 26,766 members of the Metropolitan Police, only 253 are from ethnic minorities, and not all black. In the West Midlands, which covers Handsworth - scene of rioting last month - the figure is 87 out of 6,524. In England and Wales as a whole there are 726 policemen of ethnic minorities (two-thirds of whom are black) out of a force of 119,000. In proportionate terms there should be 12,000.

In New York a white policeman never patrols in a black area without a black policeman beside him. Such a procedure would be impossible in Britain, although its benefits are obvious.

The Metropolitan Police tries to recruit blacks. In 1983 57 men and 17 women from ethnic minorities joined. In 1984 the number was down to 30 and six respectively. Those blacks who do join are vilified by local black opinion and often by their own families.

A climate has been created in which it is a very brave black indeed who becomes a policeman. This is the fault of those who deal in race relations and continually foment discontent against the police. Public funds are spent for the purpose. The activities of those concerned with race relations are mainly directed at alienating blacks rather than integrating them.

There is no doubt that the great majority of West Indians would like to behave and be accepted as normal British citizens; they would be if they were not stirred up by those among them who peddle evil and hatred and by those extreme socialists who aim for revolution on the streets and an anarchy that would make parts of Britain ungovernable.

Many West Indians are devout churchgoers. Many are hard and honourable workers. I think of Mel Smith, who came from Jamaica when he was nine and, still in his thirties, has set up his own house painting business employing two regulars and calling on others as required. His was the best estimate to paint my house and he did the work better than it has ever been done before, ensuring that he got more work in the same road.

Are he and others like him to be damned because black youths are being misled by those in the community relations business to hate the police and to hate whites? If the West Indians feel the police are unfair to them they have a solution - join up and make sure the police in the areas where they live are black in proportionate numbers. The pay is good and it would relieve some West Indian unemployment.

The risk of catching it may be slight, but the consequences of doing so are horrendous. People therefore prefer to take no chances - and that means avoiding known sufferers and potential sufferers. Secondly, the medical profession no longer enjoys the superstitious respect of its patients. They reckon that if doctors are capable of amputating the wrong leg they are capable of not knowing everything about the transmission of Aids.

But there is an unstated reason for public nervousness. Because it is linked with homosexuality, Aids is not treated solely as a medical matter. Instead, it has become bound up with the struggle of the gay community to achieve general social approval of homosexuality as "an acceptable lifestyle" and with the great contemporary drama of rights.

To illustrate this, imagine the different attitudes people would take to Aids if it had spread as a side-effect of a new drug invented by a multi-national corporation. Compulsory measures to test people for the disease would then arouse no opposition except among a few cranks. But there is considerable opposition even to voluntary Aids testing on the grounds that those shown to have the disease might then suffer unfair discrimination. A prison governor recently rejected prisoners' requests for compulsory testing on the grounds that this would violate the civil rights of those who objected.

Nor would the company whose attempt to cure an illness had inadvertently spread this new disease receive much sympathy. It would probably be pilloried. It certainly would not be allowed to continue mass marketing the drug. Yet Aids is spread principally by the promiscuous homosexual activity which occurs among other places, in the "gay" bathhouses of major United States cities. There is accordingly strong public pressure to close them down. But homosexual groups resist this as a violation of civil rights. And an official New York state commission, having rejected closure, suggested instead that contraceptive sheaths and lubricants should be available free of charge so that promiscuous homosexual relations could take place in marginally safer conditions.

This is a reductio ad absurdum of civil rights: the right to sexual activity that risks both slow and horrible suicide and the spread of a fatal disease throughout society. We are back to Mr Bridges - and to the successful play in which a dying homosexual Aids victim asks his former lover to sleep with him as a demonstration of love and acceptance. Militant homosexuals are asking something like that of the American public. But the public is not buying.

P.O. Box 7, 200 Gray's Inn Road, London WC1X 8EZ. Telephone: 01-837 1234

TRUTHS TO TAKE HOME

Yesterday's party conference speech by the Prime Minister summed up the spirit of both her party and its conference. It was not dramatic. It was not made in an aggressive campaigning manner. It did not pull rabbits out of hats. Mrs Thatcher preferred instead to stress the themes that have rightly dominated this mid-term meeting of her supporters.

She showed that her party's concerns are the issues that concern the nation. And she answered the need for weapons with which Conservatives could communicate that concern to a worried country. This was a speech for the silent majority which was designed to help that majority, when necessary, to be less silent.

It should not therefore have come as a surprise that, almost before the Prime Minister had sat down, the carping began about her oratorical inadequacies, how she had not risen to the occasion, how a dull week had culminated in a dull speech. Conferences have become increasingly like circuses. Circuses need new tricks. So do professional circus watchers.

Countries do not need a continuous supply of new tricks and Mrs Thatcher made it clear that she was not offering any.

Neither was she for dusting off the old tricks. With the simple words "we will not retreat" the unruly ghost of Mr Peter Walker was swept aside. Mr Walker did not sit on the platform in person yesterday afternoon. He must now decide whether, after his extraordinarily clear assault on the heart of Government policy on Thursday night, he can in decent self-respect, sit in the Cabinet either.

Behind the scenes at Blackpool it was a bad week overall for those senior "wets" who once so confidently presented their alternatives. Even among those MPs who share his views Mr Walker himself was yesterday's man.

But if her chief cabinet critic required only a one-line rebuttal her Labour, Liberal and Social Democrat opponents required more - and rebuttals which would not just impress the television cameras and echo prettily around the bars, but provide tools for the Tories to take home.

The result was much repetition of what had been heard from the platform during the week, the rising levels of health spending, teacher-pupil ratios, investment, output, real living standards. At the beginning of the week the Tory faithful had seemed battered down by opposition attacks even when they knew that those attacks were based on lies. By the end of the week they had been battered in turn by an avalanche of hard facts. The Prime Minister told them yesterday that "the only way to nail a lie is to repeat the truth". And she gave them some more truths to repeat.

But even if the troops now have the weapons why should they want to use them? What will a Tory worker take from this conference that will make him or her trudge the doorsteps on winter nights? Some sympathetic observers had hoped that Mrs Thatcher would provide some new vision of the society she would like to see after her third term in office. Others, no less sympathetic, hoped that more coherent lines of policy would emerge, a more positive view of improving the health service, of raising the quality of education and training. Mrs Thatcher may have disappointed those who held such hopes. Next year she may have better to fulfil them.

This year she chose to concentrate on the social evils that had so worried her hearers - in the conference hall and the country - during the week. She called for all the British people to take their share in combating drug abuse, child abuse and abuse of the rule of law. She has given her followers back their social conscience, not as a wet slogan but as a consciousness of what society genuinely wants and what the Conservative Party, alone of those on sea-side view this autumn, can plausibly claim to provide.

THEY HAVE HIJACKED THE PEACE PROCESS

The affair of the Achille Lauro which seemed to reach a spectacular climax yesterday contains within it a remarkable number of insights into current attitudes towards international terrorism, international law, and the true nature of the Palestinian Liberation Organisation. For the first time since the ill-fated American attempt to rescue the hostages held in Iran, United States forces have intervened, and successfully, against terrorists. This will give a considerable boost to national morale after the anguished impotence revealed both in Iran and this summer in Beirut. It might also heighten the risk of being Americans abroad, but that would in its turn beget within the Administration a much more frequent, confident and militant response to any international terrorist challenge.

On the question of international law any nation has the right to assault the liner to rescue it from hijackers. But once the hijackers had left the ship only the Italians preserved continuing jurisdiction over them to bring them to trial for murder and other crimes committed by them on an Italian ship. The American action in forcing down the Egyptian airliner could only have been legally in order if the Palestinians had hijacked the aircraft. They had not. Moreover the Italians are unlikely to respond to the American request for the Palestinians' extradition since their constitution prohibits extradition to any country which retains the death penalty for the charge on which that extradition would be based.

Finally, we come to the PLO. It seems that any recent Palestinian terrorist act, particularly those committed outside Israel or the West Bank, is carried out by some other fringe group within the broader Palestinian movement. That is held to exonerate Mr Arafat and his Council. Yet these groups, which are multiplying and which often consist of two or three men and considerably more guns, are all Palestinian terrorists. Their connection with the Arafat group is often discounted because they have been shooting at each other. Have we not by now reached the point when these fine-print distinctions are worthless? It has been clear for years that Palestinians engaged in the "armed struggle" find it just as acceptable to shoot each other as they do to shoot Israelis. Indeed the casualties inflicted on Palestinian gunmen by Palestinian gunmen far exceed the number of Israelis they have killed. They also exceed the casualty list of those unfortunate proxy Israelis - the innocent traveller abroad, mostly American, or somebody of Jewish extraction whose crime is too obviously to represent the hated West of which Israel is deemed to be an outpost in a Muslim area.

The two members of the PLO who are coming to London on Monday will have their work cut out to make it clear how the small print enables them to be called "men of peace" and yet continue to belong to the largest agency of international terrorism in the world. After Larnaca and the Achille Lauro the Arafat connection with terrorism looks as suspect as ever - closer to the gunman than the man of peace. Sir Geoffrey will have, to apply all his court room skills in cross-examination to expose these fallacies and to avoid being guilty to the charge of piliplory, or - worse - to being an accessory after the fact. The facts do not sit well with the peace process.

FRAGILE FRIENDSHIPS

Recent anti-Japanese demonstrations in China are a reminder of just how fragile the new-found friendship between two old enemies is, and how encumbered by history. The demonstrations were sparked off by the Japanese Prime Minister's visit to his country's chief military shrine on the fortieth anniversary of the Japanese surrender in August. Mr Nakasone's public homage to Japan's war dead - the first such act by any post-war Japanese prime minister - took place at a time when China, too, was remembering - and again for the first time in public - some of the horrors of the Japanese occupation and the civil war.

Each development was, in itself, a heartening sign that Japan and China alike were beginning to face up to the less glorious aspects of their past. But for the Chinese, the combination proved explosive, and Chinese students gathered to shout "Down with Japanese militarism" and "Down with Japanese economic imperialism" much as their grandparents had done more than half a century before.

China's private resentment of its neighbour's great power and influence had been given public expression once again.

This time, however, the response of both countries' leaders has been very different - and very encouraging. Far from inflaming popular sentiment, they have sought - in public, at least - to ensure that relations are not impaired. China has sent one of its new generation of leaders, Central Committee Secretary Wang Zhaoguo, to Japan, to pledge China's continuing commitment to good relations. Japan, for its part, has gone ahead with the planned visit to Peking by its foreign minister, Shintaro Abe, despite the anti-Japanese demonstrations. And in a gesture which implicitly acknowledges China's complaints about economic imperialism, Japan has agreed to replace a consignment of trucks the Chinese say are defective.

History has always weighed heavy on the relationship between China and Japan. The two Pacific powers, both with a proud imperial tradition, have faired very differently in the twentieth century. Japan has achieved technological advancement and economic power while retaining its veneration for the Emperor and the imperial tradition intact. China, which has foregone its past several times since the downfall of the Manchu dynasty in 1911, nonetheless finds itself still backward and impoverished.

The grounds for resentment are many, and opponents of China's current political direction, both in China and abroad, are only too willing to exploit them. The Soviet Union, in particular, would like nothing better than to see China's 14-year-old rapprochement with Japan set back as far as possible. Yet the normalization of Chinese-Japanese relations is already proving itself to be a major force for stability in the Pacific region, and it is in everyone's interest that it should remain so. The realistic and sensitive way in which the leaders of China and Japan have handled the present difficulties makes this more likely.

Tibet and China

From Sir Jack Longland
Sir, Mr James Mackie (October 5) tells us he has read with interest the Chinese Ambassador's letter (September 20) about his country's treatment of the unfortunate people of Tibet.

The Chinese Ambassador is gracious enough to admit that mistakes were made during the period of Mao's cultural revolution. What in fact happened? With the exception of the Potala in Lhasa and the Tashilhunpo monastery in Tashihunpo, every single Buddhist monastery was razed to the ground and the practice of religion both within and without their walls forbidden, including all the monasteries in which British Everest parties were received with such kindness and hospitality on their way to the mountain.

You have only to look at the photographs of the monastery, town and fort at Shekar Dzong taken during the 1920s and 1930s, and compare them with the devastated ruins left by the Chinese since they decided to celebrate the 20th anniversary of Tibet's fate as an autonomous region under Chinese rule to realise how ruthless and complete the destruction of Tibetan religion and culture has been.

It may or may not be true that the Tibetans, belatedly, have been allowed their religious freedom. But the devastation remains: priceless buildings, manuscripts, frescoes and painted banners all mindlessly destroyed, including those at the Rungbuk monastery, a few miles from Everest itself, where successive expeditions were greeted, blessed and entertained by the holy and charming Head Lama.

The Chinese record is despicable, and no amount of fudging can now erase it.

JACK LONGLAND
Bridgway,
Bakewell, Derbyshire.

Passenger pigeons

From Mrs Ann Welch
Sir, Our pigeon (letters, September 17, 24, October 3) tried to land on our boat at dawn seven miles east of Dartmouth, fell in the sea, bounced himself out, and made the deck. He took my favourite sheltered corner of the cockpit and insisted on being fed chocolate biscuits, even having to be chased out of the cabin in his search for more.

That evening we arrived in Weymouth in fog and he spent the night on a nearby chimney, returning for breakfast, but when we showed no signs of sailing he abandoned us for a large French yacht - on passage to Dartmouth.

Yours sincerely,
ANN WELCH,
14 Upper Old Park Lane,
Farnham,
Surrey,
October 4.

Bringing cities to terms with reality

From the Chairman of Council of the Town and Country Planning Association

Sir, That town planning is out of favour is self-evident as our cities burn and reference is made to it. Scarcely a day goes by without something to say: something surprising.

Planning is in disgrace because through notions such as "overspill" and mathematical modelling it pandered to the mechanistic mentality that had allowed our meaningless urban deserts to emerge. Thus, the garden cities movement let itself be taken for a ride by post-war governments which used new towns as vehicles for public housing policies. But it was a very short ride, for only a tiny proportion of those who quit the cities were housed in new towns. Simultaneously, other governments perverted the green belt - already antiquated by the new-found mobility of car ownership - by grotesque extensions of its boundaries, as an instrument of privilege for those who had shaken the dust of the cities off their feet. It was left to other countries to take account of the changing form of those cities.

Planners condoned all this, for they had sold their birthright for a mess of the Establishment's pottage. They are given their place in the mechanistic scheme of things. Small wonder, then, that the neo-urban fashion for "urbanity" meekly allied itself to the power game, which used the urban poor as pawns in the drive for high-rise development - that vast malinvestment in the concrete jungle with which we are now inescapably burdened.

It took the gas explosion, which not only ripped open the fabric of Roman Point, but let out the voices of those incarcerated in a thousand similar structures, crying "We have had enough", to bring that process to an end.

For this gross act of inhumanity even Doszade, the prophet of urbanism, repented before he died. Evelyn Shap, the permanent secretary of the responsible department, likewise admitted guilt; even Keith Joseph, the minister who most lent himself to it, had the humility to apologise - though apparently not considering this should henceforth debar him from public life.

Only from the media, which had fomented the whole process, has there come no recognition of any responsibility. But then, the media are themselves a creature of the city as we know it.

So what has town planning still to say? Surely, it has to hold up the image of our burning cities to those who use them only to pursue their private business and wealth. "This is the mirror of the values you hold: look and weep!" For the birthright of planning is to see things as a whole, and our cities have come to their present formless pass as the residue of centuries of fragmented individualism.

You will say, no doubt, that this is not very constructive; that it does not solve the problem. But it is typical of our illusions that there are mechanistic solutions to all problems. Some tragedies, rather, like a bereavement, are only to be endured. Yet any such enduring may also bring about a change in its subject. And if change is to be brought about in the present, it must surely lie in an abdication of central power, particularly the Treasury's - which has reduced local life to a mere collection of parts, with no comprehension of the wholeness of which that life needs to consist.

The crisis of the cities is ultimately a crisis of our constitution, which more and more cuts us off from all the poetry of living to which humanity has a right.

Yours faithfully,
MAURICE ASH,
Chairman of Council,
Town and Country Planning Association,
17 Carlton House Terrace, SW1,
October 9.

From Mr Nicolas Walter

Sir, Recent events in our cities recall what W. H. Auden wrote at the beginning of the Second World War in "September 1, 1939". The unmentionable odour of death offends the October rather than the September night this time, but most of the poem is as true now as it was then - right down to the windmill, militant trash important persons shout.

Once again we are reminded that those to whom evil is done do evil in return, and that we must love one another or die. Poets may not be the acknowledged legislators of the world, but they sometimes see it more clearly than all the professional commentators. Perhaps it is time to start listening.

NICOLAS WALTER,
88 Islington High Street, NI.

Heart of the matter

From Professor M. F. Oliver

Sir, You reported part of my address to the British Association on the diet heart question, and now your correspondent, Dr Le Fanu (feature, October 11), has referred to my views. To suggest that medical opinion is "passionately divided" over the relation of diet to heart disease only increases the public's confusion. Such high emotions should have no place in our attempts to understand and control the very complex problem of heart disease, where the greatest need is more research.

While there is strong circumstantial evidence from many experimental, biochemical and epidemiological studies that reduction of dietary saturated fat might reduce the incidence of heart attacks, this is not overwhelming as Professor Crawford (October 7) evidently believes. Large and costly attempts to demonstrate such reduction have not been successful except in those with very high blood cholesterol levels, possibly because of poor compliance to the strict diet necessary or because dietary changes were made too late in adult life.

Many of us are unwilling, therefore, to be coerced into supporting the wishful thinking and exaggerated claims of some health promoters, who are making the public feel guilty if they do not change their eating habits. Nevertheless, some reduction in the saturated fat content of our diet makes sense, particularly in those at risk for heart attacks, and this was carefully spelt out in the Coma (Committee on Medical Aspects of Food Policy) report of which I was a signatory to all clauses and is reiterated in the recent Joint Advisory Committee on Nutritional Education report.

Yours truly,
M. F. OLIVER,
University of Edinburgh,
Department of Medicine,
Cardiovascular Research Unit,
High Robson Building,
George Square,
Edinburgh,
October 7.

Liberal fact-finding

From the President of the Liberal Party

Sir, Before Norman Tebbit's oft-repeated myth that in February, 1974, the Liberals "let Harold Wilson in" gains any more credence, I wonder whether you would allow me to enlighten your readers with the facts.

For one thing, the Liberal and Conservative MPs elected in February, 1974, did not even make up a majority in the House of Commons. A Lib-Cons coalition would have been the minority Government with all the insecurity that entails.

Moreover, it would have been foolish for the Liberals, with only 14 MPs, to have entered into a full coalition with the Conservatives, who had 297 MPs. It would have been impossible for the Liberals to have exerted much influence in such a situation; with an imbalance of this enormity, an agreement along the lines of the Lib-Lab pact, where the Liberals gave qualified support from opposition, would have been preferable. This offer was rejected by the Conservatives.

Far from accusing the Liberals of letting Labour in, Mr Tebbit should look at the record of his own party after the February, 1974, election. In the debate on Labour's programme following the Queen's Speech, the only amendment selected by the Speaker for discussion and division was that tabled by the Conservative Opposition. This criticised the Government for its lack of a policy on incomes.

When the debate ended on March 18, not only did the Tories allow their own amendment to be defeated without a vote: they also abstained on the main motion giving general support to the Queen's Speech. The fourteen Liberal MPs could not have defeated the Government on their own!

Yours faithfully,
DAVID PENHALIGON, President,
The Liberal Party,
House of Commons,
October 8.

Gobbledynuke

From Mrs C. P. Hall

Sir, Those who, like the Master of Churchill College (October 10), find themselves "increasingly puzzled by the local authority areas describing themselves as nuclear free", are perhaps not aware that that designation indicates that the authority in question is prepared to try to prevent the passage of dangerous quantities of radioactive materials through the, normally, populous area for which it is responsible.

When one considers that cruise missiles have been sighted travelling along the Oxford by-pass, a road on which accidents have been known to happen, and when one also considers that it has not been possible to establish whether or not the missiles have been furnished with warheads at the time, one can concede that the attempt by a local authority to protect civilians in peacetime from an unacceptable hazard, even if naive by the standards of sophisticated duplicity practised by those who generate the hazard, may nevertheless be regarded as the act of a democratically-elected body with the courage to take its responsibilities seriously - even if one views the matter from a Cambridge college.

Yours faithfully,
CYNTHIA HALL,
45 Ramsay Hall,
Rushmore Road,
Reading,
Berkshire,
October 10.

Value for money in running NHS

From the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Health

Sir, For the second time within a month you publish a letter from Professor Millard, of St George's Hospital Medical School (October 5) attacking the policy of competitive tendering in the National Health Service.

I believe Professor Millard's unwarranted assertions should not pass without comment as they could cause needless worry to hospital patients and their relatives.

Of course it is important that proper standards should be maintained in the domestic, catering and laundry services of our hospitals. That is why health authorities, with their rapidly improving management skills, agree the tasks to be provided under a domestic services contract with other staff concerned, such as doctors and nurses, before drawing up the specification and going out to tender.

The sort of activities mentioned by Professor Millard, such as serving drinks and food, looking after flowers, and other ward housekeeping duties, are frequently written into contracts. There is certainly no reason why a contractor's employee should not work as a member of the ward team.

It is important that we get the best value from the almost £1 billion a year which is spent on hospital support services. There are already a number of successes from competitive tendering that show our policy can lead to very worthwhile savings, whilst standards are maintained.

At St Helier Hospital, in Sutton, a domestic services contract is saving £239,000 and the management say that the hospital has never been cleaner. At Westminster Hospital the savings are £651,000 a year, at Norwich £447,000 and at Hammer-smith Hospital £570,000. At the London Hospital the in-house service has won the job at a saving of £256,000 a year.

Nationally this policy has already produced savings worth £19 million a year. The money saved can be used to develop services for patients. For example, Norwich Health Authority is employing an additional psycho-geriatrician and additional school nurses and opening extra beds for the elderly.

It would not be in the interests of patients to abandon the policy as Professor Millard suggests; nor would it be in the interest of the taxpayer, whose contribution to our health service has increased in real terms by 20 per cent since 1978.

Yours faithfully,
RAY WHITNEY,
Department of Health and Social Security,
Alexander Fleming House,
Elephant & Castle, SE1,
October 9.

Sound money policies

From Mr J. R. Sargent

Sir, For those whose doctrine turns out to be false, it is always a temptation to redefine its content. You yield to this in your leading article ("We are all monetarists now" October 3) portraying monetarism as merely a belief in sound money policies as a means of fighting inflation. Such a belief is held by many non-monetarists.

The monetarism which became fashionable in the 1970s, and which some economists persuaded Mrs Thatcher to believe, asserted much more. This was that sound money policies could be used to fight inflation with only transitional effects on the level of output and employment.

This belief, the essence of monetarism, clearly is discredited. Although the economy has been growing at something like its long-term rate for three years or so, it has been doing so at a substantially higher level of unemployment than before 1979.

To say that "we are all monetarists now" is not unlike Cardinal Hume proclaiming that because we are all against sin, we are all Roman Catholics.

Yours etc,
J. R. SARGENT,
Trenton House,
Fulbrook,
Burford, Oxfordshire,
October 5.

Echoes of thunder

From Mr David Holbrook

Sir, On page 8 of your issue of today the history of The Times is discussed with respect, and your Literary Editor reports that "The Times has had its finest hours when it has been a radical, campaigning, bloody-minded paper." On page 9 you printed one of those articles which have now become customary in The Times, eulogising the private lives of "successful" pop stars, in which, in this instance, the prurience is repulsive ("Bailey always says to me, 'Look at the camera as if you're being...'") - and, in terms of the effect on the relationship with the reader, trivialising.

The serious bearing of a newspaper like The Times must surely be undermined by the strange kind of obsession - your feature articles betray with a certain insignificance minority of figures in such worlds of entertainment. Yet one clear feature of the present Times is that no comment or protest about this kind of triviality and deference to the vices of exploitative publicity is ever published from any reader.

This itself is surely a mark of what has happened to a great newspaper since the days of which Philip Howard was writing.

Yours etc,
DAVID HOLBROOK,
Denmore Lodge,
Brunswick Gardens,
Cambridge,
October 4.

THE TIMES ON THIS DAY

OCTOBER 12 1962

The first Vatican Council ("On this Day," May 4) was called by Pope Paul IX and met on December 8, 1868; it was prorogued indefinitely on October 20, 1870. XXIII, elected in 1958, died on June 3, 1963. The Council continued under his successor Paul VI (1963-1978) and was dissolved on December 8, 1965.

ECUMENICAL COUNCIL

From Our Own Correspondent

ROME, Oct. 11
In his address at the magnificent opening ceremony today of the Ecumenical Council in St. Peter's, the Pope said that the Roman Catholic Church intended to meet the needs of the present day by demonstrating the validity of its teachings rather than by condemnations.

The Church had always opposed errors, he said, but nowadays - and he was clearly anxious to set the tone of the assembly at the outset - it preferred to make use of the "medicine of mercy rather than that of severity".

SPECIAL LIGHTING

Within the basilica the special lighting installed to add to the brilliant spectacle illuminated the gold of the roof of the huge nave as well as the rows of bishops, who went to their seats with an almost relentlessly unflinching patience, applauding the Pope as he entered after them on his sedia gestatoria beneath a canopy and fans of ostrich plumes held above him.

He went to his throne placed under Michelangelo's dome, which was alive with the sunlight playing on the intricate design of Bernini's famous baldachin (canopy over the altar). Early in the address the Pope's discourse was in Latin - recalled his account of "the first sudden springing up in our heart and lips" of the simple words "Ecumenical Council". They were uttered, he said, in the presence of the Sacred College of Cardinals on January 25, 1959, on the Feast of the Conversion of St. Paul in the basilica here dedicated to him.

"It was completely unexpected," the Pontiff added, "like a flash of heavenly light, shedding sweetness in eyes and hearts; and at the same time it gave rise to great fervour throughout the world, in expectation of the celebration of the council."

PESSIMISTIC READINGS

Illuminated by the light of this council, the Pope continued, the Church "was confidently trusting would become greater in critical times and gaining the strength of new energies as a result, would look to the future without fear. In fact, by bringing itself up to date where required, and by the wise organization of mutual cooperation, the Church would make men, families, societies, nations, and peoples turn their minds to heavenly things."

Rejecting pessimistic readings of the state of mankind at the opening of the council he went on to describe to the assembly the happy circumstances in which he felt it had been called to meet. In the daily services of his pastoral office he sometimes had to listen, he said, much to his regret, to the opinions of persons who, though burning with zeal, were not endowed with too much sense of discretion or measure.

In these modern times they could see nothing but prevarication and ruin; they said that the people really were gaining the strength of new energies as a result, would look to the future without fear. In fact, by bringing itself up to date where required, and by the wise organization of mutual cooperation, the Church would make men, families, societies, nations, and peoples turn their minds to heavenly things."

Speaking of what was expected from the council to regard to doctrine, the Pope said that, drawing on the wealth of juridical, liturgical, apostolic, and administrative experience, it would wish to transmit the doctrine, pure and integral, without any attenuation or distortion, which, throughout 20 centuries, notwithstanding difficulties and contrasts, has become the common patrimony of man. "It is a patrimony not well received by all, but always a rich treasure available to men of good will."

... was a source of considerable sorrow, he said, to see that the greater part of the human race did not yet participate "in those sources of divine grace which exist in the Catholic Church". He summed up the aim of this Second Vatican Council in the following words:

While bringing together the Church's best energies and striving to have men welcome more favourably the good tidings of salvation, prepares as it were and constitutes our prayer towards that unity of mankind which is required as a necessary foundation in order that the earthly city may be brought to the resemblance of that heavenly city - in St. Augustine's words - "where truth reigns, unity is the law and whose extent is eternity".

Secular salvation

From Mr Malcolm J. C. Addison

Sir, In his article, "Carefully casual" (October 5), Mr Howard mentions the now very common use of "take care" as a valediction.

Is it not interesting, and a commentary, too, upon this secular age, that responsibility now devolves from the Almighty ("good-bye"), from "God be with you" to the individual? Sauve qui peut!

Yours faithfully,
MALCOLM J. C. ADDISON,
2 Pump Cottages,
The Street,
Framfield,
East Sussex,
October 6.

Whacking good idea?

From Mr E. G. Wright

Sir, Without doubt my late headmaster, of blessed memory, would also have taken strike action if faced with obscene graffiti on his school walls, but his striking would have been of an entirely different character.

I am, Sir, yours faithfully,
E. G. WRIGHT,
63 Southbourne Grove,
Bournemouth,
Dorset,
October 10.

THE TIMES Portfolio

From your Portfolio card check your eight share price movements. Add them up to give you your overall total. Check this against the daily dividend figures published on this page. If it matches you have won outright or a share of the total daily prize money. If you are a winner follow the claim procedure on the back of your card.

You must always have your card available when claiming.

STOCK EXCHANGE PRICES

Record end to account

ACCOUNT DAYS: Dealings Begin, Monday. Dealings End, Oct. 25. Contango Day, Oct. 28. Settlement Day, Nov. 4.

Forward bargains are permitted on two previous days.

THE TIMES Portfolio

DAILY DIVIDEND £2,000
WEEKLY DIVIDEND £20,000
Claims required for +43 points
Claims required for +144 points

No.	Company	1985 High	1985 Low	1985 Close	1985 Dividend	1985 Yield	1985 P/E
1	McAlpine (Africa)	445	435	440	12.5	2.8	15.7
2	Crutch (Devel)	115	110	112	1.5	1.3	8.6
3	Imperial	125	120	122	1.5	1.2	10.2
4	Meyer Int	125	120	122	1.5	1.2	10.2
5	Revan	125	120	122	1.5	1.2	10.2
6	Thames (RM)	125	120	122	1.5	1.2	10.2
7	Thames (RM)	125	120	122	1.5	1.2	10.2
8	Thames (RM)	125	120	122	1.5	1.2	10.2
9	Thames (RM)	125	120	122	1.5	1.2	10.2
10	Thames (RM)	125	120	122	1.5	1.2	10.2
11	Thames (RM)	125	120	122	1.5	1.2	10.2
12	Thames (RM)	125	120	122	1.5	1.2	10.2
13	Thames (RM)	125	120	122	1.5	1.2	10.2
14	Thames (RM)	125	120	122	1.5	1.2	10.2
15	Thames (RM)	125	120	122	1.5	1.2	10.2
16	Thames (RM)	125	120	122	1.5	1.2	10.2
17	Thames (RM)	125	120	122	1.5	1.2	10.2
18	Thames (RM)	125	120	122	1.5	1.2	10.2
19	Thames (RM)	125	120	122	1.5	1.2	10.2
20	Thames (RM)	125	120	122	1.5	1.2	10.2
21	Thames (RM)	125	120	122	1.5	1.2	10.2
22	Thames (RM)	125	120	122	1.5	1.2	10.2
23	Thames (RM)	125	120	122	1.5	1.2	10.2
24	Thames (RM)	125	120	122	1.5	1.2	10.2
25	Thames (RM)	125	120	122	1.5	1.2	10.2
26	Thames (RM)	125	120	122	1.5	1.2	10.2
27	Thames (RM)	125	120	122	1.5	1.2	10.2
28	Thames (RM)	125	120	122	1.5	1.2	10.2
29	Thames (RM)	125	120	122	1.5	1.2	10.2
30	Thames (RM)	125	120	122	1.5	1.2	10.2

Please make a note of your daily totals for the weekly dividend of £20,000 in today's newspaper.

MON	TUE	WED	THU	FRI	SAT	SUN

1985 High	1985 Low	1985 Close	1985 Dividend	1985 Yield	1985 P/E

1985 High	1985 Low	1985 Close	1985 Dividend	1985 Yield	1985 P/E

1985 High	1985 Low	1985 Close	1985 Dividend	1985 Yield	1985 P/E

1985 High	1985 Low	1985 Close	1985 Dividend	1985 Yield	1985 P/E

1985 High	1985 Low	1985 Close	1985 Dividend	1985 Yield	1985 P/E

1985 High	1985 Low	1985 Close	1985 Dividend	1985 Yield	1985 P/E

1985 High	1985 Low	1985 Close	1985 Dividend	1985 Yield	1985 P/E

1985 High	1985 Low	1985 Close	1985 Dividend	1985 Yield	1985 P/E

1985 High	1985 Low	1985 Close	1985 Dividend	1985 Yield	1985 P/E

1985 High	1985 Low	1985 Close	1985 Dividend	1985 Yield	1985 P/E

1985 High	1985 Low	1985 Close	1985 Dividend	1985 Yield	1985 P/E

1985 High	1985 Low	1985 Close	1985 Dividend	1985 Yield	1985 P/E

1985 High	1985 Low	1985 Close	1985 Dividend	1985 Yield	1985 P/E

1985 High	1985 Low	1985 Close	1985 Dividend	1985 Yield	1985 P/E

1985 High	1985 Low	1985 Close	1985 Dividend	1985 Yield	1985 P/E

1985 High	1985 Low	1985 Close	1985 Dividend	1985 Yield	1985 P/E

1985 High	1985 Low	1985 Close	1985 Dividend	1985 Yield	1985 P/E

1985 High	1985 Low	1985 Close	1985 Dividend	1985 Yield	1985 P/E

1985 High	1985 Low	1985 Close	1985 Dividend	1985 Yield	1985 P/E

1985 High	1985 Low	1985 Close	1985 Dividend	1985 Yield	1985 P/E

1985 High	1985 Low	1985 Close	1985 Dividend	1985 Yield	1985 P/E

1985 High	1985 Low	1985 Close	1985 Dividend	1985 Yield	1985 P/E

1985 High	1985 Low	1985 Close	1985 Dividend	1985 Yield	1985 P/E

1985 High	1985 Low	1985 Close	1985 Dividend	1985 Yield	1985 P/E

1985 High	1985 Low	1985 Close	1985 Dividend	1985 Yield	1985 P/E

1985 High	1985 Low	1985 Close	1985 Dividend	1985 Yield	1985 P/E

1985 High	1985 Low	1985 Close	1985 Dividend	1985 Yield	1985 P/E

1985 High	1985 Low	1985 Close	1985 Dividend	1985 Yield	1985 P/E

1985 High	1985 Low	1985 Close	1985 Dividend	1985 Yield	1985 P/E

1985 High	1985 Low	1985 Close	1985 Dividend	1985 Yield	1985 P/E

1985 High	1985 Low	1985 Close	1985 Dividend	1985 Yield	1985 P/E

1985 High	1985 Low	1985 Close	1985 Dividend	1985 Yield	1985 P/E

1985 High	1985 Low	1985 Close	1985 Dividend	1985 Yield	1985 P/E

1985 High	1985 Low	1985 Close	1985 Dividend	1985 Yield	1985 P/E

1985 High	1985 Low	1985 Close	1985 Dividend	1985 Yield	1985 P/E

1985 High	1985 Low	1985 Close	1985 Dividend	1985 Yield	1985 P/E

1985 High	1985 Low	1985 Close	1985 Dividend	1985 Yield	1985 P/E

1985 High	1985 Low	1985 Close	1985 Dividend	1985 Yield	1985 P/E

1985 High	1985 Low	1985 Close	1985 Dividend	1985 Yield	1985 P/E

1985 High	1985 Low	1985 Close	1985 Dividend	1985 Yield	1985 P/E

1985 High	1985 Low	1985 Close	1985 Dividend	1985 Yield	1985 P/E

1985 High	1985 Low	1985 Close	1985 Dividend	1985 Yield	1985 P/E

1985 High	1985 Low	1985 Close	1985 Dividend	1985 Yield	1985 P/E

1985 High	1985 Low	1985 Close	1985 Dividend	1985 Yield	1985 P/E

1985 High	1985 Low	1985 Close	1985 Dividend	1985 Yield	1985 P/E

1985 High	1985 Low	1985 Close	1985 Dividend	1985 Yield	1985 P/E

1985 High	1985 Low	1985 Close	1985 Dividend	1985 Yield	1985 P/E

1985 High	1985 Low	1985 Close	1985 Dividend	1985 Yield	1985 P/E

1985 High	1985 Low	1985 Close	1985 Dividend	1985 Yield	1985 P/E

1985 High	1985 Low	1985 Close	1985 Dividend	1985 Yield	1985 P/E

1985 High	1985 Low	1985 Close	1985 Dividend	1985 Yield	1985 P/E

1985 High	1985 Low	1985 Close	1985 Dividend	1985 Yield	1985 P/E

1985 High	1985 Low	1985 Close	1985 Dividend	1985 Yield	1985 P/E

1985 High	1985 Low	1985 Close	1985 Dividend	1985 Yield	1985 P/E

1985 High	1985 Low	1985 Close	1985 Dividend	1985 Yield	1985 P/E

1985 High	1985 Low	1985 Close	1985 Dividend	1985 Yield	1985 P/E

1985 High	1985 Low	1985 Close	1985 Dividend	1985 Yield	1985 P/E

1985 High	1985 Low	1985 Close	1985 Dividend	1985 Yield	1985 P/E

1985 High	1985 Low	1985 Close	1985 Dividend	1985 Yield	1985 P/E

1985 High	1985 Low	1985 Close	1985 Dividend	1985 Yield	1985 P/E

1985 High	1985 Low	1985 Close	1985 Dividend	1985 Yield	1985 P/E

1985 High	1985 Low	1985 Close	1985 Dividend	1985 Yield	1985 P/E

1985 High	1985 Low	1985 Close	1985 Dividend	1985 Yield	1985 P/E

1985 High	1985 Low	1985 Close	1985 Dividend	1985 Yield	1985 P/E

1985 High	1985 Low	1985 Close	1985 Dividend	1985 Yield	1985 P/E

1985 High	1985 Low	1985 Close	1985 Dividend	1985 Yield	1985 P/E

1985 High	1985 Low	1985 Close	1985 Dividend	1985 Yield	1985 P/E

1985 High	1985 Low	1985 Close	1985 Dividend	1985 Yield	1985 P/E

1985 High	1985 Low	1985 Close	1985 Dividend	1985 Yield	1985 P/E

1985 High
-----------

Edited by Lorna Bourke

FAMILY MONEY/1

THE TAX-FREE INCOME PLAN

HOW YOU CAN TAKE INCOME ON CAPITAL COMPLETELY FREE OF PERSONAL TAX FROM YOUR ACCUMULATED SAVINGS

Your opportunity to invest in a ♦ Top Performing ♦ Tax-Efficient ♦ Secure ♦ Flexible Investment Income Plan in which everyone from 18-65 is entitled to participate ♦ It's simple in operation, with no management or investment decisions and minimal paperwork. With the Government encouraging individuals to make their own arrangements for financial independence, it is essential to invest your income and any surplus capital in a way that will take full advantage of tax-free growth and income available now to everyone aged 18-65.

For full details just fill in and return the coupon.

CANNON

To Cannon Assurance Limited
FREEPOST
1 Olympic Way, Wembley, HA9 0BR

Please send me full details of the new... (tick applicable to 18yr)

Name (Mr/Ms/Mrs/Miss) _____

Address _____

Postcode _____

Country houses to pull in the Americans

BUSINESS EXPANSION

A clutch of new business expansion scheme companies is on offer this week - several of them asset-backed, ranging from a wine company to a country house hotel chain.

Fine Country Homes is a BES company set up to buy, restore and operate listed country houses of note as up-market hotels. The company will initially acquire two houses in Suffolk, Flemings Hall at Beddingfield and Box Hall at Shottisham.

The prospectus shows some beautiful glossy pictures of Flemings Hall. Both the properties are fully restored and furnished, and available for immediate use.

The target market is American tourists. Discussions are under way with travel agents in the United States and until a deal is struck, Fine Country Homes will be marketed through the prestigious English Country Cottages agency, which has handled the properties until now.

The two properties will be bought into the company at £130,000 for Box Hall and £350,000 for Flemings Hall, prices verified as fair valuations by both Strutt & Parker and Knight Frank & Rutley.

Furnishings have been valued at £38,345 and will be bought by the company at that price. If the company purchases other properties, priority will be given to listed buildings.

Management displays considerable experience in this field. The managing director, Rowan Menzies, has been responsible for the restoration of more than 100 properties in Britain and abroad. He is the managing director of Temple-down, which operates the Cafe Marengo in Regent Street, and he was responsible for the purchase and restoration of Flemings Hall.

One of the non-executive directors is Leonard Burrows, who is a director and general manager of the highly successful Blakes Hotel owned by the actress Anouska Hempel, now Mrs Mark Weinberg.

Profitability will depend very much on the level of occupancy and the prospectus gives no guidelines on what level is required to break even. However, with solid asset backing like this, it looks a BES company worth considering. Sponsors are Anthony Weiler & Co.

The stockbrokers Greenwells are lending their name as sponsors to the BES company, the Weiss Gallery.

The company is looking for £1 million and will deal in paintings, furniture and other works of art, specializing in Flemings Hall, a 'country house of note', with a £350,000 price tag

Elizabethan and Jacobean portraits, a field in which Mark Weiss, the managing director, has built up considerable expertise over 13 years. Premises are at 1b Albermarle Street in central London. Mr Weiss's parents, who have successfully run an art gallery in Essex, are also directors of the company.

Much of the company's success depends on the expertise of the Weiss family and in particular Mark Weiss as the assets backing the investors' £1 million will be the works of art and furniture he purchases.

The Albermarle Street premises have been acquired on a 25-year lease with five-year rent reviews and the initial annual rent is £17,500. If Mr Weiss gets it wrong, then profits could be reduced, or even non-existent.

Mr Weiss is aiming at paintings in the £5,000 to £50,000 range but if only the minimum of £500,000 is raised, he will have to concentrate on the lower end of the market if he is going to have a reasonable amount of stock.

Two art advisers, Sir Roy Strong, the director of the Victoria & Albert Museum, and Sir David Piper, have been retained by the company. Minimum investment is £2,000 and the closing date for applications is November 14.

The third on the list of new BES companies is Hitech Lighting, a manufacturer and distributor of low-voltage lighting products. Sponsors are Lancashire & Yorkshire Investment Management Ltd, which is aiming to raise £600,000 for the company.

It now manufactures low-voltage lighting.

Minimum investment is £1,050, and the closing date for applications has not been fixed.

The remaining new launches include the Winebank company and two BES funds investing in a range of small companies. For both, it is their second BES fund.

Gresham Trust's fund gives virtually no indication of the sort of companies in which it will invest other than that it will be looking for capital growth and may invest in start-up situations. Although this is Gresham Trust's second fund, it has not seen fit to send a report on how the first one has done.

Castleforth, which is run by the Royal Bank of Scotland and stockbrokers Laing and Cruikshank, has, however, included a report of its first fund, though it gives no indication of how well the companies in which it has invested are doing - except in the case of Trathens, the Plymouth-based coach operator which has gone into liquidation.

This represented 11 per cent of Castleforth Fund's money. The last BES company, Winebank, is hoping to raise £2 million to invest in fine wines.

There have been several similar schemes and the idea is that investors' money is backed by the wine.

Winebank has two Masters of Wine on its board, John Davies, the managing director, and Nicholas Clarke, who is a non-executive director and is retained as a consultant.

The scheme looks very similar to others that have been successfully launched. The only question mark hanging over such schemes is whether or not there will be a flood of fine wine on to the market in five years' time when these BES wine companies may be forced to liquidate their stocks in order to give investors a way out.

While fine wine is generally an appreciating asset, a sudden glut on the market could depress prices in what is a very competitive market.

The directors of the company issue a mild warning to this effect in the prospectus.

WIN £2,500 in the Times-Hill Samuel Young Financial Writer of the Year competition

● Fancy yourself as a financial writer? Then don't miss next Saturday's Family Money in The Times.

● Hill Samuel Investment Services is sponsoring an essay competition in conjunction with The Times to find the Young Financial Writer of the Year. The prize for the winner is £2,500 with £500 and £250 for the runners-up. The winning entry and those of the runners-up will be published in The Times Family Money section.

● To be eligible you must be under 25 and not earning your living as a writer but other than that, virtually anyone can enter - and you don't necessarily have to know a great deal about money.

● Next week's issue of Family Money will carry the entry form and rules and it will be published again on the following three Saturdays with a closing date for entry of October 31.

● Don't miss your copy of The Times.

They say: "The price of wine can fluctuate depending on the levels of supply and demand. Sponsors are Baden-Powell, Chilcot & Co.

Investors in all BES schemes are entitled to tax relief at their highest rate - paid on up to £40,000 invested.

Lorna Bourke

YORKSHIRE BUILDING SOCIETY PRESENTS

Monthly income and higher interest make it the classic investment

It's the classic investment when you want the security of high interest paid to you as monthly income. And Classic Key interest is high - 9.50% net, is a full 2.50% above the prevailing building society Paid-up Share rate.

It's the classic investment when you want even higher interest. Instead of monthly income, you can have the interest added to your account each month. So your investment grows each month - to earn even more interest. Adding up to a compounded annual rate of 9.92% net.

You can open a Classic Key Account with any amount from $500 to £100,000. And, you can withdraw your money by giving just 90 days' written notice. Simply call in at any of our 700 branches and agencies or complete the coupon.

MONTHLY INCOME RATE

9.50% NET

EQUALS

13.57%

GROSS EQUIVALENT*

COMPOUNDED ANNUAL RATE

9.92% NET

EQUALS

14.17%

GROSS EQUIVALENT*

*All interest rates are variable as is the differential. *For income taxpayers.

Head Office: Yorkshire House, Westgate, Bradford BD1 2AU. Tel: (0274) 734823.

700 branches and agencies throughout the country. Member of the Building Societies Association. Member of the Building Society Investors' Protection Scheme. Total assets exceed £1,600,000,000. A member of Lank.

Complete this coupon and return it to the FREEPOST address shown below.

☐ I wish to invest in a Classic Key Account and enclose my cheque for £ _____ ($500 minimum).

☐ Please send me further information on your Classic Key Account.

Name (Mr/Mrs/Miss) _____

Address _____

T12/10

When you want a better investment
YORKSHIRE
Building Society
Has the key

To: Marketing Department,
Yorkshire Building Society, FREEPOST,
Yorkshire House, Westgate, Bradford BD1 1BR

Special pre-launch offer!
106%

From a major European insurer associated with a leading British merchant bank. This is a specially enhanced allocation to mark the introduction of a new Bond (105% for investments of less than £10,000). For details contact:

M. J. Patrick:
Clarke & Puckett Life and Pension Consultants Ltd., Clarke House,
Canterbury Kent.
Tel: 0227 451717

Did YOU make money in British Telecom?

Then you'll be glad to hear that there's many, many more new issues like that, including British Gas coming up, some of them even more profitable. Generously spreading the private investor almost always makes money in new issues and there have been quite literally scores of opportunities over the past year. Thousands of people already make good, steady profits investing in new issues and often nothing else... year after year. They're not especially clever or anything like that, just well informed and in the right place at the right time. The New Issue Share Guide is the country's only specialist publication devoted exclusively to new issues. Drop us a line today and we'll send you FREE details, then you too can enjoy the simple secret that already enables hundreds of investors to maximise those profits... safely... in this exciting area of the stockmarket.

To: New Issue Share Guide Ltd, 3 Fleet Street, London EC4A 1AU

Name _____

Address _____

Postcode _____

NT12-10

The Gresham Trust Business Expansion Fund 1985/86

(A fund approved by the Inland Revenue under the terms of the Finance Act 1984)

Following the successful launch of The Gresham Trust Business Expansion Fund 1984/85, announced in November 1984, which raised approximately £1.72m and was fully invested by 5th April 1985, Gresham Trust is now launching a fund for the tax year 1985/86.

WHAT THE FUND OFFERS INVESTORS:

- The opportunity to invest in a diversified portfolio of unquoted ordinary shares.
- The benefit of Gresham's long experience of investment in unquoted companies and the investment opportunities made available to Gresham because of its established reputation.
- Tax relief at the highest marginal rate of tax and the chance of a high after tax return.

Applications, which will be dealt with in strict order of receipt, should reach Gresham Trust not later than 1st November 1985.

The minimum investment is £2,000; maximum £40,000.

For a copy of the Memorandum and application form, please return the completed coupon. Participants should recognise that investment in unquoted companies carries a high risk as well as the chance of high rewards. Before deciding to proceed with an application, individuals should take financial advice taking account of the risks involved and their own financial circumstances and tax position.

This advertisement does not constitute an invitation to participate in the Fund; subscriptions must be made on the terms of the application form contained in the Memorandum.

To: Gresham Trust p.l.c.,
Barrington House,
Gresham Street, London EC2V 7HE
(Telephone: 01-606 6474)

Please send me a copy of the Memorandum inviting participation in The Gresham Trust Business Expansion Fund 1985/86.

Name _____

Address _____

Gresham Trust p.l.c.

مكازم التجميل

FAMILY MONEY/2

Bargain rates on home loans from Chase de Vere

Home loans up to 90 per cent of the property's value at the knockdown price of only 12.5 per cent are available from financial consultant Chase de Vere. "We have a limited amount of money available but the rates are very competitive," Paul Marks, of Chase de Vere, said.

Minimum loan is £30,000 with a maximum of £150,000 and the income multiple is generous, too. Maximum loan can be three times the main earner's salary plus the partner's salary. For a couple with the husband earning £15,000 and the wife earning £10,000 this means they can borrow up to £55,000.

Repayment, endowment and pension-linked loans are available and there is no premium above the 12.5 per cent rate. But if you opt for the repayment loan you will have to pay a 1 per cent arrangement fee.

Mr Marks is also arranging a further tranche of money for his highly successful commercial mortgage scheme. Borrowers can buy property for letting, borrowing up to 70 per cent of the value of the property and the only requirement is that the rental income must cover the loan repayments.

Minimum loan is £50,000 and the interest rate is 13.75 per cent and you can borrow for up to 25 years with a normal domestic mortgage. Full details of both schemes are obtainable from Chase de Vere, 125 Pall Mall, SW1 (01-830 7242).

Help for mothers in new lifeline

"Child benefit is to most mothers, myself included, the only 'personal' income that we have. It is a very important independent income for the majority of mothers." This is the view of one mother when questioned on child benefit. Mother's Lifeline is the title of a review of child benefit and what mothers spend it on, by Allison Walsh and Ruth Lister of the Child Poverty Action Group.

The book makes fascinating reading. For many mothers it is their only income. For this reason I think it is important that it can be obtained easily every week. It is there during the week when the money has run out at the weekend, "was the view of another mother who took part in the survey. About 85 per cent of child benefit is spent on food or clothes for the children.

Copies of the book are available, price £1.95 including postage, from Child Poverty Action Group, 1 Macklin Street, London WC2B 2NN.

Money and fun

Managing your money is important but it is rarely fun. Money Matters has succeeded in bringing a little lightheartedness to the subject by combining a fashion show from Susie Faux of Wardrobe, with a seminar on managing your money, to take place on Thursday October 24.

"Susie will be presenting her elegant clothes and will be bringing with her one of London's most exciting hairdressing and make up teams," says the Money Matters publicity. Other speakers at the seminar include the usual line-up of a stockbroker, a solicitor, a chartered accountant and a banker.

The fee for the seminar which includes morning coffee and lunch is £35. Full details are obtainable from Money Matters, Premier House, 308 Ballards Lane, North Finchley, London N12 8LU.

Perks for high earners

"This week's rise in employers' National Insurance Contributions should concentrate minds on how best to remunerate high earning staff. Extra perks seem to be the most likely solution as these should escape the higher National Insurance levy. And if you want information or guidance on the tax treatment of these fringe benefits, get hold of the latest publication from the Institute of Chartered Accountants - Fringe Benefits.

The digest contains a detailed guide to the current UK taxation treatment of benefits and perks and also deals with the provision that apply only to directors and higher-paid employees. Motor cars and fuel, beneficial loan arrangements and share acquisitions are covered, as well as recent amendments to the law concerning the provision of scholarships and payment of directors' PAYE.

The booklet is available, price £5, publication number 5738, from the Institute of Chartered Accountants, Gloucester House, 389 Silbury Boulevard, Wilton Gate East, Central Milton Keynes MK9 2PL.

Well protected

If you are buying electrical appliances from the East Midlands Electricity Board, you can also obtain five-year's protection from repair bills. All the appliances sold by the board carry a full 12 month guarantee on parts and labour.

Appliance Supercover takes care of the costs of all functional parts and labour "so you are covered for breakdown, resulting from electrical and mechanical component faults. In addition, for breakdowns of this type on a refrigerator, freezer or fridge freezer, you are covered for up to £150 worth of ruined food," said Bob Feeley.

Customers who buy the insurance cover simply ring the board's district office, if an appliance does go wrong. The board is financing the scheme itself so there is no worry about the insurer going bust.

The five-year extended warranty is not cheap. Premium for a dishwasher is £60, cooker, £40, microwave oven £27 and automatic washer, £30. Details from East Midlands Electricity Board Showrooms.

Red tape cuts

The Inland Revenue is trying to cut back on paperwork by offering a dispensation to employers who provide benefits in kind. Under the current rules, employers have to fill in a form P11D listing all expenses payments and benefits in kind, paid to directors and employees earning more than £8,500, including the value of the benefits. This is to enable the taxman to work out the current amount of tax payable by these employees.

But some routine expenses payments and benefits, for example, expenses on business travel in Britain, are commonly wholly allowable as deductions in the employee's hands so that one cancels the other, giving rise to no extra tax liability for the employee. In these circumstances, the Revenue is now issuing a dispensation - the employer need no longer show those expenses on the P11D.

Details: Booklet 480 available free from any tax office.

BT's City link

For followers of shares on the United Securities Market (USM) a new service from Citycall, British Telecom's telephone-based financial information service, should prove useful. The new Citycall USM report will be available if you dial 0066 66069. It covers the most active and interesting shares giving details of price movements and, in some instances, a brief analysis of the reason for the activity. The report also monitors the progress of recent USM issues.

Citycall is expanding the Leading Shares Report to include all the 100 shares in the FT-SE index. The shares will be covered in two bulletins A to K or 0066 66069 and L to Z on 0066 66072. Make a note of these telephone numbers.

New advice service

Four former Treasury Law executives have formed their own investment advisory service, Fairchicks. Their first publication is a review of capital transfer tax and the mitigation schemes that are available. The review includes 10 capital transfer tax avoidance tips and an outline of the reliefs and exemptions available.

Copies of the review are available from Fairchicks, 54 Pall Mall, SW1Y 5JH. Tel: 01-839 3182.

Guide for trusts

Should I put the money in trust? is a common enquiry from worried readers, anxious to protect their assets from the tax man, a former spouse or an irresponsible offspring. "The answer may well be yes, but to find out if it is worthwhile get hold of accountant Dearden Farrow's latest booklet, The Use of Trusts."

"English trust law developed its unique course from the days of the Crusades when the departing warrior locked up his wife and daughter in chastity belts and his estates in trust. This enabled him to go off to play soldiers in the knowledge that he had taken care of the important things at the estate during his absence," the introduction says.

Copies are available from Dearden Farrow, 1 Serjeant's Inn, London EC4Y 1JD. Tel: 01-353 2000.

Bonus on cheques

Thomas Cook travellers' cheques are now available in all branches of the newly merged Alliance & Leicester Building Society and the bonus is that they are commission free.

The travellers' cheques are offered in both sterling and US dollars. The normal commission charge is 1 to 1.5 per cent. Other societies which offer commission free travellers' cheques are the Leeds Permanent and Coventry Economic. Boston Trust and Savings also offers travellers' cheques commission free. Details from the societies' branches.

Covenant kit

Students being maintained at university by their parents under a Deed of Covenant are now costing the Inland Revenue an estimated £55 million a year - and the figure could be higher. But despite the growing loss of revenue, the Revenue has just produced a full kit, setting out exactly how to save yourself 30 per cent and make a Deed of Covenant to a student offspring.

The kit is free from local tax offices and contains a standard Deed of Covenant document, tax reclaim forms and the form the parent needs to confirm that the payments have been made. Full instructions on how much to covenant, and the tax treatment of covenants and tax rebates in relation to a student's income and earnings are included.

"American Express... That'll do nicely!"

The risks of growing companies

The thought that by expanding your business you could be putting it in jeopardy, is not one that strikes many entrepreneurs. But expansion can cause considerable problems, according to accountant Adam Mills who has written a booklet on the subject, Managing the Growing Business.

The biggest headache is identified by Mr Mills as "resources stress" - the pressure on people, premises, plant, organization and almost always on cash.

He then goes on to look at what he describes as "growth destination". Where is the company going in two or three years as a consequence of decisions being taken now? Is that the optimum destination for the business and what course alteration should be made now or in the near future? These are questions he poses and to which he suggests possible solutions.

The booklet also covers planning the gritty gritty of growth and expansion including acquisitions. It also looks at rewarding those who initiated the expansion and those who sustained it. "How does one keep the executives of the expanding business 'jumping for the jelly beans'?"

Copies of the booklet are available from Spicer and Pepler, Friary Court, 65 Crutched Friars, London, EC3N 2NP.

EVERY BIG BANK HAS A CASUALTY LIST

Will you or your investments be among them? Is it worth the risk? If you are worried you will not be getting the attention you deserve, then you should talk to McDonald Wheeler now.

Our advice and attention to your personal investment needs can give you true growth ahead of inflation with least exposure to risk, and despite what the markets are doing.

We can show you performance via a low-risk fund that is currently showing a gain of 14-23% since January 1st. Or if you're more adventurous, ask about the fund that is showing a gain of 23-19%.

MCDONALD WHEELER
FUND MANAGEMENT LIMITED
We talk sense about money!

I'd like to talk. Please send me your free booklet. (No stamp required)

Name _____

Address _____

Post Code _____ Phone no. _____

20-22 Wadding Street, Canterbury, Kent CT1 2BR Canterbury (0227) 457038 (24 hours)

Even if you're not earning £100,000 a year, for £1,000 a year you could retire on it.

Whether you're interested in a top-up plan to supplement your company pension, or arranging a private pension, for a relatively small outlay the returns on an Equitable plan can be quite staggering.

We offer plans for two categories of people. One for those in a company pension scheme, and one for those who aren't.

Left to arrange your own pension? If you're a partner, self-employed, or not in a company scheme, these examples of the kind of return you could expect should prove interesting.

Man aged 30
Tax bracket 30%
Annual net outlay £1,000
Gross pension from 65's £145,863
£170,173

In your company's pension scheme? If your company pension will be less than two thirds of your final salary, and if your contributions are less than 1% of your current salary, you should be entitled by the Inland Revenue, to a top-up pension. Bear in mind that these examples are in addition to your company pension.

Man aged 32
Tax bracket 30%
Annual net outlay £1,000
Gross pension from 65's £110,728
£129,182

If you'd like to retire on the end of pension you're only dreaming about earning cut out the coupon or speak to us directly on 01-606 6611.

*Ignore: suppose that current immediate annuities apply at the time, and that current bonus rates including terminal bonus are maintained throughout. Future bonuses depend on future profits and cannot be guaranteed. Because of the form of current pension arrangements, the schemes are not available to Civil Servants or employees of local government authorities.

To: The Equitable Life, FREEPOST, 4 Coleman Street, London EC2B 2JT. I would welcome further details of The Equitable's retirement plans. I am self-employed. I am an employee not in a company pension scheme. I want to top-up benefits from my company's pension scheme. I would also welcome details on retirement plans linked up to investment funds. (All residents only)

Name (Mr, Mrs, Miss) _____ Address _____

Postcode _____ Date of Birth _____

Signature _____ Date _____

Please tick box to receive the booklet on the Equitable range of Unit Trusts and Monthly Savings Plan

The Equitable Life

The oldest mutual life office in the world.

2 INITIAL OFFERS OF UNITS AT 50p UNTIL 29th OCTOBER 1985

The big news on Hambros Unit Trusts.

3. We're introducing Hambros Income and Protection Scheme

Most people selecting investments have to strike a balance between three priorities: present income, income growth and capital value.

We have created a combination of three trusts specifically designed to meet these objectives. We call it the Hambros Income and Protection Scheme. It combines our two new Hambros unit trusts with the existing Hambros Equity Income Trust, an equity portfolio aimed at achieving growing income from a starting level 20% above the market average. The benefits are clear:

- Six income payments each year, spread evenly through the year
- An average estimated gross yield of 5.4%
- The expectation of above average income growth in the future
- The capital value that comes from investment in asset-rich U.K. companies with strong international operations
- The confidence which comes from having your investments managed by one of the best-known names in the City of London

Your investment into the Hambros Income and Protection Scheme will be divided equally between the three unit trusts. Hambros High Income Trust and Hambros Reserves and Assets Trust are new trusts, and investments made prior to the close of the initial offer period will be made at 50p per unit. Hambros Equity Income Trust is an existing trust and investments into this will be made at the price ruling on the day of purchase.

We believe that our latest news contains options and ideas of interest to all serious investors. Whether investing through the Income and Protection Scheme or direct into one of the new trusts, to take advantage of the terms of the initial offers, please ensure your completed coupon and cheque reach us by 29th October 1985.

If you have one, seek the advice of your professional investment adviser, who will know of us and our products.

Remember the price of units and the income from them can go down as well as up. Unit trusts should generally be regarded as long term investments.

1. Our unit trusts are changing their name - to Hambros

Since its inception Hambros Bank Unit Trust Managers Ltd has managed the H.B.L. unit trusts. The individual trusts have now all been renamed. Look for Hambros Unit Trusts.

2. We're launching two new unit trusts

We have formed two new unit trusts with contrasting but complementary objectives. Both are available at a fixed price of 50p per unit for a limited introductory period which will close not later than 29th October 1985.

HAMBROS RESERVES &amp; ASSETS TRUST

The investment objective of the Trust is to secure long term capital growth from a portfolio of companies, primarily U.K. registered, selected for the protective strength of their underlying reserves and assets, and the scale and quality of their international operations. Investment in foreign companies is initially likely to be limited in order to contain currency risks.

Asset-rich companies are less vulnerable than the average in uncertain and volatile markets. In addition, where assets are under-employed, a company's shares can frequently be acquired at a discount on their underlying asset value. The subsequent adjustment of such price anomalies or the effects of takeover interest can boost capital growth prospects.

HAMBROS HIGH INCOME TRUST

The Managers aim to provide a high and growing income from a portfolio which will be substantially invested in equities and convertibles. When appropriate, fixed interest securities will also be included. The initial gross yield will be 7.0%. This represents a yield 50% greater than that of the F.T. Actuaries All-Share Index.

Over the last decade, the dividend growth of the F.T. All-Share Index has averaged over 12% per annum. In such an environment, the prospects for the well managed equity income fund must be particularly promising.

The investment management disciplines necessary to achieve the desired growing income also have the effect of enhancing capital performance. Meanwhile, in adverse markets, the total return to the investor is buoyed up by the above average yield of a portfolio such as that of the Hambros High Income Trust. The Trust is thus designed to provide an effective hedge against inflation.

The initial portfolio will be invested in the U.K. market, but where overseas stocks satisfy the investment criteria of the Trust, these may also be included in due course.

1. The Trusts are authorised by the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry. They are "under long" trustee investments, under the Investment Act 1968.
2. Income will be distributed, net of basic rate tax, together with a dividend certificate and a full-year report, on the following dates:
Equity Income Trust: 15th February, 15th July, 15th November Reserves & Assets Trust: 15th March, 15th September, 15th December
3. Charges: The Managers are permitted to include in their selling price an initial service charge of 5% percent out of which remuneration is payable to qualified intermediaries: rates are available on request. An annual service charge of 1% of 1 percent (plus V.A.T.) of the value of the fund is deducted from income to meet the expenses of the Trusts and Managers. The Trust Deeds permit a maximum charge of 1% percent (plus V.A.T.) annually, subject to 3 months notice to subscribers. A "You may sell or part of" our underlying back to the Managers at a price less than the bid price, calculated in a formula laid down by the Department of Trade & Industry, ruling on receipt of your instructions. You will be sent a cheque in settlement within seven business days of receipt by the Managers of your remittance certificate.
4. At an offer price of 50p, the gross estimated starting yield for the High Income Trust is 7.0% and for the Reserves & Assets Trust is 5.4%. At the offer price for the Hambros Equity Income Trust on the 14th October 1985, of 66.5p, the gross estimated yield was 5.4%.
5. After the close of this initial offer, on or before 29th October 1985, units will be available at the ruling offer price. The Managers' allocation on a best-efforts basis. This offer is not available to residents of the Republic of Ireland.
6. Managers: Hambros Bank, Unit Trust Managers Limited (member of the Unit Trust Association) 41 Bebbington, London EC2P 2AA. Registered in England. No. 1011414 at 51 Bebbington, London EC2P 2AA. Trustees: The Royal Bank of Scotland plc.

HAMBROS
HAMBROS BANK UNIT TRUST MANAGERS LIMITED

To: Premier Unit Trust Administration, 5 Rayleigh Road, Hutton, Brentwood, Essex CM14 1AA. Telephone orders to Brentwood (0277) 217916.

I/We wish to invest £ (minimum £1,500) in Hambros Income & Protection Scheme, equally divided between the three funds. Hambros Equity Income Trust units will be allocated at the offer price ruling on receipt of this application. Units in the other trusts will be allocated at 50p until the close of the initial offers.

I/We apply for _____ units in Hambros High Income Trust and/or _____ units in Hambros Reserves & Assets Trust (minimum 2,000 units per trust) at 50p per unit under the initial offers closing on 29th October 1985.

I/We enclose a cheque, payable to Hambros Bank Limited, for £ _____ Please tick box for re-investment of net distributions ☐

NAME/TITLE FIRST/FORENAME OTHER INITIALS SURNAME
HOUSE NO AND STREET TOWN COUNTY/POSTAL CODE

I declare that I am, or we are, over the age of 18.

Signature(s) _____ Date _____

Please tick box to receive the booklet on the Hambros range of Unit Trusts and Monthly Savings Plan ☐

Be part of Japan's next thrust

Invest now in TR Japan Growth Fund

Why Japan?

Japan, with its consensus-controlled economy, has outperformed the US and the UK. It enjoys high growth rates combined with low inflation.

It is the power-house of the booming Pacific region, dominating many industrial sectors and investing heavily in product development and innovation. Over the long-term, Japanese companies have prospered and the stockmarket has flourished.

Why now?

Weakness in both the Yen and Japanese blue chips has given investors problems over the last 18 months.

Now, however, the Yen appears undervalued and high-quality shares look attractive. Investment in the infrastructure is helping companies with a domestic emphasis. Japan is also poised to benefit from the enormous potential of the Chinese market.

TR Japan Growth Fund will be managed so as to take maximum advantage of the opportunities for capital growth offered by Japanese shares.

Why Touche Remnant?

Touche Remnant is a major, international investment management group with almost 100 years experience. It manages over £2,800 million for institutions and other clients. £300 million of this is already invested in Japan.

Since 1983, when Touche Remnant entered the unit trust field, its performance has been outstanding. At 1st September, 1985, out of 660 rivals, no fewer than three TR funds featured in the 'Top Ten' over 12 months.

Furthermore, five of TR's eight unit trusts appear in the 'Top Five' of their relevant sectors over the last six months. Touche Remnant's track record and a policy of launching funds only in favourable stockmarket conditions should ensure continued success for investors in TR Unit Trusts.

Position	Trust	Performance
1	TR Special Opportunities Fund	+60.5%
2	TR Smaller Companies Fund	+56.8%
3	TR General Growth Fund	+47.1%

Source: Plannet Savings (Offer to Offer including reinvested income)

TR JAPAN GROWTH FUND

To: Touche Remnant Unit Trust Management Limited, Mermaid House, 2 Puddle Dock, London EC2A 3JH. (For dealing, telephone 01 248 1250).

Send 1/2p stamp to invest in TR Japan Growth Fund at the offer price rising on the date of acceptance of the application.

A cheque made payable to Touche Remnant Unit Trust Management Limited is enclosed.

Please send me information about other TR unit trusts.

Share exchange.

Please tick box if you wish to reinvest net distributions.

Name (Mr/Ms/Ms): _____

First name(s): _____

Address: _____

Post Code: _____

Signature: _____ Date: _____

(In the case of joint applications, all applicants must sign and attach their names and addresses. OFFER NOT APPLICABLE TO EIRE)

How much you gain when you lose your job

Miners who fought so bitterly against pit closures and the consequent loss of jobs were rushing this week to claim redundancy payments before the October 9 deadline.

After that date those who take redundancy may well suffer reductions in both the lump sum payout and the weekly payments. This is because entitlement to unemployment benefit in 1986, which would normally be paid for up to one year after being made redundant, will depend on National Insurance contributions paid between April 5, 1984 and April 6, 1985 - a period when many miners were on strike.

Some miners will draw redundancy payments of more than £25,000. So how are redundancy payments treated by the tax man?

Anyone made redundant since April 1982 is entitled to a first £25,000 of any redundancy payment tax-free. The next £25,000 will be taxed at half your marginal rate of tax and the next £25,000 at 75 per cent of your marginal rate.

This means that if you earned £22,000 in the current tax year and received a redundancy payment of £35,000, the first £25,000 would be tax free. But the next £10,000 would be taxed at half your marginal rate, which would probably be 40 per cent, so the tax payable on the last £10,000 would be at a 20 per cent rate.

Other payments on the loss of a job could be tax-free. Payments that come into this category are ex gratia payments on your death or permanent disability while an employee, terminal payments to those leaving the forces, ex gratia payments on the termination of a job if you have worked abroad either for three-quarters of the term of the service with the company, or for the whole of the last 10 years.

Anyone receiving substantial redundancy payments or becoming eligible for them would be well advised to consult an accountant as soon as he or she is offered the option.

Making a claim? You may need some help

INSURANCE

Loss adjusters - the men who come round to check the damage after a fire or burglary in your home - hate to be described as skinflints whose job is to see that their client, the insurance company, pays out as little as possible.

"They are not there to beat you down," declares the Association of British Insurers. "They are independent adjusters trying to assess the damage or loss of the contents and their value in a fair manner." However, it is the insurance company that pays their fee.

Loss adjusters tend to call only when a large sum is claimed, say £5,000 or more - the average claim is around £500. As many who have claimed a substantial sum will agree, there is little straightforward assessing loss.

Surprisingly, few people know that expert help is available in the form of loss assessors who are there to represent the claimant. There are more than 170 members of the Institute of Public Loss Assessors and a handful of these are specialist companies which do nothing else.

Henry Harris is chief executive of the institute and he runs a London-based loss assessor bearing his name, set up by his great-grandfather.

He says: "I always challenge the claim that the adjuster is 'independent'. You can't wear two hats. A loss assessor is there to perform a duty for his principal - to settle for the legal minimum. We are there to help the claimant settle for the legal maximum."

Just as you would hire an accountant when dealing with the Inland Revenue, or a barrister in court, then it is logical to have a loss assessor with you when the adjuster calls, says Mr Harris. Loss assessors' traditional patch is fire damage and personal injury claims, the latter often the result of a car crash. One insurance man said unkindly: "They were known as the ambulance and fire engine boys."

There is, however, a growing trend for a loss assessor to be called in after a burglary, most commonly of valuables such as silver, jewellery, furs and small, easily removable antiques.

In nine cases out of 10 the burgled home owner contacts an assessor only when he is already in dispute with the adjuster about the exact value of the stolen goods. Mr Harris argues that where a large claim is involved, it is sensible to call in an assessor immediately, before the trouble starts.

There are no fixed charges for loss adjusting. Every assessor agrees his own fee with the client. As a guideline only, an uncomplicated claim, not involving many stolen or damaged items, could mean a fee of between 7 1/2 and 10 per cent of a claim agreed at £20,000, i.e. £1,500 to £2,000.

The percentage drops as the claim total rises, and for one or two items the charge could be as low as five per cent.

Insurance companies are not enthusiastic about the increasingly common presence of an assessor at the scene of the crime. They complain that there is a tendency to inflate the value of the loss to cover the assessor's fee, they complain.

On the other hand, they admit that a professionally presented, detailed claim has its advantage.

How does the loss assessor justify his fee?

He will sort out boring, but essential details which many a

Henry Harris: 'I always challenge the adjuster' harassed home owner might overlook. These include the circumstances of the loss; whether the loss is covered by the policy; whether the lost items are specified in the policy; and whether there are policy exclusions affecting the claim.

The small print of the average house contents policy can reveal amazing "ifs" and "buts" and it is best to know about them before the adjuster puts you right.

More important, the assessor can help to establish proof of ownership and the value of the goods in question. Adjusters are keen on proof of ownership.

One insurer said: "With a big loss there can be a tendency among some policyholders to forget how many gold earrings were left on the mantelpiece. Receipts or a valuation can clear this up."

On value Mr Harris explains: "Often the stolen item is a wedding present. The owner has no receipt and doesn't know what it is worth. He describes it as 'silver', but he doesn't know if it was silver, silver plate or antique silver. We try to find out."

Insurance companies say that in the vast majority of cases there is no quarrel between policyholder and adjuster. But disputes do occur and a good assessor should help you to sort out other crucial issues such as replacement value, depreciation, allowance for wear and tear and what constitutes "valuables" - there is often an important limitation clause on "valuables".

Under-insurance is another contentious issue where an assessor can be invaluable. The adjuster can deem the entire contents not fully insured, and he may, unless persuaded otherwise, decide to pay only a proportion of the claim as a result.

House contents insurance has become very expensive for the affluent living in the inner cities in particular. Britain's largest house contents insurer, the Prudential, introduced its burglary blackspot areas only last year and upped its premiums. It now charges £680 for an "all risk" contents policy of £40,000 if located in most of central London, Glasgow, Liverpool and Manchester.

So it is sensible to have written down exactly what you own and what it is worth before it is stolen.

Hilary Gomer

Nine ways to be wise

Do's and don'ts for the high-value contents owner:

- Write down all serial numbers where possible.
- Security-mark everything possible and put a sticker in the window announcing you have done so.
- Photograph, at least, all easily removable valuables and put them alongside a ruler to give an indication of size. This is invaluable for police and a useful proof of ownership.
- Consider fitting real, or at least fake, burglar alarms.
- Keep all receipts.
- Collect valuations; ask the insurance company for a reputable valuer so that there can be no complaints about over-valuing.

- Make a list of silver, jewellery, clocks, small antiques, small pictures - anything that a burglar might put in his pocket - with their values. Don't leave this list in the house - it is the perfect shopping list for the burglar.
- Keep silver and jewellery you do not often use in the bank. This can substantially reduce premiums.
- If you have an insurance claim and feel you need help write to The Institute of Public Loss Assessors, 14 Red Lion Street, Chesham, Bucks HP5 1HB (Chesham: 782342) for a list of assessors in your area. Compare their fees.

Home Banking is here!

No more queues, no more delays. Now you can bank from your own home and, among other things:-

- Instruct payment of bills up to 30 days in advance and take full advantage of any free credit period.
- Switch spare cash into your Home and Office Banking Investment Account where it will immediately earn high interest.
- Keep track of your finances by viewing up to the last 3 months, or 100 transactions, on each of your accounts.
- Order cheque-books and statements.

This unique Bank of Scotland service comes to you via Prestel* and your own television set, and moves banking technology into the twenty-first century.

This service is available anywhere in the U.K. so, wherever you are and whatever your Bank, why not find out more by calling in at your local Bank of Scotland Branch or by sending off the Freepost coupon today, or by telephoning 01-200 0200 for a free information pack.

*Prestel is a registered trade mark of British Telecommunications PLC.

NAME _____ ADDRESS _____

POST CODE _____

I would like to know all about Home Banking from Bank of Scotland. Please send me your information pack. Post to: Home Banking Centre, Bank of Scotland, FREEPOST, Edinburgh, EH1 0AA.

BANK OF SCOTLAND
A FRIEND FOR LIFE

If you're about to invest in a pension plan make sure it's the best on the market.

ALLIED DUNBAR Managed Fund	NPI with profits	LEGAL AND GENERAL Managed Fund	EQUITABLE with profits	SCOTTISH MUTUAL with profits	TARGET Managed Fund
$4177	$4221	$4382	$4412	$4824	$6771

Pension Plan Results Value of Fund over 5 years assuming 5 annual premiums of $500 each.

*Amount invested (Allowing for tax relief at 30%)

Source: Money Magazine - February 1985

"Target soars head and shoulders above all rivals in the pensions field coming, once again, top of the performance league table."

The Times - Saturday 26th January 1985

"One Company, Target Life, can actually boast an investment record that is so superior that it can afford to pay twice the pension of some of the others."

Target stole a march on its rivals, because the Managed Fund holds investments directly rather than putting money into other unit-linked funds within the group."

The Daily Telegraph - Saturday 17th March 1984

"The top cash fund for retirement at age 55 comes from Target Life's Managed Fund with a spectacularly good figure. This is clear not from result since the same fund swept the honours board in our October 1982 survey."

Name: Management - June 1984

"Indeed the best performing contract in the survey was linked to Target's Managed Fund."

The Daily Telegraph - Saturday 11th December 1983

If you're self-employed or the director of a private company, you'll know all about the tax advantages of investing in a pension plan.

Your biggest problem will be selecting the best from the rest. Obviously, the most important factor will be the size of your pension fund when you retire.

All too often, this decision is taken as a result of comparing projected growth figures, whereas the only realistic basis for comparison is achieved growth.

The table above compares the actual results of an investment in the Target Personal Pension Plan - linked to the Target Managed Pension Fund - with three leading with profits policies and two other unit-linked plans invested in managed funds.

What it doesn't show, however, is that the Target plan has out-performed all other personal pension plans over the last five years.

What's more, only the Target plan provides you with a guaranteed loanback facility* enabling you to draw on your investment whenever you like, with no additional management charges.

*Subject to level of premium and acceptable security.

And, with Target, after the first two years you're not committed to keeping up a regular payment. You can vary your level of investment to suit your personal circumstances. Except, of course, with a growth record like ours, we think you'll want to invest more rather than less.

To find out more, fill out the Freepost coupon below.

Please let me have further information on the Target Pension Plan.

Name _____

Age _____ Occupation _____

Address _____

Postcode _____

Business tel. no. _____

Send to: Dept MF, Target Life Assurance Co. Ltd., Freepost, Aylesbury, Bucks HP9 3YA. Tel: Aylesbury (0296) 5941.

TARGET
TARGET GROUP PLC

UNIT TRUSTS - LIFE ASSURANCE - PENSIONS - FINANCIAL MANAGEMENT

11/12/85

هكزامن النجف

FAMILY MONEY/4

TSB gives a taste of things to come

The Trustee Savings Bank is set to become the first company outside the public sector to issue a mini-prospectus when the shares are launched in February.

The TSB, which is looking for a million shareholders, intends to distribute a hefty number of the prospectuses through its branch network.

More than six million TSB account holders are eligible for priority treatment in the share issue. "We would be happy if we got 10 per cent of our customer base to take up shares," says the TSB's group controller, Richard Bing.

The number of shares available for the general public will depend on institutional allocation. The TSB will be protected from an early takeover by limiting shareholders to a maximum holding of 5 per cent in the first five years and 15 per cent after that.

The build-up to the launch has already begun with a corporate advertising campaign to create the image of the TSB as a major banking force in the public mind. The share issue campaign begins on November 1 and a public share information office has been opened

Account holders will have priority

In Bristol to handle queries - the telephone number is Bristol (0272) 300300.

The publicity drive will intensify as more is known about the form and timing of the offer, and before the final prospectus is issued a "red herring" prospectus giving everything but the price of the shares will be made available.

Only those who had a TSB account on December 17, 1984 - the day before the TSB Bill was published - are eligible for priority treatment.

It does not matter how little was in the account or how long it has been lying dormant. But all customers with accounts which have not been used for some years should visit a TSB branch to ensure they are registered on the computer.

Those with TSB mortgages also qualify for priority treatment but customers whose only dealings are with the TSB Trustcard, unit trusts or United Dominions Trust will not be eligible.

Share applications can be made on behalf of child account holders but holders will be entitled to more than one priority application no matter how many TSB accounts they hold - and the TSB's six million customers have more than 13 million accounts.

The TSB chairman, Sir John Read, who is piloting the flotation, has come through the fire of industry rather than from the banking world, with spells at the EMI, both before and after its rescue by Thorn, and he was a non-executive director of Dunlop until Sir Michael Edwards shook up the boardroom.

Sir John says: "I believe in private enterprise. When I joined, the TSB board was anxious to have an independent chairman. Their future was uncertain and there were different views about the way it could develop."

"There was uncertainty over the legal position in connection with the ownership of the reserves. The Government encouraged us to find an answer under the Companies Act."

"Then there was the question of whether we could survive as an independent organization. It's a very tough world with foreign banks and building societies moving in."

"When I joined there were 17 banks, each beginning to develop its own services. Through amalgamations there are now four, but none of them could have qualified as a bank under the Banking Act."

"When the question of ownership and control arose, the Government certainly steered us towards the Companies Act solution, which would also satisfy the Banking Act."

The sale of the bank that nobody owns to the public will give it instant cash injection of

Sir John Read: "Looking at new opportunities" around £1 billion. "We are not going to let the money burn holes in our pocket," says Sir John. "There is a planning unit here that is looking at new opportunities."

But some of the new money will be spent on strengthening the branch network in the South-East, on new technology, although all branches are already "on line", and on building up reserves.

The TSB already has its own cash and credit cards, unit trusts, mortgages, insurance, pensions, hire purchase and vehicle rental and leasing businesses. It has considered expanding abroad.

Sir John is certain he does not want to buy into stock-taking. He explains: "It would

Money to be spent on technology

not be appropriate. We are not flooded with customers who buy stocks and shares, although that may change."

"But you do not necessarily have to own a stockbroker - you can have useful contractual relationships."

He believes the TSB can maintain its character and service to ordinary customers while moving into the fast lane. He believes he has already shaken the TSB out of its Civil Service mentality.

He says: "For instance, there's an old saying, 'Time is cost'. That never used to come into the equation, but after a stable existence for 170 years a lot has had to change."

Vivien Goldsmith

Why solicitors need a better image

HOUSE PURCHASE

When two solicitors, Edward Goldsmith and Chris Williams, of Chester, set up the Home Buyers Group in the middle of last year "to bring solicitors together to form a national network able to offer legal services in a more modern, friendly and cost-effective manner", they were shocked to find out how low an opinion people held of the legal profession.

Their group issued a survey in April 1985 to identify the position of solicitors in the eyes of the public. They questioned 1,000 people, 76 per cent of whom were house owners. The result did not make enjoyable reading.

Question: Where is the first place you would look when considering moving? Answer: Newspapers 14.3 per cent, estate agents 75.6 per cent, building society 7.8 per cent, solicitor 1.9 per cent, others 3 per cent.

Question: Who do you feel is most able to give you independent advice regarding a home move? Answer: Bank manager 14.2 per cent, estate agent 61.2 per cent, building society 13.9 per cent, solicitor 9.2 per cent, others 1.5 per cent.

Question: Do you feel solicitors charge too much? Answer: Yes 80.4 per cent, No 6.3 per cent, Don't know 13.3 per cent.

Of the 76 per cent who were home owners only 42.8 per cent said they used a solicitor regularly. They were then asked: Do you find your solicitor to be helpful and friendly? Yes, said 56.8 per cent, no, said 43.2 per cent. Asked whether they found their solicitor too slow, 64.5 per cent said they did, while 33.1 per cent said they did not. Of all those surveyed, 92.3 per cent approved of an all-in-one package for moving house incorporating legal advice, insurance, and discounts on services such as removals at "a highly competitive price".

With this in mind, the Home Buyers Group will launch a series of packages in the new year with the co-operation of other institutions such as banks, building societies and estate agents. They will also introduce a free telephone referral system and a consumer magazine.

In the meantime, the 800-strong group is busy expanding its nationwide network of solicitors.

Mr Goldsmith said: "We

"Mind you, we're doing our own conveyancing - we're working on a shoestring, of course."

want solicitors to be the first port of call in the house-buying process, not the last. Solicitors should be 'men of affairs' in an open and client-orientated environment. They must move ahead to the 21st century."

The results of the survey, however, show that some solicitors seem to have quite a long way to go to meet even present-day consumer demands.

Susan Fieldman

The Home Buyers Group, 1 Cuppin Street, Chester.

INCOME TAX RELIEF FOR 1985/86

Winebank plc

Offer for Subscription under the Business Expansion Scheme of up to £2,000,000 sponsored by

Baden-Powell, Chilcott & Co

Asset backed
Two Masters of Wine on the Board
Tax relief on investment
Opening date - Tuesday 15th October, 1985

The Board of Directors combines management and financial experience and recognised expertise in the selection, acquisition and sale of fine wines. The Company intends to trade in classed growth Clarets, Burgundies and vintage Ports and mature and semi-mature good quality French wines. Shareholders' funds will be substantially represented by fine wines and/or cash.

This advertisement does not constitute an invitation to subscribe for shares

To: Baden-Powell, Chilcott & Co
805 Salisbury House, 31 Finsbury Circus, London EC2M 5SQ
Telephones: 01-588 7878 or 01-638 6339 (24 hours)
Telex: 888729 MS CO-G

Please send me a copy of the Prospectus for Winebank plc to:

Name _____

Address _____

Postcode _____

and a further copy to my accountant/solicitor/adviser

Name _____

Firm _____

Address _____

Postcode _____

Up to 4% commission will be paid to professional intermediaries on successful applications.

Announcing a new cheque account.

You'll find the difference of considerable interest.

A High Interest Cheque Account from Phillips &amp; Drew Trust Limited

These days there are lots of high interest cheque accounts on the market but we believe that you will find this one rather different in a number of valuable respects.

Money Market Expertise

First consider the interest rates we offer. With Phillips & Drew Trust you don't just get the rate fixed by a single institution - you get the benefit of many years of experience in the Money Markets.

Every day we carry out a comprehensive review of the rates available and as a result our depositors benefit automatically from an average of the best rates offered by the very best institutions at all times.

A Stockbroking Service on call "Share Service"

Another plus for account holders is exclusive access to the new simplified "Share Service" provided by Phillips & Drew, the Stockbroker. Without further formality you are able to buy or sell shares or unit trusts simply by telephoning Phillips & Drew on a special number and giving your instructions.

Market Review

High Interest Cheque Account holders will automatically receive from Phillips & Drew a free copy of their monthly magazine giving an overview of activity in financial markets throughout the world.

Free Desk Top Portfolio

And here's some more good news. As an account holder you will receive entirely free of charge, a luxurious desk top portfolio, designed to hold your cheque book, paying-in book and statements. There's also plenty of space for your personal stationery.

How the account works

Opening and operating the High Interest Cheque Account is simplicity itself.

You need to make an initial deposit of £2,500. Thereafter the minimum transaction size is £250. Interest is credited at the end of each quarter, after discharge of the liability to the basic rate of tax. Detailed statements are sent quarterly, or can be requested at any time free of charge.

There is no charge for opening an account. Our management and administration costs are met by means of a deduction of not more than 1% from the rate of interest received on the placement of depositors' funds.

Withdrawals can be made whenever you require them and, if you can give us 7 days notice of withdrawal (either by telephone or in writing), you will lose no interest. When you make payment by cheque 7 days interest will be deducted.

So, if you'd like to start making more of your money now, complete the coupon and return it to us with your cheque.

On receipt we will send you full details together with an application form for you to complete, and when you return it you will receive your cheque book and Desk Top Portfolio.

Alternatively, for further details tick the box in the lower part of the Coupon.

It all adds up to a difference of considerable interest.

Phillips & Drew Trust Limited, 120 Moorgate, London EC2M 6XP. Telephone: 01-628 9771.

To: Phillips & Drew Trust Limited, 120 Moorgate, London EC2M 6XP
I/we enclose a cheque (minimum £2,500, payable to Phillips & Drew Trust Ltd.) for £ _____ in open a High Interest Cheque Account.
Are you resident in the UK for tax purposes? Yes/No
I/we understand that in order to maintain a High Interest Cheque Account, I/we shall have to sign an application form, agreeing to your terms and conditions.
Full Name(s) Mr/Mrs/Miss _____ (in block capital)
Address _____
Postcode _____
Tel (Home) _____ (Office) _____
Please send me further details of Phillips & Drew Trust Limited's High Interest Cheque Account. <input type="checkbox"/>
Signature(s) _____ Date _____
Phillips & Drew Trust Limited

Because there are more opportunities worldwide, your income prospects will rise when you invest in this new global income fund... Britannia's new International High Income Trust.

Why an Income Fund?

Because a unit trust income fund has the potential to make your capital and income grow in a way that many other types of investment can't.

It's certainly wise to keep some of your money in a building society. But it's equally sensible to let a proportion of it have the opportunity to provide the growth and rising income that unit trusts, invested in stocks and shares, have proved they can deliver.

Why an International Income Fund?

Because overseas stock markets can offer more opportunities than the UK alone.

Britannia International High Income Trust aims to provide a high and growing income plus good prospects of capital growth from an international portfolio of equities, convertible stocks and bonds. Initially the total equity exposure of our portfolio will be 75% and the chosen markets will be America, the UK, Japan, Europe, Australia and New Zealand.

This approach gives the widest scope for success and from the investor's point of view its greatly increased flexibility offers:

- * a better chance of achieving the rising income you seek;
- * reduced risk because the fund's investments will be widely diversified;
- * the opportunity for substantial capital growth from increasing stock and share values.

Britannia is Big and Successful.

Britannia Unit Trust Managers Limited is part of the Britannia Arrow Group, which manages £4,800 million worldwide on behalf of 350,000 investors.

GENERAL INFORMATION ABOUT THE TRUST

Acknowledgement will be sent and certificates issued within 42 days. Unit prices and yields are published daily in leading national newspapers. Units can be sold back to the Managers at not less than the current bid price calculated to a formula approved by the Department of Trade. An initial management charge of 5.25% on the assets (equivalent to 5% of the issue price) is included in the price of units and a service charge at an annual rate of 1% (+VAT) on the value of the Trust is deducted from the Trust's gross income, although the Trust does allow a maximum annual charge of 2% (+VAT).

The Trust's distribution dates are 15th June and 15th December in respect of the periods ending 15th April and 15th October. The first distribution is scheduled for 15th June 1986. Trustees: National Westminster Bank PLC, 41 Lombard Street, London EC2M 3AB. Managers: Britannia Unit Trust Managers Limited, Registered Office: 80 Coleman Street, London EC2R 5AD. Telephone: 01-588 2777.

Reimbursement is payable to qualified intermediaries and rates are available on request. This offer is not applicable to residents of Eire. Fluctuations in exchange rates may affect the performance of the Trust in both income and capital growth terms. The Managers will seek to protect the investments of the Trust from an adverse influence of currency movements.

Norman Riddell's view:

"A superb record"

"One thing that has really impressed me as a unit trust manager is the superb overall record of income funds. Of the £17 billion that UK investors have put into unit trusts, nearly a third is in this type of fund."

Britannia has done very well with UK income funds, and now we are pleased to offer you the greater opportunity and security of an international spread of investments for income."

Norman Riddell
N M Riddell Managing Director
Britannia Unit Trust Managers Limited

Britannia has been very successful with its range of income funds. For example, if you had invested £10,000 in the Britannia Income & Growth Trust in 1970, your annual income after tax would have risen from £381 in the first year to £2,250 in 1985. In addition, your capital would now be worth £55,512.

Furthermore, our first overseas income trust, investing in the U.S.A., was launched last year and is the top performing fund of its type in 1985.

Early Investor Bonus up to 2%.

For applications received by Monday, 21st October, 1985, on investments of £1,000 or more, a bonus of 1% is offered. Investments of £10,000 and over qualify for a 2% bonus.

At the launch price of 50p per unit, the gross estimated starting yield of the new Britannia International High Income Trust is 6.50% per annum.

Please remember that the price of units and the income from them can go down as well as up.

To invest now, (minimum £500) simply complete the form below.

EARLY INVESTOR BONUS UP TO 2%

To: Britannia Unit Trust Managers Ltd., 74/78 Finsbury Pavement, London EC2A 1JD. Telephone: 01-588 2777

I wish to invest (minimum £500) in the Britannia International High Income Trust at the offer price ruling on the day of receipt of my cheque. I understand that the 1% 2% bonus as applicable will be given in the form of extra units. A cheque is enclosed, made payable to Britannia Unit Trust Managers Limited.

SURNAME _____

FIRST NAME (in full) _____

ADDRESS _____

POSTCODE _____

Please tick box if you are already a Britannia unit trust investor ☐

SIGNATURE _____ DATE _____

Britannia
INTERNATIONAL HIGH INCOME TRUST

Income Tax Relief 1985/86

This advertisement is not an invitation to subscribe for shares

Fine Country Homes plc

Incorporated in England under the Companies Act 1985 No. 1940108 offer for subscription under the Business Expansion Scheme

sponsored by

Anthony Wiefer + Company Limited
Member of The Association of Independent Investment Managers Licensed Dealers in Securities of up to 3,000,000 ordinary shares of 50p each at £1.00 per share payable in full on application to raise up to £3 million.

- Fine Country Homes provides an investment in the Leisure and Tourist industry.
- Fine Country Homes intends purchasing country houses giving the company a substantial asset base.

Applications will only be accepted on the terms of the prospectus and on completion of the application form attached thereto, which are available from:

J.A.G. Gairdner, FCA, Anthony Wiefer + Company Limited, 19 Wigmore Street, London W1 7HP.
Telephone: 01-377 1010.

Why pension-linked loans help in buying a house

The removal of life assurance premium relief from life policies in the last Budget means the most tax-efficient way of buying a house is now the pension-linked loan.

Initially these loans were available only to the self-employed and those in non-pensionable employment who were eligible for tax relief on contributions to a personal pension plan.

But the building societies and other lenders have become increasingly flexible and now it is possible to obtain a pension-linked loan - with all the tax concessions that go with it - if you are a contributor to an Additional Voluntary Contributions (AVC) occupational pension scheme run by your employer.

Latest entrant is United Kingdom Provident, with an
AVC-linked pension mortgage.
You can borrow for a first mortgage, remortgage, consolidation of existing borrowing,
extensions, improvements,
school fees or purchase of second homes - and other suitable purposes will be considered.

Minimum loan is £15,000
and the loan must not exceed 90 per cent of the purchase price or valuation.

The other constraint is that the AVC scheme must not assume a growth rate of more than 12.5 per cent a year and contributions to the scheme in any one year should not exceed 15 per cent of earned income.

The appeal of a pension-linked loan is that full tax relief at the highest rate paid is allowed on both the interest on the loan
- up to the ceiling of £30,000 - and the contributions to the pension plan - whether it is an AVC or a personal pension.

For the higher rate taxpayer there are huge advantages in repaying a loan in this way.
Interest only is paid during the life of the loan and the mortgage is eventually repaid out of the commuted cash sum available at retirement age from the pension plan.

Generally, pension-linked loans are most suitable for professional people such as solicitors, accountants and architects.

Linking a loan to an AVC scheme is really only suitable if you intend staying with your current employer for the rest of your career. If you are likely to change jobs, you could find that your new employer does not have an AVC scheme and you would then have to convert to a straight repayment loan. It could result in much higher monthly repayments.

Anyone contemplating a pension-linked home loan should consult a registered insurance broker or one of the British Insurance Brokers Association's authorized life and pension brokers.

LB

Battle for first-time buyers

BUILDING SOCIETIES

First-time home buyers may not have the most cash to spend but they are big borrowers and as such are welcomed by the banks and building societies.

Banks and building societies compete aggressively for this custom. Overall the share of the home loans market won by British banks is now 16 per cent. Foreign banks such as Chemical Bank, United Bank of Kuwait, First National Bank of Boston and Societe Generale de Paris, specialize in mortgages of more than £30,000.

But building societies are fighting back particularly in the first-time buyers market. Along with their rivals they are adding their own incentives to the Government's perk of £600 for the first-time buyer who has saved for two years with a recognized institution.

● Building societies: cheaper

The Newbury Building Society offers mortgages up to £20,000 at 0.25 per cent below its normal rate for first-time buyers. On 100 per cent endowment mortgages of not more than £25,000, Scarborough gives reduced rates - now 12.75 per cent endowment and repayments - for the mortgage term with three months' free insurance premiums.

This is not such a marvellous deal as several of the banks and building societies offer slightly cheaper loans - although not 100 per cent loans.

Investing for 12 months in the West of England Building Society gets a reduction of 0.75 per cent on rates for loans up to £20,000. The Furness Building Society's reduction is 0.5 per cent during the first 12 months for loans of £25,000, and embraces council tenants buying their own homes. Middleton Building Society gives reduced rates of 12.5 per cent in the first year and 12.75 per cent in the second year on repayment loans for first-time buyers.

Nottingham Building Society offers 1 per cent below normal interest rates for the first 12 months while Rowley Regis's reduction is 0.75 per cent for the same term. But check the rates of the big national societies because they may well still be cheaper.

● Building societies: low start

Other societies making similar concessions or low start mortgages include Bradford and Bingley. Applicants who have saved for six months and have 10 per cent of the purchase price get £75 off the first gross repayment.

Halifax uses the deposit to reduce monthly payments during the first three years of a mortgage to applicants aged under 35 and for loans up to £35,000. Harpenden's low-start scheme offers "interest-only" payments in the first five years to applicants aged under 35 for

BUILDING SOCIETIES OFFERING LOANS UNDER 12.75%

Society	Rate	Limits
Bedford	12.5	under £15,000
Buckinghamshire	12.5	under £57,500
Cheltenham & Gloucester	12.65	negotiable
C & G Goldloan	12.65	£30-60,000
Chesham	12.5	negotiable
Chesham	12.625	under £15,000
Chesham	12.65	negotiable
Colchester	12.5	under £14,750
Furness	12.5	negotiable
Harley Economic	12.5	under £25,000
Horne Bay	12.5	negotiable
Loughborough Permanent	12.6	under £30,000
Parish	12.6

OTHERS

United Bank of Kuwait	12.5	min £30,000 no max
-----------------------	------	--------------------

SPECIAL OFFERS

Middleton	12.5	first time buyers first year only
Newbury	12.5	first time buyers up to £20,000
Nottingham	11.75	first time buyers qualified investors first year only
Rowley Regis	12.0	first time buyers first year only

Source: Day's Mortgage Tables

loans up to £37,500 and up to 95 per cent of valuation.

● Building societies: other schemes

Most other incentives are for guaranteed mortgages or high multipliers. North Wilt Ridgway offers income multipliers of 25 per cent for the main and 1.25 per cent for secondary incomes for first-time buyers. The Leicester used to treat at least one partner of a divorced couple as a first-time buyer but its recent marriage to the Alliance may have changed attitudes.

● Banks

Incentives from the banks come in three forms: guaranteed mortgages; higher multipliers;
and a high percentage of the purchase price.

The foreign banks' incentives are larger than average loans without paying a higher rate.
The United Bank of Kuwait offers £40,000 loans on valuations between £50,000 and £57,250 and 70 per cent on valuations above that figure.

Barclays lends qualifiers up to 95 per cent of value of purchase price; the Trustee Savings Bank, 95 per cent of value. Clydesdale Bank is unusual among the banks in offering to savers of two years, a mortgage rate 0.5 below the normal mortgage rate for five years.

National Westminster gives a bonus rate for mortgage savers who stay the course for 18 months.

The Co-operative offers
"sponsorship" with the borrower sponsored - by a friend or relative - in form of a savings account which can be used as security for extra mortgage funds. This might be helpful for "friendly" couples contemplating a divorce. But loans to friends or relatives could be a minefield to the unwary.

Jennie Hawthorne

NOW YOU'LL FIND THE FIVE STAR TREATMENT EVEN MORE REWARDING.

AND YOU DON'T HAVE TO BE A STAR TO GET IT

£500
Just £500 gets you all the benefits of our new Five Star Account and earns you an above average rate.

8.75% NET P.A.

NEW £2,000
Now, when you've this much invested, all your funds will earn our new higher level of interest.

9.00% NET P.A.

£5,000
Invest more than this and without lifting a finger you'll enjoy an even better return on all your money.

9.25% NET P.A.

£10,000
When you reach this level, your total investment will automatically attract Five Star's top rate.

9.50% NET P.A.

INSTANT ACCESS
NO PENALTIES
All Five Star investors may withdraw up to £250 cash or £15,000 by cheque per day from any of our 670 branches.
Without losing interest in penalties or charges.

ABBEE NATIONAL BUILDING SOCIETY, ABBEE HOUSE, BAKER STREET, LONDON NW1 6NL. PLEASE NOTE INTEREST RATES MAY VARY.

To: Dept. FS2, Abbey National Building Society, FREEPOST, 201 Grafton Gate East, MILTON KEYNES MK9 1DA.

I/We would like Five Star treatment for my/our money and apply immediately, enclosing a cheque for £_____ to be invested in a Five Star Account at my/our local branch in _____.

Please send full details and an application card. I/We understand the rates might vary.

I/We understand that the interest will be credited annually on 1st September to this account.

Full name(s) Mr/Ms/Miss _____

Address _____

Postcode _____

Signature(s) _____

Telephone _____

Date _____

T 79

ABBEE NATIONAL'S NEW FIVE STAR ACCOUNT

Delta Investment Company Limited

(Incorporated under the laws of the Bahamas Islands as a company limited by guarantee).

An open-ended Investment Trust listed on the London Stock Exchange

INDEX OF NET ASSET VALUE PER SHARE SINCE JULY '74

Extracts from the Statement by the Chairman

During the year under review your Company has achieved a satisfactory performance, as reflected in a rise of 32% in the net asset value per share. This appreciation, as well as the long term growth, is compared below with the major indices.

	Growth since	July 1974
Net asset value per share	30.7.74	31.7.84
Dow Jones Industrial Index	+501%	+32%
Standard & Poor's Composite Index	+76%	+21%
	+136%	+26%

During the last few months the Federal Reserve has been injecting liquidity into the banking system. This development, together with the fall of the U.S. dollar, is expected to stimulate the American economy in the near future. Continued economic growth and the decline in interest rates and in the dollar should allow for a substantial rise in corporate profits particularly as year-on-year comparisons are becoming much easier.

Your Company will maintain its concentration in medium and smaller sized companies believing current valuations of these stocks are attractive both in actual terms and as compared to larger companies.
For a copy of the Report and Accounts, please contact:

KLEINWORTH, BENSON LIMITED
20 Fenchurch Street, London EC3P 3DB
Telephone: (01) 623 8000. Telex: 888531

مكاتب الاموال

THE M&G SPECIALIST PORTFOLIO

The experienced investor usually has firm views about which markets are likely to perform best over the next year or so, but demands the flexibility to move when a market has fulfilled its promise.

M&G has a comprehensive range of specialist unit trusts, covering all the major stock-markets of the world and aiming for maximum growth of capital. Once you have invested you are entitled to switch to another M&G Fund on terms which are often a good deal cheaper than dealing in individual shares.

The rewards for having your money in the right market at the right time can be considerable, but specialist funds can be volatile and investors should expect wider than average price fluctuations.

A MONTHLY NEWSLETTER

Anyone investing £5,000 or more before 30th November, 1985, will receive M&G's newsletter each month; this reviews investment prospects and shows up-to-date performance figures.

M&G Securities Limited, Three Quays, Tower Hill, London EC3R 6BQ. Tel: 01-626 4588.

INITIAL INVESTMENT BONUS

Three of the funds in the Specialist Portfolio offer an initial bonus on investments of £5,000 or more.

To: M&G Securities Limited, Three Quays, Tower Hill, London EC3R 6BQ.
Please send me details of the M&G Specialist Portfolio, including the Initial Investment Bonus.

Mr/Mrs/Miss INITIALS _____

SURNAME _____

ADDRESS _____

POST CODE _____

No salesman will call.

OP 484115

M&G

Quiet rumble of discontent

"The unit trust industry has lost its way," Paddy Ross, of Framlington Unit Trust Managers, says. He is not alone in his view. Both inside and outside the industry there are sounds of discontent at how things have gone during the past decade.

It was only in July this year that unit trusts managed triumphantly to claw their way back to the same number of accounts they had in the early 1970s before the bear market forced heavy sales by investors. Three cheers for unit trusts? Not quite.

"It sounds good," Mr Ross says, "but the important thing is the number of investors, not the number of accounts. Everything points to the fact that unit trusts still have fewer investors than in 1970. The typical investor has in the region of four accounts spread across different fund management companies."

His contention is that unit trusts have failed to broaden their client base. They still appeal only to a relatively small number of sophisticated investors and not, as they should, to the public.

"Unit trusts are a little riskier than building society accounts, or other popular risk-free investments. But they should not be ignored, as they are, by so many people. We haven't been very successful in getting to new investors," he says.

There are many reasons for this. One is a marked change in how unit trusts are marketed. In the 1970s the typical method of selling units was through direct advertising to investors. Now the favoured method has swung powerfully towards brokers and other intermediaries.

According to one calculation, £8 million was spent advertising the units sold compared with £50 million spent on commissions to brokers selling units to their clients. The big unit trust companies, such as Save & Prosper, have put their weight heavily behind broker selling.

The trouble with that, say critics within the industry, is that brokers are used by a small number of experienced investors. It means that management companies have concentrated on poaching one another's investors, not in broadening the whole field from which investors are drawn.

A further source of discontent is the "flavour of the month" style of unit trust marketing. During the past few months, for example, a plethora of trusts specializing in European stock markets - and West Germany in particular - have been launched. European markets have undoubtedly been performing impressively recently but there are problems.

"There is a danger in following the herd," says Roger Jennings, marketing director of M&G Securities. "Unit trusts should be investment-oriented, not just marketing-oriented. Two years ago I wanted to launch a high technology fund as everyone else was, but the investment team would not allow it."

Eighteen months ago high technology stocks fell heavily on world stock markets, leaving investors who had been tempted into these risky vehicles severely out of pocket.

Only last week Foreign & Colonial launched a new European Income Fund. It is a fashionable move, but hardly a sensible investment. The attraction of most foreign markets - those in Europe included - are the capital gains to be made when conditions are right.

But that implies a relatively high capital risk, and that is not the place to put money on which you want to earn income. Arguably, the most sensible type of income fund is the straightforward general UK trust.

As well as tempting investors into highly speculative funds, this method of selling may also be tempting them into highly unprofitable ones. The danger of promoting specialized areas which have done well recently is that they may not have much improvement in them.

It is the phenomenon of "selling at the top of the market" when it is easy for management companies to attract funds on good recent market performance. When the bubble bursts it is the optimistic investors who suffer.

"There is a tendency to sell at the top of the market on occasions," Mr Jennings concedes. But he points out that investors generally look at recent performance figures to determine their choice of funds. Unit trust investors should regard their holdings as a long-term investment and look further back in performance terms than the past six months.

"This is why M&G has just launched its specialist investment portfolio," he says. "We don't tell people which fund they should be investing in. They must take their own risk and decide which markets they want to be in."

The portfolio offers a choice of 12 specialist funds with a discount on switching between them. After that it is up to the investor to make his own choice.

The heavy cavalry - mainly in the form of big insurance companies such as the Prudential which have experience of selling to wide audiences - is riding in. Earlier this year the Pru launched two trusts to be marketed through its huge sales force to less sophisticated investors.

Not surprisingly, they were general trusts. Equally unsurprisingly, they have attracted about £50 million in less than six months.

Richard Thomson

TAX PAYERS!

The Business Expansion Scheme demands your immediate attention.

The 1983 Finance Act enables taxpayers to benefit from investment in expanding British businesses. Relief of up to £40,000 in the current year can be obtained.

For further details complete the coupon below.

HARVARD SECURITIES PLC

Member of the British Institute of Securities
Harvard House, 42-44 Doltres Street, London SE1 0UJ

Please send me further information on The Business Expansion Scheme.

Please contact me by telephone with investment advice.

Please do not contact me by telephone.

Name _____

Address _____

Tick box

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

☐

CHOOSING A UNIT TRUST

There are now over 700 authorised Unit Trusts available. Our expertise, knowledge of markets & research facilities can assist in achieving the returns you require. We shall be pleased to provide you with our current investment recommendations without charge.

FREE COPY OF INFLUENTIAL UNIT INVESTOR NEWSLETTER

HARGREAVES LANGDON
Unit Trust Advisory Service
Embassy House, Queens Avenue,
City, Belfast B2 1JH
0272 741309

Members of M&GDM
Licensed advisers in securities.

Information required ☐ INCOME ☐ GROWTH ☐ Postcode _____

NAME _____

ADDRESS _____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

Why regular savings give good returns

But the unit trust regular savings scheme has the flexibility to deal with this. If you start to save now in a unit trust,

If you want to get the best of all return, then link a unit trust regular savings scheme with a Deed of Covenant from a grandparent or godparent and

Source: Money Magazine

'A grandparent
covenanting
£20 a month
to a grandchild hands over £14 a month
– the child is able to reclaim the £6 from the taxman'

LR

Rowe & Pitman,
1 Finsbury Avenue
London EC2M 2PA

12th October 1985

well prove to be a big winner. Take the case of Munich Reinsurance which appears in the Target European Special Situations Fund portfolio. With the recent upward turn in the reinsurance cycle, reinsurance companies began to attract investors' interest. In the case of Munich Reinsurance there seemed to be the possibility of above average gains since the share price appeared to stand at a significant discount to net asset value. The share price has risen substantially since first purchased for the European Special Situations Fund. Since it happens to be the largest reinsurance company in the world, Munich Reinsurance also proves the point that "Special Situations" doesn't necessarily signify "small company."

Please send details of other Target unit trusts.

712 10

send for our current review.
Return the coupon today.

Tel: _____

Let us tell you more.
Just call our dealers on 01-236 3885 (to lines)

☐ Please send details of how to ☐ Declarations should be for living trusts. - ☐ Trusts belong on lines of 1041 & 1042, not 1041.

Low profile, high performance.

If you judge a Fund Management group by how much it spends on its advertising, we won't be high on your list of candidates.

Our advertising budget at Vanguard, until now, has been zero. For the simple reason that our unit trusts have only really been promoted to the private clients of our parent organisation, Capel-Cure Myers - the well known stockbrokers.

On the other hand, if you judge a unit trust group by performance, you can't fail to be impressed by Vanguard.

The fact is that Vanguard won the Observer's award last year as Britain's top performing small unit trust group.

So far, this year has been just as good. According to the September issue of "Money Observer" our Special Situations, Growth and High Yield Funds are all in the top ten funds over one year for their relevant sections.

With a record like this, we think you will be pleased to learn that we are now promoting our Vanguard Unit Trusts to anyone who considers themselves a serious investor.

So why settle for second best?

For full details of all the Vanguard Unit Trusts contact Michael Dismorr, or complete and return the coupon.

To: Vanguard Trust Managers Limited, Bath House, Holborn Viaduct, London EC1A 2EU. Telephone: 01-236 3053, or 01-248 8446.

Please send me your Vanguard brochure.

Name _____

Address _____

Postcode _____

Member of the Unit Trust Association.
Member of the AUE Group.

T 1218

"From the heart of the Stock Market"

Word of caution for the future on unit trusts

Unit trust investors who made the right choice of fund 12 months ago are now laughing all the way to the bank. Investment conditions in most of the world's main stock markets have produced some impressive returns. But now may be the time for unit holders to step back and consider the future with a cautious eye.

One of the best investment areas has been our own domestic market where the bull phase has lasted since the beginning of the year. The FT ordinary share index has hit successive record highs, breaching the barrier of 1,000 several times compared with a level of 860 a year ago. Not surprisingly, UK growth funds have done particularly well. Many have increased their value by more than 40 per cent. The FS Balanced Growth has achieved an astonishing 113 per cent rise. Europe has been a high

"There is always a danger that when the performance of funds is good, people are tempted to over-invest." Often it is the high growth, high risk funds which look most attractive but it is these which will suffer most if and when the bull market phase ends.

In Britain there is the further factor of an approaching general election for investors to consider. Though it is still some way off any weakness in the market may well be aggravated further if investors, particularly the big institutions, become worried at the possible outcome. There is, in any case, always uncertainty in the stock market when election time approaches.

Mr Tregoning, like many other fund managers, therefore, believes that a liberal dose of caution is required. "People should always have a rainy day fund - something safe." But for people willing to take a risk there is an expanding area of choice.

'High-growth funds will suffer most'

In the last few weeks a cluster of new European trusts has appeared. The most recent include GT Germany, Mercury European, Brown Shipley European, F&C European Income and Lloyds Bank German Growth fund. The emphasis in most European funds is on the West German stock market which is expanding rapidly with encouragement from the Government.

"South-east Asia is also a good place to look for the riskier investment," says Mr Tregoning. "But instead of going for a fund investing in a single market in the area, choose one which can switch flexibly between several, such as Hong Kong, Singapore and Malaysia, as conditions require."

"I would also go for a gold fund," he adds. But this is only for investors willing to take a two or three year view. Many investment experts believe that the current troubles in South Africa have depressed South African mining company shares so far that now is the time to pick up bargains.

R T

INTEREST RATES ROUND-UP

Banks
Current account - no interest paid.
Deposit accounts - seven days, notice required for withdrawals. Barclays 5.75 per cent, Lloyds 6.00 per cent, Midland 5.75 per cent, NatWest 6 per cent, National Girobank 6 per cent. Fixed term deposits £10,000-£24,999, 1 month 8.125 per cent, 3 months 7.875 per cent, 6 months 7.625 per cent, National Westminster, 1 month 7.75 per cent, 3 months 7.57 per cent, 6 months 7.25 per cent, Midland. Other banks may differ.

National Savings Certificates
31st issue. Return totally free of income and capital gains tax, equivalent to an annual interest rate over the five-year term of 7.85 per cent, maximum investment £5,000.

National Savings Yearly Plan
A one year regular savings plan converting into four-year savings certificates. Minimum £20. Maximum £200 a month. Return over five years 8.19 per cent - tax free.

National Savings Deposit Bond
Minimum investment £100 maximum £50,000. Interest 13.25 per cent variable at six weeks notice credited annually without deduction of tax. Repayment at three months notice. Half interest only paid on bonds repaid during first year.

Local authority yearling bonds
12 months fixed rate investments interest 11 per cent basic rate tax deducted at source (can be reclaimed by non-taxpayers), minimum investment £1,000, purchased through stockbroker or bank.

Guaranteed Income Bonds
Return paid net of basic rate tax, higher rate taxpayers may have a further liability on maturity. 1 yr Credit & Commerce, 9.3 per cent, 2 yrs General Portfolio, 8.5 per cent, 3 yrs Credit & Commerce, 8.75 per cent, 4 yrs Premium Life, 8.8 per cent, 5 yrs City of Glasgow, 9.1 per cent.

Local authority town hall bonds
Fixed term, fixed rate investments, interest quoted gross (basic rate tax deducted at source reclaimable by non-taxpayers), 1, 2, 3, 4, 5 yrs, Neath, 10.75 per cent, minimum inv £500; 6 yrs, Northampton, 11 per cent, minimum inv £500; 7/8/9/10 yrs, Worthing, 11 per cent, minimum inv £500. Further details available from Chartered Institute of Public Finance & Accountancy, Loans Bureau (638 6361) between 10am and 2.30pm see also Prestel no 24808.

Building societies
Ordinary share accounts - 7.00 per cent. Extra interest accounts usually pay 1 to 2 per cent over the ordinary share rate. Rates quoted above are those most commonly offered. Individual building societies may quote different rates. Interest on all accounts paid net of basic rate tax. Not reclaimable by non-taxpayers.

Foreign currency deposits
Rates quoted by Rothschild's Old Court Ltd, Reserve 0481 0741. Seven days notice is required for withdrawal and no charge is made for switching currencies.

Banking
US dollar 10.72 per cent
US dollar 5.45 per cent
3 Mark 3.25 per cent
French Franc 8.47 per cent
Swiss Franc 2.98 per cent

year. Value of Retirement Issue Certificate purchased in September 1980, £150.72 including bonus and supplement.

September RPI 376.5.
(The new RPI figure is not announced until the third week of the following month).

National Savings Certificates
31st issue. Return totally free of income and capital gains tax, equivalent to an annual interest rate over the five-year term of 7.85 per cent, maximum investment £5,000.

National Savings Yearly Plan
A one year regular savings plan converting into four-year savings certificates. Minimum £20. Maximum £200 a month. Return over five years 8.19 per cent - tax free.

National Savings Deposit Bond
Minimum investment £100 maximum £50,000. Interest 13.25 per cent variable at six weeks notice credited annually without deduction of tax. Repayment at three months notice. Half interest only paid on bonds repaid during first year.

Local authority yearling bonds
12 months fixed rate investments interest 11 per cent basic rate tax deducted at source (can be reclaimed by non-taxpayers), minimum investment £1,000, purchased through stockbroker or bank.

Guaranteed Income Bonds
Return paid net of basic rate tax, higher rate taxpayers may have a further liability on maturity. 1 yr Credit & Commerce, 9.3 per cent, 2 yrs General Portfolio, 8.5 per cent, 3 yrs Credit & Commerce, 8.75 per cent, 4 yrs Premium Life, 8.8 per cent, 5 yrs City of Glasgow, 9.1 per cent.

Local authority town hall bonds
Fixed term, fixed rate investments, interest quoted gross (basic rate tax deducted at source reclaimable by non-taxpayers), 1, 2, 3, 4, 5 yrs, Neath, 10.75 per cent, minimum inv £500; 6 yrs, Northampton, 11 per cent, minimum inv £500; 7/8/9/10 yrs, Worthing, 11 per cent, minimum inv £500. Further details available from Chartered Institute of Public Finance & Accountancy, Loans Bureau (638 6361) between 10am and 2.30pm see also Prestel no 24808.

Building societies
Ordinary share accounts - 7.00 per cent. Extra interest accounts usually pay 1 to 2 per cent over the ordinary share rate. Rates quoted above are those most commonly offered. Individual building societies may quote different rates. Interest on all accounts paid net of basic rate tax. Not reclaimable by non-taxpayers.

Foreign currency deposits
Rates quoted by Rothschild's Old Court Ltd, Reserve 0481 0741. Seven days notice is required for withdrawal and no charge is made for switching currencies.

Banking
US dollar 10.72 per cent
US dollar 5.45 per cent
3 Mark 3.25 per cent
French Franc 8.47 per cent
Swiss Franc 2.98 per cent

108 1/2%

"We are able to offer investors up to 108 1/2% allocation of units in the new Five Star Strategic Investment with Municipal Life Assurance Limited".
For further details or an application form, please contact us at:
BARONWORTH LTD
370 Cranbrook Road
Gants Hill, Ilford
Essex IG2 6HY
Telephone: 01-518 1218

THE TIMES

To advertise in The Times or Sunday Times please telephone 01-837 3311 or 3333

Or you may write to:
Times Newspapers Ltd
Classified Dept
Freeport
London WC1 8BR

Build Capital with SCHRODERS

Unit Trust Monthly Savings Plan
For a minimum of £25 per month you can now save into any of the Schroder range of UK and International Unit Trusts.

Schroder UK Equity Fund -
£25 a month for the past 10 years (£3,000)
would be worth £12,304
(Source: Planned Savings 1.3.85)

Find out more by completing the coupon below or ring Teledata on 01-200 0200 and ask for Schroder Savings Plan

To: Schroder Unit Trusts, Regal House, 14 James Street, London WC2E 8BT. 01-836 8731

Please send me details on the Unit Trust Monthly Savings Plan

Name _____ T212

Address _____

Schroder Financial Management

UNIT TRUSTS - LIFE ASSURANCE - PENSIONS - ASSET MANAGEMENT

F&C European Income Fund

Six Capital Reasons For Supporting Europe

Economic and corporate outlook still improving. Inflation remains low, interest rates should fall further and wage increases are being contained.

Undervalued currencies. The Deutschmark, Swiss franc and Dutch guilder should benefit particularly from any weakening of the dollar.

Reporting standards of European companies have improved considerably and as a result it is becoming easier to compare them with their UK and US counterparts. On similar bases many European companies deserve to be rated.

Opportunities exist in types of company and particular industry unavailable for investment elsewhere.

Participation by domestic investors is on the increase. In many countries individuals are encouraged to invest in equities through favourable tax schemes. This will continue and in addition we now expect pension funds in Europe which normally invest wholly in bonds to play a more active role in the equity markets.

Expanding equity markets. Europe's stock markets represent a much smaller proportion of its economy than do those in the UK or US. We expect this to change in the future as new companies, many of which will offer interesting opportunities, come to the market.

F&C's European Experience

The trust is managed by F&C Unit Management Limited, part of the Foreign and Colonial Group. The Group is responsible for investments worth more than £1,300 million. Founded in 1868 it combines a lively and progressive management approach with expertise and experience built up over many years both in the UK and overseas.

F&C European Fund was launched in January 1984 at $10.00 now quoted at $13.01

The share price of F&C Eurotrust PLC, an Investment Trust investing exclusively in the European community, has gone up 299% since 1/8/80.

F&C received the Money Observer's award for Best International Investment Trust in 1984.

Income

In addition to the exciting growth prospects the fund offers an estimated initial gross yield of 5% per annum.

How to Invest

Read the general information below and then complete and post the coupon together with your cheque for the amount you wish to invest.

Investors are reminded that the price of units, and the income from them, can go down as well as up.

General Information

The trust is authorised by the Department of Trade and Industry and is managed by F&C Unit Management Limited.

Registered: The Registrar of Companies, Unit Trust Administration Company Limited, 15 Fountain Street, Manchester M2 2AP.

Management Charges: The unit charge included in the price of the Units is 5%. The annual charge is 1% (or 1/4% if the value of the Fund is over £10,000) plus 1/4% of the value of the Fund.

Unit Prices: Prices and values are published daily in the Financial Times, the Daily Telegraph and The Times.

Income: Dividends and interest are paid on 15th March and 15th September.

Buying Units: Units are allocated at the price ruling at the time of purchase. Applications are accepted and certificates are issued within 30 days. Buying units by telephone: you must only give telephone instructions to the Dealers on 01-423 4601. No confirmation is necessary. You will receive a contract within seven days and your unit certificate within 30 days of settlement.

Other Prices: Units are on offer at a fixed price of 50p per unit until 31st October 1985 after which date they may be purchased or sold at the price quoted daily. In the initial offer period a maximum of 10,000 units will be sold at a discount of 10%.

Selling Units: Units may be sold back at any time at a price not less than the bid price calculated in accordance with the requirements of the Department of Trade and Industry. Payment is normally made within 7 days of receipt of your requested certificate.

Investment Advisers: Foreign & Colonial Management Limited.

Trustee: Mullard Bank Trust Company Limited, Mullard Bank Buildings, PO Box 440, 70 Spring Gardens, Manchester M60 2LX.

Dealers: Price Watchhouse.

Managers: F&C Unit Management Limited, 1 Laurence Pountney Hill, London EC4R 0BA. Telephone: (01) 623 4601.

Registration No: 1042963 England VAT Registration No: 244 4043 86

F&C European Income Fund

To: F&C Unit Management Limited, 1 Laurence Pountney Hill, London EC4R 0BA.

I/we wish to take advantage of your offer and to invest £..... (Minimum investment is £500). In the F&C European Income Fund of the price ruling on the day you receive my/our application.

In the event other period investments of £2,500 or more will be given a discount of 1%.

I enclose my cheque made payable to F&C Unit Management Limited.

I am/we are over 18 years old.

Please send me your detailed fund brochure if I tick box.

Surname: Mr/Ms/Miss

BLACK CARDS PLEASE

Res Name/s: _____

Address: _____

Postcode: _____

Signature: _____ (If more than one applicant such as husband and wife apply, each person must sign. Please do so on a separate sheet and enclose.)

In addition please send me details of Monthly Savings Plan. ☐ Please tick.

Portfolio Management Services. ☐ Please tick.

Foreign & Colonial

MANAGEMENT GROUP

Residents of the Rep. of Ireland cannot apply.

T121085

THE WINNING UNIT TRUST PORTFOLIO MANAGERS

Every six months since January 1982 'Planned Savings' magazine assesses the performance of the leading unit trust portfolio managers. Regularly Richards Longstaff Unit Trust Portfolio Management walk away with the winner's laurels for Capital Growth. Success in the expanding world of unit trusts necessitates specialist professional advice on the choice from over 700 funds and often rapid changes in prospects for international stockmarkets. We are even more delighted that our Portfolio Management Service is providing consistent long term value. There is a minimum investment of £10,000 which if invested in our competition portfolio on 4 January 1982, would have been worth £30,013 on the 1st July 1985.

1983 1st
1984 1st
1985 1st

If you want to know how Richards Longstaff Unit Trust Portfolio Management can achieve a winning investment performance for you, contact Stephen Jones on (0272) 294313 or post the coupon.

To: Richards Longstaff Ltd. Name _____
6 King Street, Address _____
Bristol BS1 4EQ

Please send me full details of your unit trust service.

T121085

Member of the National Association of Security Dealers and Investment Managers

مكازم الأصيل

Germany's stock market performs just as impressively. Hence our German Growth Unit Trust.

The Federal Republic's economy is now the fourth largest in the world.

Its stock market, the fifth largest.

Over the last three years to 18 September 1985, share prices have risen by no less than 141 per cent (Commerzbank index, adjusted for currency fluctuations).

It would seem that the German Stock Exchange is doing very nicely, danke schön.

There are a host of reasons why.

The German economy is thriving, with inflation running at around two per cent. (At that rate it's the lowest in Europe.)

This bodes well for the future strength of the Deutschmark.

The government is encouraging greater business initiatives.

In fact, in the last three years the profits of German companies have risen by 70 per cent.

And still Germany's growth prospects during 1986 are expected to be among the best in Europe.

With low interest rates, the time is ripe for new business investment and development.

So there's plenty of scope for further stock market gains.

Just as there's plenty of scope for our

German Growth Unit Trust.

Unlike some, our Trust will benefit from the on-the-spot advice of a leading German investment house: Schröder Münchmeyer Hengst Capital.

As part of Lloyds Bank, the credentials of SMH Capital are most impressive. They already manage funds equivalent to around £300 million.

Ours is an extremely successful financial partnership.

This year we launched, in tandem, the German Smaller Companies Investment Trust, which attracted over £12 million.

Clearly, our new German Growth Unit Trust will be an attractive addition to your portfolio.

The initial offer price of units is 50p until 1 November. The minimum investment is £500.

Units may be bought from any branch of Lloyds Bank (even if you're not a Lloyds Bank customer.)

Alternatively, simply fill in the form on the right or call E. W. Shipley on (0444) 459144.

As far as Germany's high performance products go, our Unit Trust could well surpass them all.

To: Lloyds Bank Unit Trust Managers Limited, FREEPOST, Haywards Heath, Sussex, RH16 3ZA.

I wish to invest in Units of the German Growth Unit Trust and enclose a remittance payable to Lloyds Bank Unit Trust Managers Ltd. £

Please tick box if you require half yearly distribution of net income on 30 November and 31 May each year, through the purchase of Income Units. ☐ The minimum initial investment is £500. Additional unit purchases must be for not less than £100.

I declare that I am: we are over 18 years old.

Date of birth if aged between 16 and 18

(Joint applicants must sign and attach names and addresses separately).

Signature(s)

Date

BLACK CAPITALS PLEASE

Mr/Mrs/Ms/Miss/Title/Forenames

Surname

Address

Postcode

This offer is not available to residents of the Republic of Ireland.

GENERAL INFORMATION.

Up to 25% of the Fund may be invested in the German second tier market, if and when authorised by the Department of Trade.

The Managers can buy and sell currency forward for investment purposes, raise currency loans and take any Department of Trade authorised means to hedge the currency risk. Based upon the initial offer price of 50p, the estimated gross starting yield will be less than 2% per annum.

Prices of units and the income from them can go down as well as up. This is a specialist unit trust and the performance is likely to be more volatile than a more broadly based fund. You should therefore bear that in mind when deciding what proportion of your investments should go into this trust.

Contract notes will not be issued for the initial offer.

Certificates will be forwarded by the Managers within six weeks of receipt of cheque.

The offer price includes an initial charge of 3%, the annual charge is 1.4% + VAT. The annual charge may be increased up to a maximum of 3% on 3 months notice to unit holders. The Managers retain the rounding adjustment. The first distribution of income will be 30 May 1986.

It is the practice of the Managers to pay remuneration to qualified intermediaries. Rates are available on request. Units can be sold back to the Managers at not less than the bid price calculated to a formula approved by the Department of Trade.

Trustee: Alliance Assurance Co Ltd. Managers: Lloyds Bank Unit Trust Managers Ltd. Registered in England No 883670. Reg. Office 71 Lombard Street, LONDON EC3P 3BS. A member of the Unit Trust Association.

Lloyds Bank

A THOROUGHbred AMONGST BANKS.

Asset Unit Trust Managers	Est	Other	Why	Chng	Ytd	Est	Other	Why	Chng	Ytd	Est	Other	Why	Chng	Ytd	Est	Other	Why	Chng	Ytd	Est	Other	Why	Chng	Ytd	Est	Other	Why	Chng	Ytd
ABN AMRO UNIT TRUST MANAGERS
ABN AMRO Global Bond	118.1	118.1				118.1	118.1				118.1	118.1				118.1	118.1				118.1	118.1				118.1	118.1
ABN AMRO Global Equity	118.1	118.1				118.1	118.1				118.1	118.1				118.1	118.1				118.1	118.1				118.1	118.1
ABN AMRO Global Income	118.1	118.1				118.1	118.1				118.1	118.1				118.1	118.1				118.1	118.1				118.1	118.1
ABN AMRO Global Real Estate	118.1	118.1				118.1	118.1				118.1	118.1				118.1	118.1				118.1	118.1				118.1	118.1
ABN AMRO Global Technology	118.1	118.1				118.1	118.1				118.1	118.1				118.1	118.1				118.1	118.1				118.1	118.1
ABN AMRO Global Healthcare	118.1	118.1				118.1	118.1				118.1	118.1				118.1	118.1				118.1	118.1				118.1	118.1
ABN AMRO Global Energy	118.1	118.1				118.1	118.1				118.1	118.1				118.1	118.1				118.1	118.1				118.1	118.1
ABN AMRO Global Materials	118.1	118.1				118.1	118.1				118.1	118.1				118.1	118.1				118.1	118.1				118.1	118.1
ABN AMRO Global Consumer Goods	118.1	118.1				118.1	118.1				118.1	118.1				118.1	118.1				118.1	118.1				118.1	118.1
ABN AMRO Global Financial Services	118.1	118.1				118.1	118.1				118.1	118.1				118.1	118.1				118.1	118.1				118.1	118.1
ABN AMRO Global Telecommunications	118.1	118.1				118.1	118.1				118.1	118.1				118.1	118.1				118.1	118.1				118.1	118.1
ABN AMRO Global Media	118.1	118.1				118.1	118.1				118.1	118.1				118.1	118.1				118.1	118.1				118.1	118.1
ABN AMRO Global Industrial	118.1	118.1				118.1	118.1				118.1	118.1				118.1	118.1				118.1	118.1				118.1	118.1
ABN AMRO Global Transportation	118.1	118.1				118.1	118.1				118.1	118.1				118.1	118.1				118.1	118.1				118.1	118.1
ABN AMRO Global Utilities	118.1	118.1				118.1	118.1				118.1	118.1				118.1	118.1				118.1	118.1				118.1	118.1
ABN AMRO Global Real Estate	118.1	118.1				118.1	118.1				118.1	118.1				118.1	118.1				118.1	118.1				118.1	118.1
ABN AMRO Global Infrastructure	118.1	118.1				118.1	118.1				118.1	118.1				118.1	118.1				118.1	118.1				118.1	118.1
ABN AMRO Global Environmental	118.1	118.1				118.1	118.1				118.1	118.1				118.1	118.1				118.1	118.1

UNIT LINKED INSURANCE INVESTMENTS

[illegible]

هكذا من الأحكام

TENNIS

Britain fall to the Maleeva sisters

Nagoya (Reuters) - Britain were knocked out of the Federation Cup women's team tournament here yesterday by Bulgaria, who beat them 2-1 in the quarter-finals. The Bulgarians, seeded seventh, are in the semi-finals for the first time and will next play Czechoslovakia, the defending champions.

The Maleeva sisters were in impressive form against Britain but the younger, Katerina, suffered stomach pains in the doubles and the Bulgarians missed when they were 5-4 behind to Jo Durie and Anne Hobbs in the first set. Doctors said that her condition was not serious and it was most likely she would be able to play today after a rest.

Bulgaria had taken a 2-0 winning lead after Manuela Maleeva, ranked No 8 in the world, beat Annabel Croft 6-2, 6-2, 6-2, and the sister prevailed in a tough match against Miss Durie 6-2, 4-6, 8-6. Miss Croft was outwitted by a combination of defence, shots, lobs and forehand drives.

Miss Durie was 5-0 down against her 16-year-old opponent and, after conceding the next two games, the Bulgarian wrapped up the first set. Miss Durie's powerful forehand won her the second but her opponent achieved good depth with her ground strokes and won the tense third set when she broke service in the fourth game. Czechoslovakia ensured their semi-final place with a 3-0 victory over Hungary. Man Mandlikova, the United States Open champion, ranked third in the world, outplayed Andrea Temesvari, 6-3, 6-3, but Helena Sukova was fully extended in defeating the lowly-ranked Calla Barua, 6-7, 6-2, 6-2.

What is more, the Czechoslovak world ranking with a sterling performance to take the first set on a 7-5 tie-break. The Czechoslovak, however, rallied in the second with breaks in the first and seventh games and swept through the third as the errors by Miss Barua mounted. Miss Temesvari stayed with Miss Mandlikova to 3-3 in the first set but thereafter was never in the hunt.

Manuela Maleeva: outwitted Miss Croft

her ground strokes and won the tense third set when she broke service in the fourth game. Czechoslovakia ensured their semi-final place with a 3-0 victory over Hungary. Man Mandlikova, the United States Open champion, ranked third in the world, outplayed Andrea Temesvari, 6-3, 6-3, but Helena Sukova was fully extended in defeating the lowly-ranked Calla Barua, 6-7, 6-2, 6-2.

What is more, the Czechoslovak world ranking with a sterling performance to take the first set on a 7-5 tie-break. The Czechoslovak, however, rallied in the second with breaks in the first and seventh games and swept through the third as the errors by Miss Barua mounted. Miss Temesvari stayed with Miss Mandlikova to 3-3 in the first set but thereafter was never in the hunt.

Manuela Maleeva: outwitted Miss Croft

her ground strokes and won the tense third set when she broke service in the fourth game. Czechoslovakia ensured their semi-final place with a 3-0 victory over Hungary. Man Mandlikova, the United States Open champion, ranked third in the world, outplayed Andrea Temesvari, 6-3, 6-3, but Helena Sukova was fully extended in defeating the lowly-ranked Calla Barua, 6-7, 6-2, 6-2.

What is more, the Czechoslovak world ranking with a sterling performance to take the first set on a 7-5 tie-break. The Czechoslovak, however, rallied in the second with breaks in the first and seventh games and swept through the third as the errors by Miss Barua mounted. Miss Temesvari stayed with Miss Mandlikova to 3-3 in the first set but thereafter was never in the hunt.

Manuela Maleeva: outwitted Miss Croft

her ground strokes and won the tense third set when she broke service in the fourth game. Czechoslovakia ensured their semi-final place with a 3-0 victory over Hungary. Man Mandlikova, the United States Open champion, ranked third in the world, outplayed Andrea Temesvari, 6-3, 6-3, but Helena Sukova was fully extended in defeating the lowly-ranked Calla Barua, 6-7, 6-2, 6-2.

What is more, the Czechoslovak world ranking with a sterling performance to take the first set on a 7-5 tie-break. The Czechoslovak, however, rallied in the second with breaks in the first and seventh games and swept through the third as the errors by Miss Barua mounted. Miss Temesvari stayed with Miss Mandlikova to 3-3 in the first set but thereafter was never in the hunt.

Manuela Maleeva: outwitted Miss Croft

her ground strokes and won the tense third set when she broke service in the fourth game. Czechoslovakia ensured their semi-final place with a 3-0 victory over Hungary. Man Mandlikova, the United States Open champion, ranked third in the world, outplayed Andrea Temesvari, 6-3, 6-3, but Helena Sukova was fully extended in defeating the lowly-ranked Calla Barua, 6-7, 6-2, 6-2.

What is more, the Czechoslovak world ranking with a sterling performance to take the first set on a 7-5 tie-break. The Czechoslovak, however, rallied in the second with breaks in the first and seventh games and swept through the third as the errors by Miss Barua mounted. Miss Temesvari stayed with Miss Mandlikova to 3-3 in the first set but thereafter was never in the hunt.

Manuela Maleeva: outwitted Miss Croft

her ground strokes and won the tense third set when she broke service in the fourth game. Czechoslovakia ensured their semi-final place with a 3-0 victory over Hungary. Man Mandlikova, the United States Open champion, ranked third in the world, outplayed Andrea Temesvari, 6-3, 6-3, but Helena Sukova was fully extended in defeating the lowly-ranked Calla Barua, 6-7, 6-2, 6-2.

What is more, the Czechoslovak world ranking with a sterling performance to take the first set on a 7-5 tie-break. The Czechoslovak, however, rallied in the second with breaks in the first and seventh games and swept through the third as the errors by Miss Barua mounted. Miss Temesvari stayed with Miss Mandlikova to 3-3 in the first set but thereafter was never in the hunt.

Manuela Maleeva: outwitted Miss Croft

her ground strokes and won the tense third set when she broke service in the fourth game. Czechoslovakia ensured their semi-final place with a 3-0 victory over Hungary. Man Mandlikova, the United States Open champion, ranked third in the world, outplayed Andrea Temesvari, 6-3, 6-3, but Helena Sukova was fully extended in defeating the lowly-ranked Calla Barua, 6-7, 6-2, 6-2.

BOXING

Nelson keeps one eye on Coddell and the other on McGuigan

By Srikumar Sen, Boxing Correspondent

It was a trick that was perfected by Muhammad Ali - to be dismissive of a challenger by looking ahead and demolishing his next opponent. Asazul Nelson, the World Boxing Council's featherweight champion, employed it last week when he forecast what he would do to Barry McGuigan, his World Boxing Association counterpart, this trying to put down Pat Coddell, of Warley, whom he meets tonight at the National Exhibition Centre, Birmingham.

No doubt Coddell, who is world-ranked as a featherweight and a super-featherweight, rode those backhanded swipes comfortably, but when Nelson went on to back his words with sizzling sparring sessions in Birmingham with the former world light-welterweight champion, Leroy Haley, he was suitably impressed and Coddell's close fans suitably downcast.

Nelson bounced his way out of trouble, his gloved hands on his belt like a gun-slinger, then unleashed bullet-fast combinations on Haley.

Bill Prezant, Nelson's American corner man, marvelled at his repertoire. "He is Sadder and Pep in one," he said. "One hell of a fighter. He can open up on anyone like Coddell. Just like that, he is very clever and can sucker you into a lot of different things."

Nelson's trainer, Frank Moses, smiled and said: "It will not go more than six rounds." As one watched, Coddell's attributes seemed to contract into just a defensive jab from a crab-like stance. The talented young Liverpool bantamweight, John Hyland, who had been watching Nelson spellbound, said: "He makes it look so easy, some people make more effort eating their tea. What have I learnt? Not to go in with him!"

What is more, the Czechoslovak world ranking with a sterling performance to take the first set on a 7-5 tie-break. The Czechoslovak, however, rallied in the second with breaks in the first and seventh games and swept through the third as the errors by Miss Barua mounted. Miss Temesvari stayed with Miss Mandlikova to 3-3 in the first set but thereafter was never in the hunt.

Manuela Maleeva: outwitted Miss Croft

her ground strokes and won the tense third set when she broke service in the fourth game. Czechoslovakia ensured their semi-final place with a 3-0 victory over Hungary. Man Mandlikova, the United States Open champion, ranked third in the world, outplayed Andrea Temesvari, 6-3, 6-3, but Helena Sukova was fully extended in defeating the lowly-ranked Calla Barua, 6-7, 6-2, 6-2.

What is more, the Czechoslovak world ranking with a sterling performance to take the first set on a 7-5 tie-break. The Czechoslovak, however, rallied in the second with breaks in the first and seventh games and swept through the third as the errors by Miss Barua mounted. Miss Temesvari stayed with Miss Mandlikova to 3-3 in the first set but thereafter was never in the hunt.

Manuela Maleeva: outwitted Miss Croft

her ground strokes and won the tense third set when she broke service in the fourth game. Czechoslovakia ensured their semi-final place with a 3-0 victory over Hungary. Man Mandlikova, the United States Open champion, ranked third in the world, outplayed Andrea Temesvari, 6-3, 6-3, but Helena Sukova was fully extended in defeating the lowly-ranked Calla Barua, 6-7, 6-2, 6-2.

What is more, the Czechoslovak world ranking with a sterling performance to take the first set on a 7-5 tie-break. The Czechoslovak, however, rallied in the second with breaks in the first and seventh games and swept through the third as the errors by Miss Barua mounted. Miss Temesvari stayed with Miss Mandlikova to 3-3 in the first set but thereafter was never in the hunt.

Manuela Maleeva: outwitted Miss Croft

her ground strokes and won the tense third set when she broke service in the fourth game. Czechoslovakia ensured their semi-final place with a 3-0 victory over Hungary. Man Mandlikova, the United States Open champion, ranked third in the world, outplayed Andrea Temesvari, 6-3, 6-3, but Helena Sukova was fully extended in defeating the lowly-ranked Calla Barua, 6-7, 6-2, 6-2.

What is more, the Czechoslovak world ranking with a sterling performance to take the first set on a 7-5 tie-break. The Czechoslovak, however, rallied in the second with breaks in the first and seventh games and swept through the third as the errors by Miss Barua mounted. Miss Temesvari stayed with Miss Mandlikova to 3-3 in the first set but thereafter was never in the hunt.

Manuela Maleeva: outwitted Miss Croft

her ground strokes and won the tense third set when she broke service in the fourth game. Czechoslovakia ensured their semi-final place with a 3-0 victory over Hungary. Man Mandlikova, the United States Open champion, ranked third in the world, outplayed Andrea Temesvari, 6-3, 6-3, but Helena Sukova was fully extended in defeating the lowly-ranked Calla Barua, 6-7, 6-2, 6-2.

What is more, the Czechoslovak world ranking with a sterling performance to take the first set on a 7-5 tie-break. The Czechoslovak, however, rallied in the second with breaks in the first and seventh games and swept through the third as the errors by Miss Barua mounted. Miss Temesvari stayed with Miss Mandlikova to 3-3 in the first set but thereafter was never in the hunt.

Manuela Maleeva: outwitted Miss Croft

her ground strokes and won the tense third set when she broke service in the fourth game. Czechoslovakia ensured their semi-final place with a 3-0 victory over Hungary. Man Mandlikova, the United States Open champion, ranked third in the world, outplayed Andrea Temesvari, 6-3, 6-3, but Helena Sukova was fully extended in defeating the lowly-ranked Calla Barua, 6-7, 6-2, 6-2.

What is more, the Czechoslovak world ranking with a sterling performance to take the first set on a 7-5 tie-break. The Czechoslovak, however, rallied in the second with breaks in the first and seventh games and swept through the third as the errors by Miss Barua mounted. Miss Temesvari stayed with Miss Mandlikova to 3-3 in the first set but thereafter was never in the hunt.

Manuela Maleeva: outwitted Miss Croft

an Olympic bronze medal and a Commonwealth gold.

Nelson won a Commonwealth gold and the World Military Games title. As professionals, they met, the great Salvador Sanchez, Coddell went 15 rounds and lost on a split decision and Nelson was stopped in the last round. It must be said that it was only Nelson's fourteenth contest, taken at two weeks' notice.

Whereas Coddell retired in 1982 and then staged a comeback, Nelson went on to take the WBC crown by knocking out the fearsome Wilfredo Gomez, of Puerto Rico, in his home town. Gomez is the current WBC super-featherweight champion.

Coddell's showing in the gym left one with plenty of hope. Against the awesome little Venezuelan, Jesus Pili, he looked every bit as good as Nelson. The Venezuelan brought out the fighter in Coddell. While he does not have all the fancy shots of Nelson, his right hand is extremely accurate and could pose a lot of problems.

If Nelson tries to dominate the fight he will bring the best out of the challenger. If the champion does not stop him or cut him in will be surprising if Coddell fails to get on top in the later rounds and finish the stronger to win on points.

Coddell, at 32, is five years older than the Ghanaian. He has the ability and stamina to frustrate the champion. As his manager, Pat Lynch, says: "If he tries to walk into Pat he is going to know about it." Coddell is punching much harder than he used to when he was European champion in 1982.

He is the most accomplished boxer in Britain today, with an equable temperament that could see him through the most torrid moments and keep him there with a chance to the end. It should be one of those nights when ITV viewers see a classic contest of great skill and courage from both men. The live broadcast begins at 10.0.

Manuela Maleeva: outwitted Miss Croft

her ground strokes and won the tense third set when she broke service in the fourth game. Czechoslovakia ensured their semi-final place with a 3-0 victory over Hungary. Man Mandlikova, the United States Open champion, ranked third in the world, outplayed Andrea Temesvari, 6-3, 6-3, but Helena Sukova was fully extended in defeating the lowly-ranked Calla Barua, 6-7, 6-2, 6-2.

What is more, the Czechoslovak world ranking with a sterling performance to take the first set on a 7-5 tie-break. The Czechoslovak, however, rallied in the second with breaks in the first and seventh games and swept through the third as the errors by Miss Barua mounted. Miss Temesvari stayed with Miss Mandlikova to 3-3 in the first set but thereafter was never in the hunt.

Manuela Maleeva: outwitted Miss Croft

her ground strokes and won the tense third set when she broke service in the fourth game. Czechoslovakia ensured their semi-final place with a 3-0 victory over Hungary. Man Mandlikova, the United States Open champion, ranked third in the world, outplayed Andrea Temesvari, 6-3, 6-3, but Helena Sukova was fully extended in defeating the lowly-ranked Calla Barua, 6-7, 6-2, 6-2.

What is more, the Czechoslovak world ranking with a sterling performance to take the first set on a 7-5 tie-break. The Czechoslovak, however, rallied in the second with breaks in the first and seventh games and swept through the third as the errors by Miss Barua mounted. Miss Temesvari stayed with Miss Mandlikova to 3-3 in the first set but thereafter was never in the hunt.

Manuela Maleeva: outwitted Miss Croft

her ground strokes and won the tense third set when she broke service in the fourth game. Czechoslovakia ensured their semi-final place with a 3-0 victory over Hungary. Man Mandlikova, the United States Open champion, ranked third in the world, outplayed Andrea Temesvari, 6-3, 6-3, but Helena Sukova was fully extended in defeating the lowly-ranked Calla Barua, 6-7, 6-2, 6-2.

What is more, the Czechoslovak world ranking with a sterling performance to take the first set on a 7-5 tie-break. The Czechoslovak, however, rallied in the second with breaks in the first and seventh games and swept through the third as the errors by Miss Barua mounted. Miss Temesvari stayed with Miss Mandlikova to 3-3 in the first set but thereafter was never in the hunt.

Manuela Maleeva: outwitted Miss Croft

her ground strokes and won the tense third set when she broke service in the fourth game. Czechoslovakia ensured their semi-final place with a 3-0 victory over Hungary. Man Mandlikova, the United States Open champion, ranked third in the world, outplayed Andrea Temesvari, 6-3, 6-3, but Helena Sukova was fully extended in defeating the lowly-ranked Calla Barua, 6-7, 6-2, 6-2.

What is more, the Czechoslovak world ranking with a sterling performance to take the first set on a 7-5 tie-break. The Czechoslovak, however, rallied in the second with breaks in the first and seventh games and swept through the third as the errors by Miss Barua mounted. Miss Temesvari stayed with Miss Mandlikova to 3-3 in the first set but thereafter was never in the hunt.

Manuela Maleeva: outwitted Miss Croft

her ground strokes and won the tense third set when she broke service in the fourth game. Czechoslovakia ensured their semi-final place with a 3-0 victory over Hungary. Man Mandlikova, the United States Open champion, ranked third in the world, outplayed Andrea Temesvari, 6-3, 6-3, but Helena Sukova was fully extended in defeating the lowly-ranked Calla Barua, 6-7, 6-2, 6-2.

What is more, the Czechoslovak world ranking with a sterling performance to take the first set on a 7-5 tie-break. The Czechoslovak, however, rallied in the second with breaks in the first and seventh games and swept through the third as the errors by Miss Barua mounted. Miss Temesvari stayed with Miss Mandlikova to 3-3 in the first set but thereafter was never in the hunt.

Manuela Maleeva: outwitted Miss Croft

The admirable Nelson (photographed above by Chris Smith) tonight sets out to catch the crab-like Coddell (bottom) in a battle in which one of them could meet his Trafalgar

The admirable Nelson (photographed above by Chris Smith) tonight sets out to catch the crab-like Coddell (bottom) in a battle in which one of them could meet his Trafalgar

RUGBY LEAGUE

Warrington should beat fitful Wigan

By Keith Macklin

The New Zealanders face the champions, Hull Kingston Rovers, tomorrow and a crowd of around 8,000 or 9,000 can be expected at Craven Park. However, on the other side of the Pennines, at Knowsley Road, St Helens, more than twice that number will watch the Lancashire Cup final between Warrington and Wigan.

Wigan's massive crowd pulling appeal will take anything up to 15,000 people to Knowsley Road, but the two teams are not yet set for the support they deserve. They could muster 5,000 to provide a crowd of well over 20,000.

Warrington were boosted by the news that their two overseas international forwards are fit. They are the New Zealand front row man, Kevin Tamati, and the Australian second row, Les Boyd, both of them tough and thoroughly uncompromising characters, who will shake up the Wigan pack.

Tamati is named as substitute, and will undoubtedly be thrown into the fray only if Warrington begin to lose the forward battle and fall behind. Warrington also have a brilliant Australian half back in Paul Blake, who scored four tries last week, and with Wigan playing fitly, despite their best efforts, expect Warrington to win by a narrow margin. Wigan's woes will be the British internationals, Eleri Hanley and Andy Goodway, and the Australians, Steve Ella and Greg Dowling.

Absent from the Hull KR pack against the New Zealanders will be Chris Burton, who also misses his chance of an international place the following week because of suspension.

Vince Gribbin, the Whitehaven player who is on loan to Salford while in dispute with his club, plays in the home game against Oldham tomorrow.

In the second division, Fulham travel to the most improved side in the league, Rochdale Hornets, and will face another Hornets Australian signing, Tony, Austin.

Headingley will be the venue for the Yorkshire Cup final between Castleford and Hull KR on October 27.

IN BRIEF

Australians oppose Games split

Canberra (Reuters) - The Australian Olympic Federation has joined protests against North Korea's attempt to stage half the 1988 Games planned for Seoul.

The federation has called Juan Antonio Samaranch, president of the International Olympic Committee (IOC), pressing its view. A meeting of the IOC ended on Wednesday with no sign of agreement and both North and South Korea apparently unable to ward off a damaging row over co-ordinating the games. Another round of talks is scheduled for January 8 and 9.

CRICKET: Mark Benson, the Kent vice-captain and left handed opening batsman, is scheduled to go into hospital next week for surgery on his right knee. He had a cartilage removed in April 1984, but was still experiencing some discomfort last season.

SQUASH RACKETS: Jonathan Barrington, the 44-year-old world champion, will be in the line-up for the 16-year-old Del Harris, when Cannons meet newly promoted Ardleigh Hall on Tuesday.

SIDELINES

What makes a match matchless

Match of the Day. Goal of the Week. Manager of the Month. Player of the Month. These are the accolades which are bestowed on players who have made a difference to their team. It is a fact not often realised that many of these accolades are given to players who have made a difference to their team. It is a fact not often realised that many of these accolades are given to players who have made a difference to their team.

Match of the Day. Goal of the Week. Manager of the Month. Player of the Month. These are the accolades which are bestowed on players who have made a difference to their team. It is a fact not often realised that many of these accolades are given to players who have made a difference to their team. It is a fact not often realised that many of these accolades are given to players who have made a difference to their team.

Match of the Day. Goal of the Week. Manager of the Month. Player of the Month. These are the accolades which are bestowed on players who have made a difference to their team. It is a fact not often realised that many of these accolades are given to players who have made a difference to their team. It is a fact not often realised that many of these accolades are given to players who have made a difference to their team.

Match of the Day. Goal of the Week. Manager of the Month. Player of the Month. These are the accolades which are bestowed on players who have made a difference to their team. It is a fact not often realised that many of these accolades are given to players who have made a difference to their team. It is a fact not often realised that many of these accolades are given to players who have made a difference to their team.

Match of the Day. Goal of the Week. Manager of the Month. Player of the Month. These are the accolades which are bestowed on players who have made a difference to their team. It is a fact not often realised that many of these accolades are given to players who have made a difference to their team. It is a fact not often realised that many of these accolades are given to players who have made a difference to their team.

Match of the Day. Goal of the Week. Manager of the Month. Player of the Month. These are the accolades which are bestowed on players who have made a difference to their team. It is a fact not often realised that many of these accolades are given to players who have made a difference to their team. It is a fact not often realised that many of these accolades are given to players who have made a difference to their team.

Match of the Day. Goal of the Week. Manager of the Month. Player of the Month. These are the accolades which are bestowed on players who have made a difference to their team. It is a fact not often realised that many of these accolades are given to players who have made a difference to their team. It is a fact not often realised that many of these accolades are given to players who have made a difference to their team.

Match of the Day. Goal of the Week. Manager of the Month. Player of the Month. These are the accolades which are bestowed on players who have made a difference to their team. It is a fact not often realised that many of these accolades are given to players who have made a difference to their team. It is a fact not often realised that many of these accolades are given to players who have made a difference to their team.

RUGBY UNION

Fijian captain may help England by inspiring Scott

By David Hands, Rugby Correspondent

Essa Teleni, the captain of the Fijian touring team, may do English rugby a favour if he can bring the best out of John Scott of Cardiff today. The two men play No 8 for their respective sides and Scott still sets the yardstick for those uncapped players aspiring to occupy the position he held in 31 games for England.

Scott, Colclough and Hare - three men who announced their retirement from international football over the last 14 months but who may reconsider now that England are under new management - are not in the national training squad which assembles this evening and works out at Twickenham tomorrow of their positions. No 8s must all be among England's problem areas and clearly all three may play in the divisional championship in December.

Each is involved for his club. Scott is involved for his club, Bridgend in midweek, Webb scoring three tries against the international wing, Hadley. Nevertheless, their 10 internationals should be a testing time for a Fijian side showing six changes for that which beat Cross Keys but including a man who sounds as though he should be on the other side. Hughes, their athletic lock.

There are three John Smiths in the Welsh side. Gloucester visiting Harlequins, London Irish playing Saracens and Bristol meeting Wasps. In the Bristol game Dan, nominally Wasps' captain last season but prevented from playing by a knee injury, appears for Bristol, not as blind-side flanker, the position in which he was capped, but at No 8.

Cardiff, their minds possibly on today's game, were beaten by Bridgend in midweek, Webb scoring three tries against the international wing, Hadley. Nevertheless, their 10 internationals should be a testing time for a Fijian side showing six changes for that which beat Cross Keys but including a man who sounds as though he should be on the other side. Hughes, their athletic lock.

There are three John Smiths in the Welsh side. Gloucester visiting Harlequins, London Irish playing Saracens and Bristol meeting Wasps. In the Bristol game Dan, nominally Wasps' captain last season but prevented from playing by a knee injury, appears for Bristol, not as blind-side flanker, the position in which he was capped, but at No 8.

Cardiff, their minds possibly on today's game, were beaten by Bridgend in midweek, Webb scoring three tries against the international wing, Hadley. Nevertheless, their 10 internationals should be a testing time for a Fijian side showing six changes for that which beat Cross Keys but including a man who sounds as though he should be on the other side. Hughes, their athletic lock.

There are three John Smiths in the Welsh side. Gloucester visiting Harlequins, London Irish playing Saracens and Bristol meeting Wasps. In the Bristol game Dan, nominally Wasps' captain last season but prevented from playing by a knee injury, appears for Bristol, not as blind-side flanker, the position in which he was capped, but at No 8.

Cardiff, their minds possibly on today's game, were beaten by Bridgend in midweek, Webb scoring three tries against the international wing, Hadley. Nevertheless, their 10 internationals should be a testing time for a Fijian side showing six changes for that which beat Cross Keys but including a man who sounds as though he should be on the other side. Hughes, their athletic lock.

There are three John Smiths in the Welsh side. Gloucester visiting Harlequins, London Irish playing Saracens and Bristol meeting Wasps. In the Bristol game Dan, nominally Wasps' captain last season but prevented from playing by a knee injury, appears for Bristol, not as blind-side flanker, the position in which he was capped, but at No 8.

Cardiff, their minds possibly on today's game, were beaten by Bridgend in midweek, Webb scoring three tries against the international wing, Hadley. Nevertheless, their 10 internationals should be a testing time for a Fijian side showing six changes for that which beat Cross Keys but including a man who sounds as though he should be on the other side. Hughes, their athletic lock.

There are three John Smiths in the Welsh side. Gloucester visiting Harlequins, London Irish playing Saracens and Bristol meeting Wasps. In the Bristol game Dan, nominally Wasps' captain last season but prevented from playing by a knee injury, appears for Bristol, not as blind-side flanker, the position in which he was capped, but at No 8.

Cardiff, their minds possibly on today's game, were beaten by Bridgend in midweek, Webb scoring three tries against the international wing, Hadley. Nevertheless, their 10 internationals should be a testing time for a Fijian side showing six changes for that which beat Cross Keys but including a man who sounds as though he should be on the other side. Hughes, their athletic lock.

There are three John Smiths in the Welsh side. Gloucester visiting Harlequins, London Irish playing Saracens and Bristol meeting Wasps. In the Bristol game Dan, nominally Wasps' captain last season but prevented from playing by a knee injury, appears for Bristol, not as blind-side flanker, the position in which he was capped, but at No 8.

Cardiff, their minds possibly on today's game, were beaten by Bridgend in midweek, Webb scoring three tries against the international wing, Hadley. Nevertheless, their 10 internationals should be a testing time for a Fijian side showing six changes for that which beat Cross Keys but including a man who sounds as though he should be on the other side. Hughes, their athletic lock.

There are three John Smiths in the Welsh side. Gloucester visiting Harlequins, London Irish playing Saracens and Bristol meeting Wasps. In the Bristol game Dan, nominally Wasps' captain last season but prevented from playing by a knee injury, appears for Bristol, not as blind-side flanker, the position in which he was capped, but at No 8.

Cardiff, their minds possibly on today's game, were beaten by Bridgend in midweek, Webb scoring three tries against the international wing, Hadley. Nevertheless, their 10 internationals should be a testing time for a Fijian side showing six changes for that which beat Cross Keys but including a man who sounds as though he should be on the other side. Hughes, their athletic lock.

There are three John Smiths in the Welsh side. Gloucester visiting Harlequins, London Irish playing Saracens and Bristol meeting Wasps. In the Bristol game Dan, nominally Wasps' captain last season but prevented from playing by a knee injury, appears for Bristol, not as blind-side flanker, the position in which he was capped, but at No 8.

Cardiff, their minds possibly on today's game, were beaten by Bridgend in midweek, Webb scoring three tries against the international wing, Hadley. Nevertheless, their 10 internationals should be a testing time for a Fijian side showing six changes for that which beat Cross Keys but including a man who sounds as though he should be on the other side. Hughes, their athletic lock.

There are three John Smiths in the Welsh side. Gloucester visiting Harlequins, London Irish playing Saracens and Bristol meeting Wasps. In the Bristol game Dan, nominally Wasps' captain last season but prevented from playing by a knee injury, appears for Bristol, not as blind-side flanker, the position in which he was capped, but at No 8.

Cardiff, their minds possibly on

Saturday

Weekend television and radio programmes
Edited by Peter Dear and Peter Davalle

Sunday

BBC 1

- 8.30 What-a-Mess, with Frank Muir (r). 8.35 Children of Fire (r). 9.00 The Great Train Robbery. Part two of the dramatic serial set in New Zealand at the turn of the century (r).
- 9.00 Saturday Superstore, managed by Mike Read. Among the customers are Patrick Moore with the latest news on Halley's Comet; Sir Kenneth Stevens; the Thompson Twins; B. A. Robertson with news of Children's Book Week; and Roger Daltrey.
- 12.15 Grandstand introduced by Desmond Lynam. The line-up is: 12.20 Football Focus with the Thompson Twins; 12.45 Golf: the Ladies' Open Championship from Moor Park, 1.00 News summary and weather: 1.10, 2.10 and 3.55 Motor Racing from Sandown, Australia: 1.40 Showbiz: profile of Harold L. Graham: 1.55, 2.25, 3.55 and 3.55 Racing from Ascot and, at 3.35, from The Curragh (Irish St Leger); 2.40 and 3.10 Show Jumping from Wembley: the Horses of the Year Show; 3.50 Half-time scores and reports; 4.00 Final score.
- 5.05 News with Maura Stuart. Weather. 5.15 Sport/Regional news.
- 6.20 The Ripdops. Part six of the science fiction serial and Fritz is working as a slave in the secret caverns beneath the city (CeeFax).
- 5.45 Terry and June. When they discover a tramp sleeping in the garden Terry and June try to be Christian about the intrusion but when a clock disappears their charity is strained.
- 5.15 The Noel Edmonds Late Late Show with special guests Elton John with Arcadia, featuring Simon Le Bon and Nick Rhodes. Among other diversions are selected competitors from this year's International Birdman Rally, and a chance to fly over Easter from a scaffolding tower.
- 7.05 Bob's Fall House. Electronic bingo game presented by Bob Monkhouse (CeeFax).
- 4.45 Juliet Bravo. A spate of video tapes leads Inspector Kate Longton into a far more serious crime investigation (CeeFax).
- 3.35 The Paul Daniels Magic Show. The man of magic takes a trip to Bath and discovers the joys of hot-air ballooning. In the studio are Hungarian magician Paul Potasay, and from Germany, The Olympiads, a balancing act. The guest is Elaine Keith, who is magic.
- 2.00 News and Sport. With Maura Stuart. Weather.
- 3.35 Film: The King and I (1956) starring Yul Brynner and Deborah Kerr. In tribute to the late Yul Brynner a showing of the film and the musical in which he played, perhaps his best remembered role - that of the King of Siam. Directed by Walter Lang.
- 4.45 The Horses of the Year Show from Wembley Arena. David Vine introduces coverage of the annual Double British Grand Prix. The commentators are Raymond Brooks-Ward and Patricia Hadley.
- 5.05 Weather.

-2m

- 6.55 Good Morning Britain presented by Mike Morris. News and weather at 6.55, 7.15 and 8.25; sport at 7.00; regional report at 7.25.
- 7.30 The Wide Awakes Club.
- ITV/LONDON
- 9.25 Tk. Tony Statary reports on school dinners and invites viewers to take part in the programme's nation-wide survey of the meal. 11.00 The Baron. Our hero hot foots it to South America when the love Cordele disappears.
- 12.00 News with Carol Barnes.
- 12.05 Saint and Greaville. Ian St John and Jimmy Greaves review the week's football and look forward to the afternoon's games. 12.30 Wrestling. Two bouts from High Wycombe.
- 1.30 Alrowf. Hawke joins forces with an alcoholic ex-flyer in an attempt to prevent a retired army general installing a nuclear missile attack on Moscow.
- 2.15 International Darts. Dickie Dean introduces quarterfinal coverage of the MFI World Matchplay from The Fulcrum, Slough.
- 4.15 Benson. Part two of the story. In which Benson becomes mixed up in murder and madness when on holiday with the Governor.
- 4.45 Results. Carol Barnes.
- 5.00 News with Carol Barnes.
- 5.05 Blockbusters.
- 5.35 The A-Team. A young artist asks the team to find the gang that put her boyfriend in hospital.
- 6.30 Child's Play presented by Michaela Delfino. Sue Apple and David Jensen try to discover the words children attempt to describe.
- 7.00 Game for a Laugh. The first in a new series, presented by Jeremy Beckett, Debbie Rix and Martin P. Darke.
- 7.45 3-1. Game show presented by Mike Rogers. Couples from Birmingham, Chelmsford and Doncaster in competition with a City flavour. The guests include Frankie Howard, (Gracie).
- 8.45 Dempsy and Melanepace. The two investigators are on the trail of Rogers. Sue Apple was the victim of a hit and run driver. As they delve deep they unearth a high level government connection and some disturbing facts.
- 9.45 News and Sport. With Carol Barnes.
- 10.00 Boxing the WBC Featherweight Championship. Paulie Boy Taylor and Cus D'Amato challenge the holder of the title, Azumah Nelson of Ghana.
- 10.30 LWT News headlines followed by international Darts. Samitinal action in the MFI World Matchplay.
- 11.00 Stuile One - in Concert. Paulie Boy Taylor, Cus D'Amato, Rogers and Sugar Sugar.
- 11.30 Police Squad. Comedy crime series in which this week Detective Drebin poses as a locksmith in order to trap a gang of racketeers.
- 11.55 Night Thoughts.

DON

- 9.25 TX Tony Statary reports on school dinners and invites viewers to take part in the programme's nation-wide survey of the meal, 11.00 The Baron Our hero hot foots it to South America when the love Cordeila disappears.
- 12.00 News with Carol Barnes.
- 12.05 Sales and Greenville, Ian St John and Jimmie Graves review the week's football and look forward to the afternoon's games, 12.30 Wrestling Two bouts from High Wycombe.
- 1.30 Alert Hawke joins forces with an anti-rob car-fixer in an attempt to prevent a retired army general instigating a nuclear missile attack on Moscow.
- 2.15 International Darts Dickie Davies introduces quarterfinal coverage of the MFI World Matchplay from The Fulcrum, Slough.
- 4.15 Benson Part two of the story. In which Benson becomes mixed up in murder and mayhem when on holiday with the Governor.
- 4.45 Results Service.
- 5.00 News with Carol Barnes. Weather.
- 5.05 Shockhunters.
- 5.35 The A-Team A young artist asks the team to find the gang that put her boyfriend in hospital.
- 6.30 Chad's Play presented by Michael Aspel. Sue Ingle and David Jensen try to discover the words of children attempt to describe.
- 7.00 Game for a Laugh. The first in a new series, presented by Jeremy Beadle, Debbie Rix and Les P. Davies.
- 7.45 3-2-1 Game show presented by Ted Rogers. Couples from Birmingham, Chelmsford and Doncaster in competition with a City flavour. The guests include Francis Howard, (Gracie).
- 8.45 Dempsey and Makepeace. The two investigators are on the trail of a model who was the victim of a hit and run driver. As they delve deep they unearth a high level government connection and some disturbing facts.
- 9.45 News and Sport With Carol Barnes.
- 10.00 Bodging the WBC Featherweight Championship. Brian's old rival Covel challenges the holder of the title, Azumah Nelson of Ghana.
- 10.15 LWT News headlines followed by international Darts. Samfirth action in the MFI World Matchplay.
- 11.00 Studio One - in Concert. Performances by Talking Heads and Sugar Sugar.
- 11.30 Police Squad. Comedy crime series in which this week Detective Drebin poses as a locksmith in order to trap a gang of racketeers.
- 11.55 Night Thoughts.

BBC 2

- 5.00 Cortez.
- 12.40 Open University: Daily Castle: The Vet - by appointment 1.05
The Changing Countryside - Spelling the View, 1.30
Caezal.
- 2.05 Film: One of Our Aircraft Is
Portman and Godfrey Tears.
Second World War drama about the crew of a bomber shot down while returning from bombing raid on Stuttgart. Directed by Michael
Powell and Eric
Pressburger.
- 3.45 Film: "The Small Back Room"
(1949) starring David Farrar,
Kathleen Byron and Jack
Hodgson. Second World War thriller about a bomb disposal officer with personal problems who is given the task of dismanling a new type of German booby trap bomb.
Directed by Michael Powell and Eric Pressburger.
- 5.30 Front Line. A tribute to news cameraman Noll Davis who was killed while filming the recent attempted coup in Thailand (postponed from September 28) (r).
- 6.00 Deutsch direkt Part one of a 20-part series for Special conversation course for beginners (r).
- 6.25 The 20th Century
Remembered. Brian Urquhart, who has been with the United Nations since its formation 40 years ago and is now Under Secretary General for Special Political Affairs, talks to Sally Hardcastle about his career.
- 6.55 News, Sport and Weather.
- 7.10 Saturday Review presented by Russell Davies. His guests include Marina Warner and Tony Palmer who discuss the new musical, Les Misérables, and Jean-Luc Godard's film,
Je vous salue Marie.
- 8.00 Don Carlo at Covent Garden.
Giuseppe Verdi's opera, produced by Luciano Visconti, with the title role sung by Luis Lima and Elisabetta by Ileana Cotrubas. Set in the 18th century the opera tells the story of adulterous love and political treachery against the background of the wars between France and Spain.
With the Royal Opera Chorus and the Orchestra of the Royal College, London, conducted by Bernard Haitink.
- 11.35 Berry Goes to... Yorkshire.
Russell Hall discovers the delights of the Dales and the excitement of microfilming.
Ends at 12.10.

C

- 1.15 Murder Buchtenangang.
- 1.20 Chased Four Racing. The 1.30, 2.00 and 2.30 races from 2.45; and the 1.45, 2.15 and 2.45 from York.
- 3.00 Films: Crime and Punishment (1935) starring Peter Lorna. Dostoevsky's drama about a student murderer and his battle of wits with a police inspector. Directed by Josef von Sternberg.
- 4.40 Film: Late Flowering Love (1985) dramatized versions of love letters between a Victorian poetess - Invasion Exercise, Agricultural Careers, Myfany and A Suburban's Love Song. Directed by Charles Wallace.
- 5.05 Brookside. (Oracle) (r).
- 6.00 Family Ties. American comedy.
- 6.30 The Contender and Other Follies. The comedy group's guest at the London Weinwright III and Jim Cousins.
- 7.00 News summary and weather followed by 7 Days. Robert Kee in hard-hitting interviews with Claire Hayner, on Sarah Keay's theology, and with Boris Yeltsin - Roger Rutherford. Dominican theatre, with theme about Christian CND.
- 7.30 United World. Mike Walsh reports on how the millions of people who work on Crown property have less than average health and safety conditions.
- 8.00 Beats of the Heart: Konkombé - Nigerian Music. Filmed on the streets and studios of Lagos, the forests of the east and the Sahara to the north of Nigeria.
- 8.00 Upstairs, Downstairs. James Cagney is based in London after Richard takes Virginia and the children on holiday in Scotland, becomes romantically involved with an old flame, the wife of one of his best friends. (r) (Oracle).
- 00.00 Hill Street Blues. Part two of The Tales of Spin. A man Charlie Stokes dead an unarmed man suspected of robbery and finds himself on a manslaughter charge (Oracle).
- 00.00 Comed Next . . . Black humour.
- 00.30 Film: Mad Love (1935) starring Peter Lorna. In his first Hollywood film, as a murderer who gets the hands of an executed murderer put on an injured comatose friend. Directed by Karl Freund.
- 2.45 The Paul Hogan Show (r). Ende 1.15.

BBC 1

- 6.55 Play School, 3.15 Articles of Faith. Rediscovering religious belief. 9.30 This is the Day. A service of worship from a viewer's home in Daddy what the preacher is the newly ordained Methodist minister, Rosemary Waleels.
- 10.00 Asian Magazine includes a profile of Sudhir Pithwa, a photographer on Vogue magazine. 10.30 Digitalnet. Lesson one of a Spanish conversation for beginners. 11.00 German. Part two of the German conversation course. 11.20 Télé-Journal. The news in French (?)
- 11.45 Blizzards' Wonderful Woodies. Toys. The carpentry skills of Richard Blizzard (?) 12.10 World Choice. Colin Hughes discusses the myths and prejudices about computing and girls.
- 12.35 Farming. Following Michael Joplin's major speech at the Conservative Party Conference. Reaction from the other political parties. Plus, Dan Cherrington on the brutalists outbreak in Somerset. 12.58 Weather.
- 1.00 This Week Next Week. David Brown looks ahead to the Commonwealth Conference and the problem of trade sanctions against South Africa. 1.55 Duffy Darts. Cartoon. 2.00 EastEnders (?) (Ceefax).
- 3.00 News. Little Joe discovers that his travelling companion is not as innocent as he first thought.
- 3.50 The Horse of the Year Show. Highlights of the week's events at the Wembley Arena.
- 4.59 Moment of Truth for Ewen Ridgill as he prepares to undergo a State of the Republic after treatment for a broken neck caused by a swimming accident.
- 5.20 Antiques Roadshow from Scarborough (?)
- 6.00 Oliver Twist. Part one of the 12-episode dramatization of Dickens' classic novel starring Scott Funnell as the young Oliver Twist and Geoffrey James as Mr Bumble (Ceefax).
- 6.30 News with Jan Leeming. Weather.
- 6.45 Songs of Praise from News Bank Church, Inverness (Ceefax).
- 7.15 Open All Hours. To improve business, Arkwright bays and old ice cream van in order to convert it into a mobile garage (?) (Ceefax).
- 7.45 Howards' Way. Tom confronts Aylt over her ownership of the Flying Fish while Ken Masters continues to stir-up trouble between Tom and Jan (Ceefax).
- 8.35 Whicker's World. Alan Whicker meets another selection of Britons who have made their home in the United States (Ceefax).
- 9.30 In Sickness and in Health. An old Irish mower engine is used to make Elio's wheelchair easier to push.
- 10.05 News with Jan Leeming. Weather.
- 10.20 Everyman. A new series begins with a report on the Beryl mission to establish God's Kingdom on Earth.
- 11.10 Mozart - His Life with Music. The first of a six part musical biography of the composer's life.
- 12.00 The Sky at Night presented by Patrick Moore.
- 12.30 Weather.

TV-

- 6.55 Good Morning Britain; 7.00
Celtic Bears cartoon; 7.25 AT
You Are What You Eat; 7.30 News quiz game; 8.15 Janet Barmett pick of the week; 8.27 News headlines; 9.30 The Sunday
Prognosis.
- ITV/LONDON
- 9.25 Wake Up London, The Victor
Boys go motorbike scrambling. 9.38 Woody and
Fiona go canoeing. 9.49
Angie Dodge returns.
- 10.00 Morning Worship, A meditation on guilt (Oracle).
11.00 Link, Nevill Isham talks to the director general of the Royal National Institute for the Blind; plus, the problems of deaf-blind children. 11.30 Ulster Landscapes. How the linen industry brought prosperity to 18th-century
Ulster.
- 12.00 Weekend World. City riots:
why do they happen and what can we do about them?
- 1.00 Police 8-15; The Sauris? (if)
1.30 Happy Days.
- 2.00 The Human Factor; Playing Chess with the Devil, Kieran
Frendelstein talks to Viktor and Nadya Krausn who spent ten years in Russian labour camps.
- 2.30 LWT News headlines followed by Hart to Hart. The superintendants' investigations pose as a professor and a student when on the trail of a person who framed a college basketball star on a drugs charge.
- 3.30 International Drama. The final
of WFI World Mactrophy.
- 4.30 Steed, in Glasgow's drink series set in Glasgow.
- 5.00 Butleye. Darts and general knowledge game.
- 5.30 Sunday Sunday, presented by Gloria Hunnford. The guests include Michael Brandon,
Glynis Barber, Cilla Black,
Michael Palin, David Bellamy,
Alan Lipman and Nigel
Havers.
- 6.30 News with Carol Barnes.
- 6.40 Highway, Sir Harry Secombe visits Boulogne.
- 7.15 Albion Market, Lynne is beginning to crack under the strain (Oracle).
- 7.45 Me and My Girl, Comedy series starring Richard O'Sullivan as a widower bringing up a teenage daughter.
- 8.15 Live from Her Majesty's.
Variety show presented by Jimmy Tarbuck. The guests include Jim Davidson, Gloria Gaynor, Gary Wilmot and Val
Searles.
- 9.15 All at Sea. Will the members of the audience discover the secrets of Emylia
Hughes, Rustie Lee, Bill
Maynard, Liz Robertson and Leslie Thomas? (Oracle).
- 9.45 News with Carol Barnes.
Weather.
- 10.00 A Fine Romance. Comedy romance series starring Judy Dewar and Michael Williams (if Oracle).
- 10.30 The South Bank Show; Melvyn
Bragg talks to Peter Ackroyd about his new novel,
Hawkmoror, from which there are also dramatized extracts.
- 11.30 LWT News headlines followed by South of Winton. Ben
Elton tells the singing duo,
Frank Chickens (if).
- 12.00 Bartered Widow, Shattered Wives. A documentary about wife abuse.
- 12.55 Night Thoughts.

BBC

- 9.00 Coffee
2.00 Football Special: Highlights from yesterday's match between Hawick and Milnrow
- 2.30 Markets. A portrait of three New Forest markets – the annual Beaulieu Fox Hunt Jumble, the New Forest pony sale, and Rimes and Street market (first shown on BBC South)
- 3.00 I Know Where I'm Going? (1945) starring Wendy Hiller, and Roger Livesey. Joan Webster has always known what she has wanted but as she travels to the Isle of Mull to marry a wealthy, elderly businessman, she begins to have doubts about the union. Directed by Michael Powell and Emeric Pressburger.
- 4.30 Contemporary Mozart. The third of six piano concertos played by artists the same age as Mozart when he wrote the piece. The pianist is the 16-year-old Stephen Hough plays the Concerto in E flat (K 271). With the BBC Scottish Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Jerzy Maksymiuk
- 5.10 The Circus World Championships. The world's first performers compete in three categories – the Single Trapeze, Circus Family, and Flying Trapeze (r).
- 6.00 News Review. Subtitled.
- 6.30 The Money Programme presented by Brian Widdlake and Valerie Singleton. Reports on the Nileas invasion of the north east: luxury mobile homes for the Saudis and farmers turn to free range egg production.
- 7.15 The Natural World: The Man Who Loves Frogs. Englishman Mike Taylor in the Australian bush with his passion – frogs.
- 8.05 Barry Goes to ... Yorkshire. In Cudworth, near Barnsley, Russell Hartnells Michael Parkinson and enjoys the delights of beer, food and the back row of the Rock Cinema.
- 8.35 Theatre Night: Playboy of the West Indies, by Muriel Nazzari, based on Synge's Playboy of the Western World. The story of a stranger who walks into an off-the-beat-track Trinidadian village and announces that he has just murdered his father. Starring Joan-Ann Maynard and Jim Findley. Directed by Nicolas Kent.
- 10.10 Film: The Third Man (1946). Carol Reed's superb thriller set in post-war Vienna, starts in the late 1940s. Welles as an ace black-magic.
- 11.30 Musicals at Night. Robert Cohen (solo) plays Serenade from Bach's Suite in C minor. Ends at 12.00.

CHA

- 1.00 Irish Angle - Hands. Part four of the series on Irish crafts features curragh building.
- 1.30 Face the Press. The chairman of the Arts Council, Sir William Rees-Mogg is questioned by Anthony Howard, the Observer and Michael Billington of The Guardian. Gillian Reynolds is in the chair
- 2.00 Peb's Programme. Children's programme about a magic puppet.
- 2.30 Film: The Unholy Three. The starring Lon Chaney, in his last film and only 'tackle', as a carnival ventriloquist who joins forces with three other carnival characters and embarks on a life of crime. Directed by Jack Conway.
- 3.00 Dangerous Female. (1931) starring Ricardo Cortez and Sable Daniels. A rare showing of the first version of the thriller, The Maltese Falcon. Directed by Roy Del Ruth.
- 5.15 News summary and weather followed by The Business Programme. A new series begins with a look behind the scenes of both camps in the Allied Lyons/Eldora IXL takeover. Plus a preview of Southampton's cashless shopping experiment.
- 6.00 American Football. Dallas Cowboys play the New York Giants.
- 7.15 The Heart of the Dragon. Part five of the 12-programme series on China and the East. Focuses on the food. The film shows the extraordinary flexibility of the Southern Chinese who eat armadillo, monkey brains and cats and dogs - in marked contrast to the less exotic, more frugal fare of the rest of the country. (r)
- 8.15 The Jewel in the Crown. Episode four and the rushed arrangements for Susan's and Freddie's wedding are threatened. (Orisole) (r).
- 9.15 Pagliacci. Franco Zeffirelli's film of Leoncavallo's opera about a group of strolling players in Calabria. Zeffirelli has set the scene in the Thirties, with Canio, the leader of the troupe, being sung by Placido Domingo. With the chorus and orchestra of La Scala, Milan, conducted by Georges Prêtre.
- 10.35 10 Minute TV: Dorothy and Eileen. An innovative dance work about two women having an intimate conversation about their mothers.
- 10.50 Film: The Face Behind the Mask! (1964) starring Peter Lorre as a Hungarian immigrant who takes to a life of crime after his face is disfigured in a fire. Directed by Robert Florey. Ends at 12.05.

FREQUENCIES: Radio 1: 1053kHz/285m; 1089kHz/275m; Radio 2: 883kHz/433m; 909kHz/330m; Radio 3: 1215kHz/247m; VHF -90-92.5; Radio 4: 100kHz 1500m; VHF -92-96; LBC 1152kHz/261m; VHF 97.3; Capital: 1548kHz/194m; VHF 95.8; BBC Radio London 1458kHz/208m; VHF 94.9; World Service FM 648kHz/443m.

Radio 4

- long runs 1 also VHF stereo.
8.55 Shopping 8.55 News Briefing:
Weather, 8.10 Prelude 4.30
News, Farming Today 8.50
Friday 8.55 Weather
7.00 News 7.10 Today's Papers, 7.15
On Your Farm, 7.45 In Perspective (Rosemary Martin),
7.50 The Earth (John Gilliam and Alan Titchmarsh)
8.00 News, 8.10 Today's Papers 8.15
Sport on 4
8.48 Shopping, Holiday, travel and leisure guide (with Bernard Falk), and 8.57 Weather, Travel, 9.00
News
9.50 News Stand: France (Wheen reviews the weekly magazine,
0.05 Encounters Special: William Rogers, vice President of the Conservative Party's conference -
Blackpool
0.30 Pick of the Week TV and radio items presented by Margaret Howard 1
1.30 From Our Own Correspondent.
BBC reporters talk about the news they report and the work it
2.00 News Money Box Lounge
Bursting presents the 1,985-89 Unit
Trust Managers' Report
2.27 From the Quiz, chaired by Barry
Toot, with Michael Heath, Sue
Arnold, Alan Cohen and Richard
Mannings 12.55 Weather
1.00 News
1.10 Any Questions? Leon Brian,
Norman Dick, Tony Brown and
Anthony John Joan Timmons in Sharncliffe, Lancashire
2.00 News, The Afternoon Cash
Money Box, The final part of a micrology The Art Loavers by Andrew Sachs, with Maria Charles, Jack
May, Timothy Bateaux and
Norman 1
3.00 News, International Assignment.
Reports from BBC
correspondents
3.30 The Saturday Feature Awards.
Awards from The Oscars to the Honours List, The World of News-
Home-ing In, Do-it Yourself
4.15 The Music of Work, Kevin Crossey-Howard from all examples of work songs from 1940s to the present (1) Derek Jackson & Divers.
5.00 Wildlife (Pereh Joanes) 1
5.25 Week Ending Special: review of the week's news, 5.50 Shipping.
6.00 News, Sports Round-up.
6.25 Actually Watch The Closing Doors: A portrait of the New York subway
7.00 News Week with Robert
Robinson With Jeremy Nicholas. 1
7.45 Baker's Dozen Richard Baker with records 1
8.30 The Saturday night theatre.
The Bolshoi's Dancers, by Arthur
McKenzie. The story of a Georgian working man's club's outing to Moscow. 1

ca. †
Edward Jackson

- 00 Science Now. Georgia Ferry on new experiments in brain research discussed at the European Neurosciences Association meeting in Oxford.
- 01 The Wow Show. Comedy with Mark Arden (as Captain Jack), Lee Cornea (Party Officer) and Mark Spence (Mr. Christman). Stephen Frost (Bosun).
- 02 Weather. 12.39 Shipping VHF (weather in England and S.W. Europe). 3.56-3.57 Weather. Travel. 1.55-2.00pm Programme News. 2.00-5.00 Digital. 4.30 France Extra. 4.30 Digiplex. 4.30 Deutsche Direkt!
- Radio 3
- 55 Weather. 7.00 News.
- 00 Aubade: Britten's Suite of five movements after the Capote: Matinee Musicales (ECOT); Concerto for Piano & Cello Italian (Berlin PD); Faure's 4 Cinq Melodes de Venise (Arding soprano); Schubert's 18th; Bart's 2nd Dismissal (City of Birmingham SO); Respighi's 3 Tricini bottesinella (Academy of St Martin-in-the-fields); Mozart's Concerto in C, K 299 (Gallway, Nuala. Helmis; harp: Paul Harris). 4.00 News.
- 01 Record Review: about Berlioz Vaughan. Includes Rodney Milnes's consumers' guide to recordings of Verdi's opera Un ballo in maschera. And Joan Chusiel reviews new piano recordings.
- 02 Stereo Release: Haydn's Sonata in B minor, H.XVJ.32 (Brandel, piano); Chopin's 3 Polonaise-Fantaisie in A flat Op 61 (Anao, piano).
- 03 Mahler's Ninth Symphony: Rudolf Barshai conducts the BBC National Orchestra.
- 04 Tenor, horn and piano: Ian Partridge (Tenor), Ior James (Horn) and John Gollins (Piano). Berio's La jeune prairie Breton; Trevor Holby's Song at the Year's Turning; Schubert's Auf dem See; and Schubert's Ave Maria Songs: 1.00 News.
- 05 Heinrich Schütz: Taverner Consort and Taverner Players. Includes Schütz's Es ist Gott und Bach's Cantata 103 and Roveveta's Vivo in loco. Also works by Rovetta, Gianni and Monteverdi.
- 06 From the Heart of Europe: music from Poland (Lewakowski B). Includes recordings of Dvorák's Symphony No 5 Czech PO.

Op 21
piano; Janu

- Fiddler's Child (Barro State Capitol)
and Novak's String Quartet: Poet No 1
(Maurice Strakosky), Scherzinger Schwartzkopf and Seinfeld are the soloists in Dvorak's Slavna from Moravia, with Gerald Moore at the piano in mono. Best in stereo.
- 5.00 Jazz Record Requests: with 1971 Critics' Forum: Christopher
Dunkley, Robert Cushman,
Margherita Lenti and John Schoenberg discuss, and plays, the musical version of Les Miserables at the Barbican; the BBC production of Thurston
Klopfer and Jean-Luc Godard's film Hall
- 6.36 Music for the Iron Volts: Martin
Carter, the voice of the choir of St Martinburg Church, Austria plays C.P. Bach's Sonata No 3 in F; Knecht's Sonata No 3
in C major. Acetate. Price: £ 6.15.
- 7.15 Discipline: Bob Peck reads
Margaret Allot's translation of the Ode de la de la de la de la de la
BBC Welsh SO (under Bergen), with Christopher Warren-Green
Violin. Best one. Elizabeth No 1 in F. Price: £ 10.95. Violin Concerto in a minor, BWV 1041.
- 8.10 Conversations of Alexander
Pope: Joseph Andrews, and Andrews, with John Rye as Pope and Trevor Nichols as Pope's friend. Price: £ 6.15.
- 8.25 Concert: Two, Beethoven's Romantic for violin and orchestra, in G, Op 40 and in F,
Op 40. Price: £ 10.95. No 1.
- 9.15 An Ironie Overture: Dr Philip
Brady in conversation with Hans Magnus Erzenberger, the poet and
- 9.45 Baroque Bassoon: with Danny Bond. Bassoon: Richte von der Beebe and Robert Kolman harpsichord. Works by Corbelli and Bostomardi.
- 10.10 Songs and Sonnets: with BBC
Chorus and Singers and reader.
Paul Webster. Programme includes David Blake's John
Singer of Ben Jonson's
Hymn to the Virgin Mary to God the Father, and Kenneth Leighton's
An Evening Hymn.
- 11.00 Party: David Piers. Trio play
Paganini Trio No 2, and Berg's Violin Sonata in E minor.
Price: £ 6.15.
- 11.57 News. 12.00 Closesdown
- Radio 2
- News on the hour until 1.00pm, 3.00, then from 6.00 (except 8.00pm and 8.00).
- 1.00 John Miles Fennie; 1.00 Steve Truelove; 8.05 David Jacobs; 1.00
Songs of the 60s (Keith Fordyce);
1.00 Album Time (Peter Clayton);
11.02 Sports Desk. 1.00pm The News

Smitt, Al
Buddhners, 1

- [illegible]

Radio

- longs. Shipping, 5.00 News, 6.10
Prelude, 5.30 News: Morning
Hills Review, 8.58 Weather, 9.00
News, 9.10 Sunday Papers, 7.15
Apne Hi Ghar Samanyah, 7.59
Turning Over New Leaves.
9.00 News, 9.10 Sunday Papers, 7.15
Sunday Religious news, 8.50
The Riv Rev David Sheppard appears on the radio. 9.00
News, 9.10 Sunday Papers, 7.15
Sunday Religious news, 8.50
News, 9.10 Sunday Papers, 7.15
Morning From America, by Alastair
MacIntyre, 9.00
Letters Service from Chapel of
St Peter, St Omur's College,
Oxford, 9.10
The Archers. Omnibus edition,
9.15
The Colour Supplement, With
Margu MacDonald. Includes
Helen Brown, David Tennant, Jeffrey Archer, Derek Jamison and Jerry Bremer, 12.25
News, 9.10
The World This Weekend: News.
News: Gardens: Question
Time. Experts offer advice to the home and garden. 9.15
Horticultural Society, Yorkshire,
9.20
The Afternoon Play, Keeping the Faith, by John Galsworthy,
9.25
Gwyneth as the central figure (J.I.
News: Rebels. A portrait of the writer Henry James, 9.30
The King's Way, Peter Francis with natural history news,
9.50
News: Travel.
9.55
The King's Way, Brian Johnston
visits Malvern, Worcestershire,
5.50 Shipping, 5.55 Weather,
5.55 News, 6.10
Prelude, 5.30
Anthony Howard says assessors' comments about BBC programmes.
6.10
Ruth Sutherland, Hume Davies
presents the book's programme.
Travel: Shadows of Doubt by Palma Hargrave, dramatized in a play, 6.15
A Zoo With A View. Colin Tudge examines new developments at the zoo, 6.20
The War of the Worlds. Michael Robinson reports from America and Japan on the struggle between the worlds.
6.25
The economic superpowers (2)
6.30
News: Shirley by Charlotte
Bronte. With Nick LaSalle and Shirley Keeler (3)
6.35
The Sunday Features. Living At Clare Dunn. Monty Halcroft pays tribute to H. Lawrence's odyssey thru life and death.
6.40
The women played in (1). Michael Williams plays Lawrence.
6.45
Grace In The Devil's Territory.
David Z. Phillips confounds his enemies of religion and 29th-century freemasons.

of the Town,
ry. Stanley E
te (4) Broad

- 7.46 John Morgan on a Small Television Channel. The transformation of a derelict Cardiff dockside into a hive of creative activity.
- 12.00 News: Weather. 12.33 Shipping. VHF (available in England and S. Wales only) as above; except: 12.33-12.45 Weather. 12.45-1.00 Programme News. 1.00-1.30 Options: 4.00 Bridge and Options. 4.30-4.55 News. 4.55-5.00 France Extra. 5.00-5.30 Euro 5.30-5.50 Deutsch Direkt
- Radio 3
- 6.55 Weather. 7.00 News.
- 7.05 Mozart: String Quartets: Quartet no. K. 465 (Soprano Quartet): Mozart: Four Flutes & Clarinet K 546 (Quartet-Italiano): Four Flutes (Well-Tempered Clavier, Book 1) K. 491 Nos 2-9-1
- 8.00 Bach: Cantatas: 1724. The Vienna. Wo soll ich fliehen hin. No. 55. Concerto Musiciens du Conservatoire de Vienne. Solo: Choir/Leopoldus including Paul Eschenwald.
- 8.25 News: Recordings and Organ Concertos: recastings of the Trio Sonata in E minor, Op 8 No 3; in G minor, in B minor and in the Organ Concerto in F, Op 4 No 1 & 10 No. 1
- 9.05 Your Concert Choice: Recording of Beethoven's Symphony No 1: Purcell's My beloved spake; Pini's Owe nativity; Messiah's Theme and Variations for violin and piano. Miss Weekly; includes an interview with the cellist/conductor Mstislav Rostropovich; Nicholas Jovanovic reviewing the New York Festival of Chamber and Soloists. Blackman talking to Yves Gerard about Saint-Saëns.
- 11.15 Boston SO (under Barbrook). Purcell: Darius's Overture. Purcell: Darius's A Walk to the Paradise Garden; Vaughan Williams's Symphony No. 1.1
- 12.10 The Choir of Richard Vernon reads T.R. Sempson's Monarchy.
- 12.15 Concert: part two. Philharmonia Symphony No. 2.
- 12.50 Mendelssohn and Beethoven: Michael Collins (clarinet), Angela Mallory (clarinet and bassoon), David Pettit (piano). Mendelssohn's Konzertstück No. 1 in F minor, Op. 113; Beethoven's Divertimento (Il convegno). Mendelssohn's Konzertstück No. 2 in D minor, Op. 114.
- 1.30 Mendelssohn's Handel's opera, sung in Italian. English Chamber Orchestra (under Norrington).

with King, Ba
i, Kwella. H
ell. Interval n

- Act two of the opera at 5.40.
 3.50 Conversations with Alexander Pope (3), with John Ryce as Pope and Roger Nichols as Joseph Spence.
 4.05 Rademister: third act of Handel's Alcinaide.
 4.15 The Star Wars Music: third of six programmes presented by Michael Chantson. Contributors include: John Nizza, comedy music adviser to Reagan; Henry Kissinger; and the US Assistant Secretary for Defence, Richard Cheney.
 4.30 Webern and his Contemporaries: the La Salle String Quartet, Part one. Zambelli's Quartet No. 4; Webern's Quartet Op 28; Five movements for string quartet, Op. 16; Webern's reading at 5.45; at 5.55, Webern's String Trio Op 20; Sax Bagatelles for String Quartet, Op. 3; Berg's Quartet, Op. 3.1
 7.30 The Music of the 1920s: a programme under Pritchard play the Fanfares for double orchestra.
 8.00 The Music of the 1920s: a programme by Martin Crick. With Alec McCowen and Phyllida Law. With Mark Straker. 1. The Appreciation of Music: 2. Making Love: 3. Suicide.
 9.05 William Alwyn: Chaconne and Suite for piano. The piano solo played by Gordon Crook's Sister Music; Anthony Gifford's Eighty for Alwyn; Alwyn's A Song for Cooke's Carpenter and John Manduell's Variations on a Trio Tune, for solo recorder. With Peter Lawson (recorder) and Peter Lawson (piano).
 9.45 Fred Lessons: Michael Schmidt plays the piano (recorder) and Tomlinson's Collected Poems, published recently.
 10.05 Bournemouth Sinfonietta: Presidium, Sinfonietta. Conducted by Brian Wright.
 10.35 Bach: Klavierübung (4). Andreas Scholl (organ) plays the first of three parts. (Last of series). Tonight: Ari's with 30 Variations, BWV 998.
 11.57 The Music of the 1920s: a programme by VHF open Open University. From 11.55 to 3.55. Organic Chemistry.

os of Hinge

- Something Simple (Cliff Adams)
Singers, 15.00 Charlie Chester (Sunday)
Scapazzo) and 15.00 The 1970s Album. Today presents some of his favourite music with quest Tenney Jelly. 7.30 A Box at the Opera (John Gallagher) and 7.45 The 1970s
Hundred Best Times (Allen Kohn) 10.20
Sports Desk. 10.05 Songs from the Shows (quest singers) Bangs
Country. 11.00 The 1970s. 10.45
Peter Martin at the piano. 11.00 Sounds of Jazz. With Peter Clayton (stereo from 1970s) and 11.15 The 1970s (presenting Nightbirds). 13.00-4.00 A Little Night Music.
- Radio 1
- News on the hour, half hour until 11.30am, then 2.30pm, 3.30, 5.00, 7.10, 9.30am,
2.30pm and 4.30pm. 11.30-1.00
Peter Powell. 11.00 Steve Wright.
12.30pm Jimmy Saville's 'Old Record' and 1.00-1.30pm The 1970s and 1950s
2.30 Paul Jones. 4.00 My Top Ten.
Bobby Womack with Andy Peebles. 5.00
Top 10 (Richard Stables) 7.10-8.00
The 1970s. 8.00-9.00 The 1970s
Eurocor Festival, Helsinki. Including
Britain's own Fire View Cennials.
9.00-10.00 The 1970s. 10.00-11.00
The Ranking Miss P (Culture Rock).
VHF Radio 2 at 2.40am. As Radio 2
11.00-12.00 As Radio 2. 12.00-4.00am As
Radio 2.
- WORLD SERVICE
- 8.00 News. 8.30 News. 7.25 Twenty-Four Hours. 7.30 From Our Own Correspondent.
7.50 Twenty-Four. 8.00 News. 8.05 Reflections.
8.10 News. 8.15 News. 8.20 News. 8.25
Review of the British Press. 8.35 Science
Action. 8.45 Training for Tomorrow. 10.00
News. 10.05 News. 10.10-10.15
Record Review. 10.30 Sunday Service. 11.00
News. 11.05 News About Britain. 11.15
From Our Own Correspondent. 11.25
Twenty-Four Hours. 1.30 Empire of the
1.45 The Sandi Jones Request Show. 2.00
News. 2.05 News. 2.10 News. 2.15
News. 2.20 News. 2.25 News. 2.30 News.
2.35 News. 2.40 News. 2.45 News. 2.50
News. 2.55 News. 3.00 News. 3.05 News.
3.10 News. 3.15 News. 3.20 News. 3.25
News. 3.30 News. 3.35 News. 3.40 News.
3.45 News. 3.50 News. 3.55 News. 4.00
News. 4.05 News. 4.10 News. 4.15 News.
4.20 News. 4.25 News. 4.30 News. 4.35
News. 4.40 News. 4.45 News. 4.50 News.
4.55 News. 5.00 News. 5.05 News. 5.10
News. 5.15 News. 5.20 News. 5.25 News.
5.30 News. 5.35 News. 5.40 News. 5.45
News. 5.50 News. 5.55 News. 6.00 News.
6.05 News. 6.10 News. 6.15 News. 6.20
News. 6.25 News. 6.30 News. 6.35 News.
6.40 News. 6.45 News. 6.50 News. 6.55
News. 7.00 News. 7.05 News. 7.10 News.
7.15 News. 7.20 News. 7.25 News. 7.30
News. 7.35 News. 7.40 News. 7.45 News.
7.50 News. 7.55 News. 8.00 News. 8.05
News. 8.10 News. 8.15 News. 8.20 News.
8.25 News. 8.30 News. 8.35 News. 8.40
News. 8.45 News. 8.50 News. 8.55 News.
9.00 News. 9.05 News. 9.10 News. 9.15
News. 9.20 News. 9.25 News. 9.30 News.
9.35 News. 9.40 News. 9.45 News. 9.50
News. 9.55 News. 10.00 News. 10.05
News. 10.10 News. 10.15 News. 10.20
News. 10.25 News. 10.30 News. 10.35
News. 10.40 News. 10.45 News. 10.50
News. 10.55 News. 11.00 News. 11.05
News. 11.10 News. 11.15 News. 11.20
News. 11.25 News. 11.30 News. 11.35
News. 11.40 News. 11.45 News. 11.50
News. 11.55 News. 12.00 News. 12.05
News. 12.10 News. 12.15 News. 12.20
News. 12.25 News. 12.30 News. 12.35
News. 12.40 News. 12.45 News. 12.50
News. 12.55 News. 1.00 News. 1.05
News. 1.10 News. 1.15 News. 1.20 News.
1.25 News. 1.30 News. 1.35 News. 1.40
News. 1.45 News. 1.50 News. 1.55 News.
2.00 News. 2.05 News. 2.10 News. 2.15
News. 2.20 News. 2.25 News. 2.30 News.
2.35 News. 2.40 News. 2.45 News. 2.50
News. 2.55 News. 3.00 News. 3.05 News.
3.10 News. 3.15 News. 3.20 News. 3.25
News. 3.30 News. 3.35 News. 3.40 News.
3.45 News. 3.50 News. 3.55 News. 4.00
News. 4.05 News. 4.10 News. 4.15 News.
4.20 News. 4.25 News. 4.30 News. 4.35
News. 4.40 News. 4.45 News. 4.50 News.
4.55 News. 5.00 News. 5.05 News. 5.10
News. 5.15 News. 5.20 News. 5.25 News.
5.30 News. 5.35 News. 5.40 News. 5.45
News. 5.50 News. 5.55 News. 6.00 News.
6.05 News. 6.10 News. 6.15 News. 6.20
News. 6.25 News. 6.30 News. 6.35 News.
6.40 News. 6.45 News. 6.50 News. 6.55
News. 7.00 News. 7.05 News. 7.10 News.
7.15 News. 7.20 News. 7.25 News. 7.30
News. 7.35 News. 7.40 News. 7.45 News.
7.50 News. 7.55 News. 8.00 News. 8.05
News. 8.10 News. 8.15 News. 8.20 News.
8.25 News. 8.30 News. 8.35 News. 8.40
News. 8.45 News. 8.50 News. 8.55 News.
9.00 News. 9.05 News. 9.10 News. 9.15
News. 9.20 News. 9.25 News. 9.30 News.
9.35 News. 9.40 News. 9.45 News. 9.50
News. 9.55 News. 10.00 News. 10.05
News. 10.10 News. 10.15 News. 10.20
News. 10.25 News. 10.30 News. 10.35
News. 10.40 News. 10.45 News. 10.50
News. 10.55 News. 11.00 News. 11.05
News. 11.10 News. 11.15 News. 11.20
News. 11.25 News. 11.30 News. 11.35
News. 11.40 News. 11.45 News. 11.50
News. 11.55 News. 12.00 News. 12.05
News. 12.10 News. 12.15 News. 12.20
News. 12.25 News. 12.30 News. 12.35
News. 12.40 News. 12.45 News. 12.50
News. 12.55 News. 1.00 News. 1.05
News. 1.10 News. 1.15 News. 1.20 News.
1.25 News. 1.30 News. 1.35 News. 1.40
News. 1.45 News. 1.50 News. 1.55 News.
2.00 News. 2.05 News. 2.10 News. 2.15
News. 2.20 News. 2.25 News. 2.30 News.
2.35 News. 2.40 News. 2.45 News. 2.50
News. 2.55 News. 3.00 News. 3.05 News.
3.10 News. 3.15 News. 3.20 News. 3.25
News. 3.30 News. 3.35 News. 3.40 News.
3.45 News. 3.50 News. 3.55 News. 4.00
News. 4.05 News. 4.10 News. 4.15 News.
4.20 News. 4.25 News. 4.30 News. 4.35
News. 4.40 News. 4.45 News. 4.50 News.
4.55 News. 5.00 News. 5.05 News. 5.10
News. 5.15 News. 5.20 News. 5.25 News.
5.30 News. 5.35 News. 5.40 News. 5.45
News. 5.50 News. 5.55 News. 6.00 News.
6.05 News. 6.10 News. 6.15 News. 6.20
News. 6.25 News. 6.30 News. 6.35 News.
6.40 News. 6.45 News. 6.50 News. 6.55
News. 7.00 News. 7.05 News. 7.10 News.
7.15 News. 7.20 News. 7.25 News. 7.30
News. 7.35 News. 7.40 News. 7.45 News.
7.50 News. 7.55 News. 8.00 News. 8.05
News. 8.10 News. 8.15 News. 8.20 News.
8.25 News. 8.30 News. 8.35 News. 8.40
News. 8.45 News. 8.50 News. 8.55 News.
9.00 News. 9.05 News. 9.10 News. 9.15
News. 9.20 News. 9.25 News. 9.30 News.
9.35 News. 9.40 News. 9.45 News. 9.50
News. 9.55 News. 10.00 News. 10.05
News. 10.10 News. 10.15 News. 10.20
News. 10.25 News. 10.30 News. 10.35
News. 10.40 News. 10.45 News. 10.50
News. 10.55 News. 11.00 News. 11.05
News. 11.10 News. 11.15 News. 11.20
News. 11.25 News. 11.30 News. 11.35
News. 11.40 News. 11.45 News. 11.50
News. 11.55 News. 12.00 News. 12.05
News. 12.10 News. 12.15 News. 12.20
News. 12.25 News. 12.30 News. 12.35
News. 12.40 News. 12.45 News. 12.50
News. 12.55 News

DIARY OF THE TIMES
CLASSIFIED

Over 1 1/4 million of the most affluent people in the country read the classified columns of The Times. The following categories appear regularly every week, and are generally accompanied by relevant editorial articles.

Use the coupon (right), and find out how easy, fast and economical it is to advertise in The Times Classified.

MONDAY Education: University Appointments, Prep. & Public School Appointments, Educational Courses, Scholarships & Fellowships.

TUESDAY Computer Horizons: a comprehensive guide to the market. Legal Appointments: Solicitors, Commercial Lawyers, Legal Officers, Private & Public practice.

THE WORLD FAMOUS PERSONAL ANNOUNCEMENTS CAN A

WEDNESDAY La Caisse de la Crimée- Secrétariat/PA appointments over $7,500. General secretarial. Property- Residential, Commercial, Town & Country, Overseas, Rentals.

THURSDAY General Appointments: Chief Executives, Managing Directors, Directors, Sales and Market-

---

COLUMN APPEARS EVERY DAY.
PEAR WITHIN 24 HOURS.

ing Executives, Public, Finance and Overseas Appointments.

FRIDAY: Motors: A complete car buyers' guide featuring established dealers and private sales.
Business to Business.

SATURDAY Overseas Travel: Holidays abroad, Low cost flights, Cruises, Car hire. U.K. Travel: Hotel Cottages, Holiday lets.
Entertainments.

Fill in the coupon and attach it to your contact you wish a quotation and confirm to. Rates are Litings $4 per line (min. 3 lines), metric, Court and Social $6 per line all rates.

PAY NO POSTAGE. Send Classified Advertisement Manager, Times

NAME _____

ADDRESS _____

TELEPHONE (Daytime) _____

ACCESSOR VIS-A-VC No. _____

1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 0

advertisement. Prior to it appearing, we will date of insertion.

Standard Display £23 per single column centimetre plus VAT.

To: Fleetpost The Times, Shirley Margate,
Newspapers Ltd, Fleetpost, London WC1X8B.

DATE OF INSERTION _____

(Please allow time for posting and processing)

☐ ☐ ☐ ☐ ☐ ☐ ☒

Contour is back in fashion among the British set

By Suzy Menkes
Fashion Editor

Fit is back in fashion for London's designers. The body is the focus of British Designer Week which opened yesterday to promote clothes for spring and summer 1986.

Jasper Conran focused on the bustle back and on leppy short skirts. Clutched-in waists, curly jackets and shorts spelt out the same message at Roland Klein. London's avant garde young designers such as Wendy Dagworthy and Betty Jackson showed less flesh but bowed for the body-line with clinging cotton jersey dresses or the bigger shapes made in transparent voile.

For the first time in London, the venue fits as well as the clothes. Overseas buyers and press, up by 32 per cent on the last selling season, are praising the organization of the British Fashion Council.

Its Designer Venue is a pair of giant marquees, each seating an audience of 700 fashion professionals, pitched in the grounds of the Duke of York's barracks in the King's Road Chelsea. That gives news-hungry visitors the opportunity to watch the peacock parade on London's famous fashion street, as well as viewing and buying the clothes on show.

(Photographs: Harry Kerr)

The selling exhibition and further fashion shows take place at Olympia, where both the outrageous young designers and the more established names have taken stands.

The show tents are sponsored by the British Fashion Council, the Burton Group, the British Clothing Industry Association, Philbeach Events and The Sunday Times with British Elle. The event represents a considerable breakthrough for British fashion and a marriage between design and commerce, recognized by Mrs Margaret Thatcher, who is host next Tuesday at a party for the designer week.

Mr Cyril Kern, chairman of the British Fashion Council, said that designers should now be able to show their collections in a professional way. "It is an integral part of the British Fashion Council's policy to present a united and well organized British Designer Week," he said.

Wendy Dagworthy: check and stripe trouser suit.

Elongated bi-coloured vest dress.

Betty Jackson: skinny fit boldly printed dress.

'Blank cheque' for police

Continued from page 1

language of compassion but suffered the winter of discontent.

Of unemployment, she said: "There is no problem which occupies more of my thinking and that of my colleagues."

"But there is on thing we will not do. We will not reflate. We are sometimes told people would prefer more inflation and less unemployment. You cannot choose to have either inflation or unemployment. They are not alternatives."

Mr Neil Kinnock replied last night to the repeated personal attacks launched against him by government ministers during the Tory Party conference and ridiculed "custard pie Conservatism at its most clumsy."

With Mrs Margaret Thatcher following yesterday the lone set by Mr Norman Tebbit, the party chairman, Mr Peter Walker, and Mr Michael Heseltine - the glove puppets of the Tory Cabinet - Mr Kinnock

Kinnock gibe at Tory 'ferrets in sack'

By Richard Evans, Lobby Reporter

said: "Never did insult give such flattery."

He told his Islwyn constituency party that the Tories were going through the "ritual game, calling because they have nothing solid to say even to their doing supporters."

"They are even running out of patience with each other. The divisions between Lawson and Walker were just the latest proof that underneath the robot unity of their conference they are going at each other like ferrets in a sack."

Mr Kinnock differentiated between personal attacks made on him, which he did not mind, and those on the worst off.

"The personal attacks that enrage me are the ones made against people who cannot answer back, the personal attacks that are not loud words but actions that cause real personal hurt by depriving and depressing."

Fear as extremists threaten retaliation

Continued from page 1

"I am afraid that an American or Italian aircraft will be hijacked or that another American will be killed, to force the release of the Palestinians in the Italian jail. The PLO's representative in West Germany, Mr Abdullah Frangi, said: "Mark my words, this will happen."

Egypt, expressing pained disapproval of the American diversion of the Egyptian Boeing 737 carrying the Palestinian gunmen, made its own fears clear in a Foreign Ministry statement during the day. Such acts, it said, "will not serve the peace process... we have always stated that violence breeds more violence and that a just and comprehensive peace is the only road to the stability of the middle east and the security of all its states."

President Mubarak met with his senior Cabinet colleagues in the morning in an attempt to assess the damage done to US-Egyptian relations not only by Egypt's willingness to let hijackers go free but also by his own untruthful statement to Western journalists on Thursday.

While the Boeing was still on the tarmac at Cairo airport, the president had assured foreign correspondents in the Egyptian capital that the gunmen had already left the country.

The Foreign Ministry statement claimed that the plane carrying the gunmen had originally travelled to Tunis after the Tunisian Government had agreed to let it land there but that - during the flight - the Tunisians changed their mind and withdrew landing rights.

It was while the jet was on its way back to Cairo that the American jets intercepted it and forced it to fly to Sicily, the Egyptians said.

Shortly after the interception became known to President Mubarak, the Egyptian authorities in Port Said revoked sailing permission for the Achille Lauro, forcing the vessel to stay in the waters off the Suez Port Authority headquarters.

Egyptian detectives questioned its captain at some length about the murder of Mr Leon Klinghoffer, whose death had been denied by the captain while the gunmen were still on board.

On board the Egyptian plane, it now emerges, was Mohamed Abbas, leader of the Palestine Liberation Front group which originally claimed responsibility for the hijack. He was the mysterious Abu Khaled who negotiated with the gunmen from Port Said, although some reports had indicated that he had for some time been a prisoner of the Israelis.

Italy refuses to hand over hijackers

Continued from page 1

where the Boeing spent the day with its occupants still on board. Besides the terrorists, the Boeing was carrying one or two senior officials of the PLO who were being held as witnesses in the Italian judicial investigation.

The chief investigation into the hijacking of the liner is being conducted by a Genoa magistrate, Signor Luigi Carli, who announced that charges were being prepared against the Palestinians of murder (of the American passenger, Mr Leon Klinghoffer), of hijacking a ship, of kidnapping, and of illegal possession of arms and explosives.

Signor Carli has been interrogating young Arab terrorists, including the one named as Kalaf Muhanna Zuhair, arrested in Genoa in September 28, for possessing two false passports. It is suspected that he was due to be a fifth member of the gang, but was prevented from boarding the ship because he was already under arrest.

There is evidence that, at the last moment, the name of a supposedly Yugoslav passenger was cancelled as occupant of Cabin 82 on the Achille Lauro. If these reports are true, they may help to explain why the commander's reported objective of an operation on arrival in an Israeli port, misfired.

Signor Carli will have to tread warily in his relations with the Arab world to avoid a deterioration of links with Egypt as a result of his backing of the Egyptian airliner - even if he knew nothing in advance. "Nasser is felt here, that the continuing detention in Port Said of the Achille Lauro may be intended as a retaliation for holding the Egyptian airliner."

Today's events

Royal engagements
Princess Anne, President of the Save the Children Fund, attends the annual branch meeting and annual

Solution of Puzzle No 16,866
ACROSS
1 Rascal attached to one fish (6).
2 Realised error involving the stars (8).
3 Several diamonds show a blemish (4).
4 What Ko-ko had about a jolly scaremonger (8).
5 Neural disorder is imaginary (6).
6 Nuts - crack almost to start with (4).
7 Trade using former coins (8).
8 One with intent, perhaps, to err and lie abominably (8).
9 Efficient as third man, we hear (4).
10 A shilling and some copper in payment for grass (6).
11 Charm obtained by 'Open sesame' (8).
12 The place to tell stories, you said (4).
13 Brave group used to exercise (6).
14 Shot into the light, so to speak (8).
15 Locking device we hear for each warder (6).

The Times Crossword Puzzle No 16,866

A prize of The Times Atlas of World History will be given for the first three correct solutions opened next Thursday. Entries should be addressed to: The Times, Saturday Crossword Competition, 12 Colney Street, London WC9P 9TT. The winners and solution will be published next Saturday.

The winners of last Saturday's competition are: Mr J. H. Nickson, "Torwood" Port Elphinstone, Inverurie, Aberdeenshire; Mr J. H. Kent, Rosemary Cottage, Coast Road, Berron, Burnham-on-Sea, Somerset; Ms J. Quin, 41 Preston Avenue, North Shields, Tyne and Wear.

Name: _____ Address: _____

ACROSS
1 Rascal attached to one fish (6).
2 Realised error involving the stars (8).
3 Several diamonds show a blemish (4).
4 What Ko-ko had about a jolly scaremonger (8).
5 Neural disorder is imaginary (6).
6 Nuts - crack almost to start with (4).
7 Trade using former coins (8).
8 One with intent, perhaps, to err and lie abominably (8).
9 Efficient as third man, we hear (4).
10 A shilling and some copper in payment for grass (6).
11 Charm obtained by 'Open sesame' (8).
12 The place to tell stories, you said (4).
13 Brave group used to exercise (6).
14 Shot into the light, so to speak (8).
15 Locking device we hear for each warder (6).

DOWN
1 There could be a catch in it (5).
2 Criminal intended to limit one's credit (9).
3 On the slope, girl loses her footing at the bottom of it (6).
4 The 23rd seed going astray, badly (5,7,9).
5 Shop with little room and little weight (8).
6 Flower I have planted between two more (5).
7 Raphael, for instance, in fresh clothes breaking Charles's heart (9).
8 All together make amends to Father in person (2,3,4).
9 Deluge can have left a complication (9).
10 Disposal of property not subject to tax - it's voluntary (4-4).
11 Fit army up with gear (6).
12 Little bit of French vineyard given to doctor (5).
13 Produce the effect of bird-song, soundwise (5).

CONCISE CROSSWORD PAGE 34

In the garden

This is a good time to plant evergreen trees and shrubs. It is worth protecting these, especially in exposed, windy gardens with some thin plastic sheeting placed round the plants, supported by bamboo canes. Or you may spray the plants with Spray N' Save (£5.00), the antidesiccant we use to prevent needles dropping off Christmas trees when we bring them indoors.

Finish trimming hedges now. Also remove any dead branches on deciduous trees before the leaves fall and you can still see which ones to cut.

If weeds are present on lawns they may be dealt with by watering on a selective weedkiller or applying "weed and feed" fertilizer. If an autumn fertilizer has not been given to the turf, do not delay - these weedkillers work best when the weather is still warm.

Worms are working near the lawn surface now and throwing up unsightly casts. Sweep them off or if there are many worms they may be destroyed by a worm killer. If moss is present apply a moss killer soon - as grass growth slows down, moss will happily spread in low-light conditions.

Gardens open

P - Plants for sale.
Today and other days:
Cormorant Long Cross Victorian Gardens, 17488, 7th St. E. Haverhill, 15th NW of Andover on 88314; garden in process of restoration; the trees and views; daily until end of October; 11 to 5.

West Sussex Wakehurst Place Garden, 17488, 7th St. E. Haverhill, 15th NW of Andover on 88314; garden in process of restoration; the trees and views; daily until end of October; 11 to 5.

West Sussex Wakehurst Place Garden, 17488, 7th St. E. Haverhill, 15th NW of Andover on 88314; garden in process of restoration; the trees and views; daily until end of October; 11 to 5.

West Sussex Wakehurst Place Garden, 17488, 7th St. E. Haverhill, 15th NW of Andover on 88314; garden in process of restoration; the trees and views; daily until end of October; 11 to 5.

West Sussex Wakehurst Place Garden, 17488, 7th St. E. Haverhill, 15th NW of Andover on 88314; garden in process of restoration; the trees and views; daily until end of October; 11 to 5.

West Sussex Wakehurst Place Garden, 17488, 7th St. E. Haverhill, 15th NW of Andover on 88314; garden in process of restoration; the trees and views; daily until end of October; 11 to 5.

West Sussex Wakehurst Place Garden, 17488, 7th St. E. Haverhill, 15th NW of Andover on 88314; garden in process of restoration; the trees and views; daily until end of October; 11 to 5.

West Sussex Wakehurst Place Garden, 17488, 7th St. E. Haverhill, 15th NW of Andover on 88314; garden in process of restoration; the trees and views; daily until end of October; 11 to 5.

West Sussex Wakehurst Place Garden, 17488, 7th St. E. Haverhill, 15th NW of Andover on 88314; garden in process of restoration; the trees and views; daily until end of October; 11 to 5.

West Sussex Wakehurst Place Garden, 17488, 7th St. E. Haverhill, 15th NW of Andover on 88314; garden in process of restoration; the trees and views; daily until end of October; 11 to 5.

Roads

Midland: M6 Two lanes open northbound and one southbound between junction 4 (National Exhibition Centre and Airport) and junction 5 (Castle Bromwich). A58 Reopening at Hooton, Shropshire. A58 Reopening at Hooton, Shropshire. A58 Reopening at Hooton, Shropshire.

North: M6 Two lanes open northbound and one southbound between junction 4 (National Exhibition Centre and Airport) and junction 5 (Castle Bromwich). A58 Reopening at Hooton, Shropshire. A58 Reopening at Hooton, Shropshire.

North: M6 Two lanes open northbound and one southbound between junction 4 (National Exhibition Centre and Airport) and junction 5 (Castle Bromwich). A58 Reopening at Hooton, Shropshire. A58 Reopening at Hooton, Shropshire.

North: M6 Two lanes open northbound and one southbound between junction 4 (National Exhibition Centre and Airport) and junction 5 (Castle Bromwich). A58 Reopening at Hooton, Shropshire. A58 Reopening at Hooton, Shropshire.

North: M6 Two lanes open northbound and one southbound between junction 4 (National Exhibition Centre and Airport) and junction 5 (Castle Bromwich). A58 Reopening at Hooton, Shropshire. A58 Reopening at Hooton, Shropshire.

North: M6 Two lanes open northbound and one southbound between junction 4 (National Exhibition Centre and Airport) and junction 5 (Castle Bromwich). A58 Reopening at Hooton, Shropshire. A58 Reopening at Hooton, Shropshire.

North: M6 Two lanes open northbound and one southbound between junction 4 (National Exhibition Centre and Airport) and junction 5 (Castle Bromwich). A58 Reopening at Hooton, Shropshire. A58 Reopening at Hooton, Shropshire.

North: M6 Two lanes open northbound and one southbound between junction 4 (National Exhibition Centre and Airport) and junction 5 (Castle Bromwich). A58 Reopening at Hooton, Shropshire. A58 Reopening at Hooton, Shropshire.

North: M6 Two lanes open northbound and one southbound between junction 4 (National Exhibition Centre and Airport) and junction 5 (Castle Bromwich). A58 Reopening at Hooton, Shropshire. A58 Reopening at Hooton, Shropshire.

North: M6 Two lanes open northbound and one southbound between junction 4 (National Exhibition Centre and Airport) and junction 5 (Castle Bromwich). A58 Reopening at Hooton, Shropshire. A58 Reopening at Hooton, Shropshire.

North: M6 Two lanes open northbound and one southbound between junction 4 (National Exhibition Centre and Airport) and junction 5 (Castle Bromwich). A58 Reopening at Hooton, Shropshire. A58 Reopening at Hooton, Shropshire.

North: M6 Two lanes open northbound and one southbound between junction 4 (National Exhibition Centre and Airport) and junction 5 (Castle Bromwich). A58 Reopening at Hooton, Shropshire. A58 Reopening at Hooton, Shropshire.

North: M6 Two lanes open northbound and one southbound between junction 4 (National Exhibition Centre and Airport) and junction 5 (Castle Bromwich). A58 Reopening at Hooton, Shropshire. A58 Reopening at Hooton, Shropshire.

North: M6 Two lanes open northbound and one southbound between junction 4 (National Exhibition Centre and Airport) and junction 5 (Castle Bromwich). A58 Reopening at Hooton, Shropshire. A58 Reopening at Hooton, Shropshire.

Weather forecast

A large anticyclone will cover British Isles and a very weak, warm front will remain slow-moving over the Midlands, N Wales and Northern Ireland.

6 am to midnight
London, SE, central & SW England, Channel Islands: mist and fog patches clearing; dry with sunny periods; wind light S.W. 10 to 15 mph. N.W. central & N.W. England, N.W. Wales, N.W. Scotland, N.W. Ireland: dry with sunny periods; wind light S.W. 10 to 15 mph.

London, SE, central & SW England, Channel Islands: mist and fog patches clearing; dry with sunny periods; wind light S.W. 10 to 15 mph. N.W. central & N.W. England, N.W. Wales, N.W. Scotland, N.W. Ireland: dry with sunny periods; wind light S.W. 10 to 15 mph.

London, SE, central & SW England, Channel Islands: mist and fog patches clearing; dry with sunny periods; wind light S.W. 10 to 15 mph. N.W. central & N.W. England, N.W. Wales, N.W. Scotland, N.W. Ireland: dry with sunny periods; wind light S.W. 10 to 15 mph.

London, SE, central & SW England, Channel Islands: mist and fog patches clearing; dry with sunny periods; wind light S.W. 10 to 15 mph. N.W. central & N.W. England, N.W. Wales, N.W. Scotland, N.W. Ireland: dry with sunny periods; wind light S.W. 10 to 15 mph.

London, SE, central & SW England, Channel Islands: mist and fog patches clearing; dry with sunny periods; wind light S.W. 10 to 15 mph. N.W. central & N.W. England, N.W. Wales, N.W. Scotland, N.W. Ireland: dry with sunny periods; wind light S.W. 10 to 15 mph.

London, SE, central & SW England, Channel Islands: mist and fog patches clearing; dry with sunny periods; wind light S.W. 10 to 15 mph. N.W. central & N.W. England, N.W. Wales, N.W. Scotland, N.W. Ireland: dry with sunny periods; wind light S.W. 10 to 15 mph.

London, SE, central & SW England, Channel Islands: mist and fog patches clearing; dry with sunny periods; wind light S.W. 10 to 15 mph. N.W. central & N.W. England, N.W. Wales, N.W. Scotland, N.W. Ireland: dry with sunny periods; wind light S.W. 10 to 15 mph.

London, SE, central & SW England, Channel Islands: mist and fog patches clearing; dry with sunny periods; wind light S.W. 10 to 15 mph. N.W. central & N.W. England, N.W. Wales, N.W. Scotland, N.W. Ireland: dry with sunny periods; wind light S.W. 10 to 15 mph.

London, SE, central & SW England, Channel Islands: mist and fog patches clearing; dry with sunny periods; wind light S.W. 10 to 15 mph. N.W. central & N.W. England, N.W. Wales, N.W. Scotland, N.W. Ireland: dry with sunny periods; wind light S.W. 10 to 15 mph.

London, SE, central & SW England, Channel Islands: mist and fog patches clearing; dry with sunny periods; wind light S.W. 10 to 15 mph. N.W. central & N.W. England, N.W. Wales, N.W. Scotland, N.W. Ireland: dry with sunny periods; wind light S.W. 10 to 15 mph.

London, SE, central & SW England, Channel Islands: mist and fog patches clearing; dry with sunny periods; wind light S.W. 10 to 15 mph. N.W. central & N.W. England, N.W. Wales, N.W. Scotland, N.W. Ireland: dry with sunny periods; wind light S.W. 10 to 15 mph.

London, SE, central & SW England, Channel Islands: mist and fog patches clearing; dry with sunny periods; wind light S.W. 10 to 15 mph. N.W. central & N.W. England, N.W. Wales, N.W. Scotland, N.W. Ireland: dry with sunny periods; wind light S.W. 10 to 15 mph.

London, SE, central & SW England, Channel Islands: mist and fog patches clearing; dry with sunny periods; wind light S.W. 10 to 15 mph. N.W. central & N.W. England, N.W. Wales, N.W. Scotland, N.W. Ireland: dry with sunny periods; wind light S.W. 10 to 15 mph.

Portfolio

For readers who may have missed a copy of The Times this week's Portfolio price changes (today's are on page 100).

SEA PASSAGES: N. North Sea, Strait of Dover, English Channel (E): Wind variable, light; sea smooth. S. George's Channel, Welsh Sea, Wind mainly SE, light or moderate; sea slight.

SEA PASSAGES: N. North Sea, Strait of Dover, English Channel (E): Wind variable, light; sea smooth. S. George's Channel, Welsh Sea, Wind mainly SE, light or moderate; sea slight.

SEA PASSAGES: N. North Sea, Strait of Dover, English Channel (E): Wind variable, light; sea smooth. S. George's Channel, Welsh Sea, Wind mainly SE, light or moderate; sea slight.

SEA PASSAGES: N. North Sea, Strait of Dover, English Channel (E): Wind variable, light; sea smooth. S. George's Channel, Welsh Sea, Wind mainly SE, light or moderate; sea slight.

SEA PASSAGES: N. North Sea, Strait of Dover, English Channel (E): Wind variable, light; sea smooth. S. George's Channel, Welsh Sea, Wind mainly SE, light or moderate; sea slight.

SEA PASSAGES: N. North Sea, Strait of Dover, English Channel (E): Wind variable, light; sea smooth. S. George's Channel, Welsh Sea, Wind mainly SE, light or moderate; sea slight.

SEA PASSAGES: N. North Sea, Strait of Dover, English Channel (E): Wind variable, light; sea smooth. S. George's Channel, Welsh Sea, Wind mainly SE, light or moderate; sea slight.

SEA PASSAGES: N. North Sea, Strait of Dover, English Channel (E): Wind variable, light; sea smooth. S. George's Channel, Welsh Sea, Wind mainly SE, light or moderate; sea slight.

SEA PASSAGES: N. North Sea, Strait of Dover, English Channel (E): Wind variable, light; sea smooth. S. George's Channel, Welsh Sea, Wind mainly SE, light or moderate; sea slight.

SEA PASSAGES: N. North Sea, Strait of Dover, English Channel (E): Wind variable, light; sea smooth. S. George's Channel, Welsh Sea, Wind mainly SE, light or moderate; sea slight.

SEA PASSAGES: N. North Sea, Strait of Dover, English Channel (E): Wind variable, light; sea smooth. S. George's Channel, Welsh Sea, Wind mainly SE, light or moderate; sea slight.

SEA PASSAGES: N. North Sea, Strait of Dover, English Channel (E): Wind variable, light; sea smooth. S. George's Channel, Welsh Sea, Wind mainly SE, light or moderate; sea slight.

SEA PASSAGES: N. North Sea, Strait of Dover, English Channel (E): Wind variable, light; sea smooth. S. George's Channel, Welsh Sea, Wind mainly SE, light or moderate; sea slight.

High tides

Today
London Bridge 12.51
Aberdeen 12.51
Abermouth 12.51
Cardiff 12.51
Doverport 12.51
Falmouth 12.51
Glasgow 12.51
Hull 12.51
Liverpool 12.51
Loughsborough 12.51
Margate 12.51
Newport 12.51
Oban 12.51
Penzance 12.51
Plymouth 12.51
Portsmouth 12.51
Southampton 12.51
Swansea 12.51
Tees 12.51
Wexham-on-Neas 12.51

Tomorrow
London Bridge 1.43
Aberdeen 1.43
Abermouth 1.43
Cardiff 1.43
Doverport 1.43
Falmouth 1.43
Glasgow 1.43
Hull 1.43
Liverpool 1.43
Loughsborough 1.43
Margate 1.43
Newport 1.43
Oban 1.43
Penzance 1.43
Plymouth 1.43
Portsmouth 1.43
Southampton 1.43
Swansea 1.43
Tees 1.43
Wexham-on-Neas 1.43

Today
Sun rises 7:10 am
Sun sets 6:12 pm
Moon 1:54 pm
New Moon: October 14.

Tomorrow
Sun rises 7:21 am
Sun sets 6:08 pm
Moon 6:01 am
New Moon: Tomorrow.

Today
Sun rises 7:10 am
Sun sets 6:12 pm
Moon 1:54 pm
New Moon: October 14.

Tomorrow
Sun rises 7:21 am
Sun sets 6:08 pm
Moon 6:01 am
New Moon: Tomorrow.

Today
Sun rises 7:10 am
Sun sets 6:12 pm
Moon 1:54 pm
New Moon: October 14.

Tomorrow
Sun rises 7:21 am
Sun sets 6:08 pm
Moon 6:01 am
New Moon: Tomorrow.

Today
Sun rises 7:10 am
Sun sets 6:12 pm
Moon 1:54 pm
New Moon: October 14.

Tomorrow
Sun rises 7:21 am
Sun sets 6:08 pm
Moon 6:01 am
New Moon: Tomorrow.

Today
Sun rises 7:10 am
Sun sets 6:12 pm
Moon 1:54 pm
New Moon: October 14.

Tomorrow
Sun rises 7:21 am
Sun sets 6:08 pm
Moon 6:01 am
New Moon: Tomorrow.

Today
Sun rises 7:10 am
Sun sets 6:12 pm
Moon 1:54 pm
New Moon: October 14.

Tomorrow
Sun rises 7:21 am
Sun sets 6:08 pm
Moon 6:01 am
New Moon: Tomorrow.

مكتبات الصحف

October 12 - 18, 1985

A weekly guide to leisure, entertainment and the arts

Golden mouldies

Troops are mobilizing all over the country for the great English cheese conflict. Pearson Phillips answers the call to battle and meets the heroes of the latest campaign to save our traditional fare

An item of sombre news is being digested by the members of a certain elite circle. "Have you heard? Mrs Longstaff is giving up. Thank goodness for the Bottomleys. Who is this unhappy elite? They are Cheese Fogeys, otherwise known as Cheese Bogs. They have also, unkindly, been called Cheese Boreas. They are spreading like the mould through a well-made piece of Stilton. You will recognize them by the fact that they may well have wires attached to metal handles displayed in their kitchens. These are Reynolds Patent Cheese-cutters, the mark of the hard-cheese aficionado. Real English cheese is their thing, although they will not turn their noses away from a piece from Wales, Scotland, the Orkneys, Ireland, or even, at a pinch, France, provided that it passes their particular tests.

Among the most important of these is that they should know the name of the person who made the cheese, the breed of cow, sheep or goat that supplied the milk and even the nature and position of the grass the beasts consumed and the season during which they consumed it. They can interpret it all from the marks and numbers stamped on the outside of a cheese, like a wine buff reading a wine label.

They have their heroes and their heroines. Some talk of Miss Betsy Mudd, famous for her Wensleydale until she died in 1960 at the age of 83. She was making it until a few days before the end. And remember Mrs Haines and her Double Gloucester? They won the championship cup nine years running at the Gloucester Show before the war.

Before the war - ah, those were the days. That was before an act of barbarism was committed by a certain Professor Capstick, one of the anti-heroes of "real cheese". He it was (so the folklore has it) who advised Lord Woolton, the Minister of Reconstruction, that all milk should be diverted away from the likes of Mrs Haines and Miss Mudd, and sent to the cheese factories for turning into national utility cheese.

It was a blow from which the art of the well-tempered farmhouse cheese is only just, thanks to the current "real cheese" campaign, beginning to recover.

There are occasional setbacks, however. The retirement of the aforementioned Mrs Longstaff is one of them. She has devoted a lifetime to making Swaledale, one of the great Dales cheeses, having learnt the art from her mother. She did not make much. She only had two cows. But now she is about to give up altogether and at a stroke the supplies of genuine Swaledale will be reduced by 50 per cent.

But there are still the Bottomleys. Vernon Bottomley and his wife produce the other 50 per cent of Swaledale. He is one of a growing number of people who have heard the call of real cheese so strongly that they have set about making the stuff themselves. He has retired from accountancy to a farm with a herd of Jerseys which pasture on Melbeck Moor on the north side of the River Swale.

So what, exactly, is going on? There is no cause for alarm. We are merely in the grip of another of those eruptions of consumer taste which have recently begun to puncture the bland progress of the mass-market food industry. The battles for beer and bread have been fought and won. Now the troops are mobilizing for the great cheese conflict.

Leading the troops is a delightful, monocled major, Pat Rance to his friends and "dear old Patrick" to executives of the Milk Marketing Board, who are supposed to be the "enemy". Major Rance is the fountain of real cheese lore. You can hire him for £100 to give a 50-minute lecture with display of over 30 British cheeses from his cheese shop in Stratley, Berkshire.

While I was being given a free lecture among the cheeses and cheese mites (harmless pests which taste of cury) in his cellar, a call came through from the United States. Would he be prepared to help spread the wisdom over there? Real Farmhouse English cheddar can command $7 a pound in New York.

Major Rance has written The Great British Cheese Book, the bible of the movement. It is a magnificent work embracing everything, including how to use a wire cheese-cutter. He is now at work on a similar bible of French cheeses, which means that the grocery trade is about to be inflicted with customers prodding the Camembert to find the correct supplie, but not soft, texture and demanding assurances that the Roquefort is made from the milk of ewes browsing only on the plateau of Larzac.

For Pat Rance, the main evils are plastic-sealed block cheeses made from pasteurized milk, suitable for cutting into small blocks for the supermarket cool cabinet. The ideal is to have cloth-bound cylinders, made from untreated milk, served by people standing behind counters in shops. The former provides mild, characterless uniformity, he says. The latter provides variety and taste.

The major is infuriated by the assertion of the Milk Marketing Board that milk is preferred by the public and that the alleged superiority of the taste of the cloth-bound cylinders is all in the mind of real cheese people like him.

His experiences as a cheese-seller tell him otherwise. And what about that famous blind tasting of 1978, an event he refers to as one of the famous victories of the cheese war? More than 50 people were invited to lunch by the Milk Marketing Board and asked to sample two apparently identical cubes of nine-month-old farmhouse Cheddar. They all chose the one that proved to have come from a cloth-bound cylinder and rejected the one which had come from a plastic block.

"And yet when we got home," says the major, "we found that they had already printed the handout saying that the test had demonstrated the identical flavour of the two types of cheese."

Another doughy campaigner is Randolph Hodgson, who until recently made cheese in the heart of London in his dairy shop at Neal's Yard, Covent Garden. He makes regular excursions round the British Isles, collecting cheese from remote outposts.

He blames "the younger generation of grandees" employed by the Milk Marketing Board, who have the bland, supermarket product in mind when subjecting cheese marketed through the board's official "Farmhouse Cheese" scheme to their tests. "Cheeses which promise to mature with character are down-graded, which disgusts the traditional cheese-makers. Many of them have given up. They also want to stop them losing weight and thereby losing profit. But that is the way to get crumbly, tasteless, sharp cheese."

He is heroes are people like the Appleby family of Cheshire, father Lance and son Edward, who fill up their Land Rover choice Cheshires and come down to London to drop them off at the temples of real cheese, such as the Harrods cheese counter, or Paxton and Whitfield, Jermyn Street, known as "Packers and Whittiers".

The Milk Marketing Board are frightened that the new breed of the traditional cheese-maker will cut into their own sales," Ralph Hodgson says. "But what we are doing is creating an extra market for cheese. We are adding to the total sales." At around 12½lbs of cheese per head a year,

British consumption is one third of that in France. He believes that good quality would help us to catch up.

And what does "the enemy" say to all this? "Taste is a subjective issue," says the Milk Marketing Board's head of product development. But I detected a note of appeasement, if not outright surrender. "We would be delighted to help the market expand in any way we can. We regularly give assistance to small traditional cheese-makers who are in difficulties. Though you must realize that not everyone wants to buy from a specialist cheese shop..."

They seem to be giving ground. One small Cotswold cheese-maker tells me he has recently had a visit from a local board representative, actually asking if there is anything he could do to help. The word is going round that if a small cheese-maker needs more milk than his quota allows, he need only shout loudly to get it.

When the organized might of the British consumer is on the march, the big boys must bend to satisfy it. Particularly when a warrior like Major Pat is in the van.

Mastering the art of cheese-speak

A cheese counter. A multitude of cut and uncut cheeses of all shapes and colours are arranged on straw matting. Most have pieces of paper on them bearing names and dates. Larger cylinders of cheese are visible in the background.

The white-coated cheese-seller is male and middle aged. Enter a customer: greying, upright, soldierly, carrying a string shopping bag. He has left his black Labrador outside.

"Morning, Colonel. What can I offer you today?"

"Got the wife's sister dining, so we'll need a woman's cheese. Something mild and soft that won't be a total disgrace to me cheeseboard. One of Mr Crisp's little masterpiece, perhaps?"

"Could I suggest this... (reaches for a small, round, flat cheese with a reddish mould on the rind and begins to cut off a thin slice).

"None of your new-fangled Parley's nonsense, is it?" (Eyeing it suspiciously).

"You know me better than that, Colonel." (Hands him the piece balanced on the knife).

"From a French cow, I would say." (He looks at it with a little finger, lowers his nose to it and inhales, finally breaking a place off, placing it on the tip of his tongue and pressing it against the roof of his palate while simultaneously sucking in air).

"Strange. At first I thought it was that factory stuff from the average you tried to palm me off with the other week...

"St Nectaire?"

"That's the stuff. Holy nectar! More like Unholy nectar! But this is better. Melts well. Interesting mouldy bouquet. Tangy after-taste. Known the inside of a farmer's cheese vat, I wouldn't wonder."

"Exactly. It's a farmhouse St Nectaire." They are starting up again down there. Putting the factories out of business...

"Damn good thing, too. At least the French have got that right. A bit above my sister-in-law's head, but I'll take it. Now I'll need something a bit sharper and a good strong blue to finish."

"The first farmhouse Gruyères of the season are in..."

1. John Crisp, The Cheese Counter, 10, St. James's Place, London SW1A 1BJ.

2. The Cheese Counter, 10, St. James's Place, London SW1A 1BJ.

3. The Cheese Counter, 10, St. James's Place, London SW1A 1BJ.

4. The Cheese Counter, 10, St. James's Place, London SW1A 1BJ.

5. The Cheese Counter, 10, St. James's Place, London SW1A 1BJ.

6. The Cheese Counter, 10, St. James's Place, London SW1A 1BJ.

7. The Cheese Counter, 10, St. James's Place, London SW1A 1BJ.

8. The Cheese Counter, 10, St. James's Place, London SW1A 1BJ.

9. The Cheese Counter, 10, St. James's Place, London SW1A 1BJ.

Tasting the smart end of the wedge

Like any man of the world facing the moment of decision, the true cheese lover must betray no sign of nerves or bewilderment when confronting the riotous profusion of a specialist cheese counter. You have certain rights and must exercise them.

The golden rule is never buy anything you have not tasted. Asking for "a taste" will inform the cheese-seller you are someone who knows what is what.

On being handed a sliver of your selected cheese on a knife, do not immediately put it into your mouth. There are things to be done beforehand. Ask a few questions. What is its date? What farm does it come from?

You will have been examining the rind or casing of the cheese while your sliver was being cut. Any unpleasant bumps or swellings, denoting secondary fermentation? What does the inside look like? If it has holes, are they the right size? Is it sticky or crumbly? Is the colour right?

Then examine the piece that has been cut and apply to your nose. Is the aroma what it ought to be?

Finally, place a piece on the tip of the tongue and press it upwards against the palate. How does it feel? Too hard? Too soft and sticky? What about the after-taste, which will take a few seconds to arrive on the palate? Too sharp and metallic? Too mild? Nothing there at all?

If all is well you will buy. If not, you must request a taste of something else...

INS AND OUTS

Orkney Farmhouse from Shapinsay (Queen Mother's favourite).
Dorset Blue Vinney.
Warkleigh from Devon.
Colston Basset Blue Stilton.
Hand-made Camembert from the Pays d'Auge.
Double Gloucester made from milk of Gloucester cattle.
Swaledale.
Cotswold.
Farmhouse Unpasteurized Cheddar made by Lord Chewton at Chewton Mendip or from Manor Farm, North Cadbury. Any local goat's cheese from "down the road".

OUT

Danish Blue.
Edam.
New Zealand Cheddar.
Gorgonzola.
Gruyère.
Lynwood.
Factory Brie.
Factory Camembert.
Block Cheddar.
Stilton in "gift" pots.
Anything "pasteurized".
Anything wrapped in silver paper.

TOP SHOPS

Wells Stores, Stratley-on-Thames, Berkshire (0491 872367). 160 cheeses by post.
Neal's Yard Dairy, Covent Garden, London WC2 (01-378 7848).
Paxton & Whitfield, 88 Jermyn Street, London SW1 (01-830 0258).
Palms, 84 Covered Market, Oxford.
Girencester Market (Mon and Fri).
Charles Martell, Home-made, Double and Single Gloucester.
Post Office Stores, Cotswolds, County Durham. Occasional source of rare local Cotswold cheese.
Shephard Farm, Ashington, near Tynes, Devon. Home-produced Cheddar.
The Farmhouse English Cheese Information Service, is located at Hesketh House, Portman Square, London W1.

SATURDAY

Glenda Jackson: the play's the thing - page 38

Arts diary	38	Gardening	34
Bridge	34	Opera	37
Chess	34	Photography	38
Concerts	37	Review	34
Crossword	34	Rock & Jazz	37
Dance	38	Shopping	35
Drink	35	TV & Radio	37
Films	38	Theatre	38
Galleries	38	Travel	32,33

BLOOD DONOR

"No, thanks. In my view the Swiss are too keen on hygiene to make a cheese with character."

"And for the blue, there is the Roquefort."

"Too late for the local ewes. Let's come back to Britain. Is that a genuine farmhouse Vinney? What's the Stilton situation?"

(The cheese-seller takes a different, longer sharper knife from a pot of hot water sitting on the counter and begins cutting slivers from several blue-veined cheeses, carefully wiping the knife after each operation. The Colonel performs his routine on each piece, most of which earn a short, sharp, crotchety comment, before he finds what he is looking for.)

"Metal polish... wrenched untimely from the cellar... carbolic... nothing to say for itself. Now this looks more promising. A rich, dark yellow. And the bugs have done their job. A good covering of greeny-blueish veins. Nice brown coat. Smooth, firm flesh. And that deep, dusky flavour. Unpasteurized, for sure. One of Colston Basset's, I'd say. Cut me a good wedge. And I'll take some of Launce Appleby's Cheshire to lead up to it."

"Certainly, Colonel. It's a pleasure to serve someone who knows his cheese."

"Yes, but more important is to know a cheesemonger who knows his cheese. Good day to you."

NEXT TIME YOU ARE INVITED TO A PARTY WHY NOT BECOME A BLOOD DONOR?

BULL'S BLOOD IS AS UNIQUE AS ITS NAME. A FULL-BODIED RED WINE FROM THE ANCIENT VINEYARDS OF EGER IN NORTHERN HUNGARY, WHERE WINE HAS BEEN CULTIVATED FOR OVER TWO THOUSAND YEARS.

THE BLENDED WINE IS LEFT TO MATURE IN OAK CASKS IN CAVERNS UNDER THE EGER HILLS FOR AT LEAST TWO YEARS - ONLY THEN IS IT READY TO CARRY THE NAME OF BULL'S BLOOD.

She's spent a lifetime supporting her family. Don't let her become a poor relation.

Throughout the country there are thousands who, like Miss Ferguson here, have shown unstinting devotion to their family. Often it's to the detriment of a promising career and results in years of hardship.

Likewise, many from a professional or similar background whose time has been spent helping the community must retire on low, fixed incomes.

The Royal United Kingdom Beneficent Association was founded in 1863 to care for these deserving cases.

Every year since, costs have risen. That's why we must ask people like you to help people like Miss Ferguson by either sending a donation to RUKBA or remembering us in your will.

Name _____
Address _____
The Royal United Kingdom Beneficent Association,
6, Avonmore Road, London W14 8RL. Tel: 01-602 6374

TRAVEL

Planes take the strain

FARE DEALS

Business is booming for Britain's domestic air services, despite a recent increase in fares. The big growth is on the routes connecting London with Manchester, Belfast, Edinburgh and Glasgow. British Airways Super Shuttle flights, for example, have carried more than five million passengers in just over two years.

The rate of growth shows no sign of diminishing, with BA claiming a steady 10 per cent increase on all shuttle services and Dan Air, B Cal and British Midland Airways (BMA) also reporting healthy loads.

Why is domestic air travel so popular in these recessionary times? Since the Government allowed independent airlines like Dan Air and BMA the freedom to compete, service standards all round are higher, and the competition has brought fares tailored to all categories of traveller.

On the Super Shuttle external routes free drinks, snacks/meals and newspapers have become normal for all airlines.

In fact BA now serve free drinks on all domestic flights. There are lower fares if you travel at off-peak times, APEX (Advance Purchase Excursion) rates if you can plan ahead, and stand-by and late booking fares for travellers who need not arrive at a specific time.

You therefore pay for flexibility. The businessman travelling to Edinburgh and not sure when he wants to fly will pay as much as £130 return. A leisure traveller planning his trip wisely would pay just £69. This compares with rail fares of between £112 first class return and £42 ordinary return for the restricted "InterCity saver".

Such fares have stimulated new business as well as ending people away from surface transport. Many business travellers have deserted British Rail because of recent poor reliability while leisure travellers are increasingly prepared to pay more for convenience. For example, if you live on the south coast and are heading for Scotland it is much easier to fly from your local airport than to travel to a central London station.

Domestic air travel is keenly priced. As the accompanying chart shows, there are bargains available for those who choose their flights carefully.

Alex McWhirter

The author is Travel Editor of Business Traveller.

OPTIONS ON MAIN ROUTES FROM STANSTED

	Airline	Normal one-way	Apex return
Aberdeen	Air UK	£77	£134
Edinburgh	Air UK	£86	£113

Apex: Book 30 days ahead. Minimum stay is a Saturday night.

© Times Newspapers Limited, 1985

OPTIONS ON MAIN ROUTES FROM HEATHROW

	Airline	Normal one-way	Day return	Off-peak one-way	Stand-by one-way	Off-peak Stand-by	Excursion return	Apex return
Aberdeen	BA	£73	-	£49	£39	-	£96	£75
Belfast	BA	£65	£98	£49	£43	-	£105	£85
	BMA	£61	£112	£44	£43	£40	£105	£79
Edinburgh/Glasgow	BA	£66	£100	£50	£43	-	£109	£76
	BMA	£62	£112	£43	£43	£40	£109	£69
Manchester	BA	£50	-	£48	£40	-	£86	£55
	Dan Air (DA)	£48	-	-	-	-	£82	-
Newcastle	BA	£59	-	£42	£37	-	£78	£51

* Note: other Dan Air fares include a one-way excursion for £41, one-way Apex for £31 and a £52 Late-purchase return.

Normal one-way: No restrictions.

Day Return: With BMA valid on all flights. With BA valid selected flights Monday to Friday; all flights Saturday/Sunday.

Off-peak: Valid on selected flights only. For BA Shuttle flights buy your ticket before departure. For BMA and other BA destinations buy your ticket before arrival at airport.

Stand-by: Valid on selected flights only. Check with the airline.

Excursions: Minimum stay Saturday night, maximum one month. Restricted flights.

Apex: Book 14 days ahead. Minimum stay Saturday night (except flights to Edinburgh/Glasgow). Restricted flights.

© Times Newspapers Limited, 1985

OPTIONS ON MAIN ROUTES FROM GATWICK

	Airline	Normal one-way	Excursion one-way	Apex one-way	Stand-by	Weekend	Excursion return	Senior Citizen fare
Aberdeen	DA a)	£74	£55	£44	-	-	-	-
Edinburgh/Glasgow	B.Cal	£68	-	£40	£45	£59	£109	£72
Newcastle	DA	£59	£48	£38	-	-	-	-
Belfast	DA b)	£62	£48	£40	-	-	£96	-
Manchester	B.Cal	£52	-	£39	-	£55	£87	£56

Notes: other Dan Air fares are: a) Aberdeen £44 one-way Late-saver, book on day of travel

b) Belfast £20 Late Purchase return, book within 14 days of travel

Excursion one-way: Capacity controlled, otherwise no other restrictions.

Apex one-way: Book 10 days ahead with B.Cal, 14 days with Dan Air.

Apex weekends: Valid for one month. Travel out Friday/Saturday, return Sunday.

Excursions: Minimum stay Saturday night, maximum one month.

Senior Citizen fare: Valid on selected flights for return travel only.

© Times Newspapers Limited, 1985

Booking a treat for railway children

The book train is coming to town, beckoning parties of children on board to inspect its crew of authors and illustrators and people dressed up as Postman Pat and Fungus the Bogeyman. And to look at lots of books.

Children's Book Week (today until October 19) is the biggest children's book promotion ever staged in Britain, trying to convey to the widest possible audience the message that reading is fun. Television will be joining in, through Blue Peter and Saturday Superstore and even ITN's News at One, which is using the work of children's illustrators Jan Pienkowski and Anthony Browne with the daily weather item.

British Rail has entered into the spirit of the venture by entrusting the sides of the Book Week train to an army of enthusiastic child painters. The result is a new and unorthodox literary described by the National Book League as "wham, bam, splat in primary colours".

The train leaves Euston this morning and will clock up more than 1,500 miles in eight days. At each stop parties of children will spend some 20 minutes meeting authors and illustrators, entering competitions and, if all goes well, buying books. They have been asked to bring at least £1.50 to spend.

The timetable allows them another 30 minutes to enjoy side-shows on the platforms and exchange a few words with the

OUT AND ABOUT

Artists in training: the finishing touches are applied at Marylebone this week

W. H. Smith robot before the next party arrives. Altogether the exercise will involve some 8,000 children and cost £70,000.

It is happening at an opportune time. School inspectors and others in education claim there has been a marked decline in children's leisure reading. The Book Week, going national this year for the first time since it started in 1977, is an attempt to reverse the trend.

Says Martyn Goff, director of the National Book League: "We hope that as a result of our efforts, publishers, booksellers and librarians will take children's books more seriously and that the children will realise how much fun, information and stimulation reading can provide".

Admission to the train will normally be by ticket only. The exceptions are at Stirling station tomorrow (3.30-5.30pm) and Aberdeen station on Monday (4-6pm). The train's other stops are at York, Newcastle, Edinburgh, Glasgow, Carlisle, Manchester, Crewe, Birmingham, Hereford, Cardiff, Swansea, Plymouth, Exeter, Bristol and Southampton.

Backing up the train are hundreds of events in schools, libraries and bookshops. Local newspaper will carry the details. It promises to be quite a week.

Susan Corbett

Further information from: Children's Book Week, National Book League, Book House, 45 East Hill, Wandsworth, London SW18 0JL (01-874 6381).

WEEKLY WALKS

St David's Head is way out west: the local weather forecast tells them what passed over two hours earlier. It also happens to be one of the pearls of the Pembrokeshire Coast Path. Start at the Whitesands Bay car park, about two miles north-west of St David's. Following the path is no problem as it hugs the coast (all the way to Cardigan if you so desire). The Head itself is on a there-and-back reach of beach as you return eastwards, the view of Carn Llidi is like that of Snowdonia, but seagirt. Geologically, the two are identical; in front of Carn Llidi are field patterns dating back to the Iron Age. About half a mile beyond the Head and well below it is Porth Lleng. As long means ship, this was presumably a smugglers' haven. From here, if the ups and downs of the coast path are over-tiring your legs, follow the route off to the right (it diverges at the signpost marked YHA), to return to the road just to the east of base. For those whose lungs long for the sea air, the path swings up and down for another couple of miles towards Porth-y-Dwr; back on paths by way of Treleddyf-fawr to Llanthely (which means dairy), the St David's youth hostel. This is a pedestrian staging post for the commissaire, and its superb breakfasts are ample justification for YHA membership. Turn right at the end of the hostel lane to return to the car park. Use either Ordnance Survey map 157, or the HMSO guide to the Pembrokeshire Coast Path. Iain Liddell

The Discreet Charm of the Luxembourg
ANNE GRECO
For a free copy of this engaging and colourful guide to Luxembourg together with our brochure on individual inclusive holidays to this charming city, write to:
The Old Lady,
21 Chester Chase,
London SW1X 7BQ.

NILE CRUISES.
Discover Ancient Egypt's treasures on a 600 mile Nile cruise accompanied by an expert lecturer. 16 nights (fully inclusive) from £1,995. Ring 01-247 7532 or see your ABTA travel agent.

OUTINGS

THE WILDLIFE GARDEN - AN AUTUMN SYMPOSIUM. Organized by the Cumbria Trust for Nature Conservation on such subjects as "Growing Wild Flowers from Seed", and "Gardening for Wildlife". Tea and biscuits. Lathwaite School, Crosthwaite, Keswick, Cumbria. Further information from the CTNC (0986 32476). Today, 10am-5pm. Admission £1, family ticket £1.50.

WARWICK OX ROAST AND MOP. No servants for hire as once there were, but jollifications in the streets and the annual ox roast. Warwick, Warwickshire. Further information (0926 492212). Today and this evening. Free.

TATTON CONTEMPORARY CRAFT AND DESIGN SHOW. Fifty-five exhibitors, each showing a full collection of work: textiles, jewellery, porcelain, painting, glass, toys and furniture - with demonstrations of furniture making, ancient and modern. Tatton Park, Knutsford, Cheshire. Further information (061 928 9149). Today, tomorrow, 10am-6.30pm. Admission 80p, car park £1.

FINCHCOCKS FAIR. Last chance this year to visit Finchcocks. Frequent musical interludes during the fair, which hosts more than 60 stands. Finchcocks, Goudhurst, Kent (0580 211702). Today, tomorrow, 11am-6pm. Adult £1.50, child £1.

THE WEAVERS OF ANCIENT PERU. Major exhibition of Peruvian weaving and tapestries with some spectacular Inca items and a 2,000-year-old mummy from the Paracas culture. Two craftsmen from the High Andes will be demonstrating their techniques throughout the exhibition.

The Art Gallery, Commonwealth Institute, Kensington High Street, London W8 (01-803 4536). Today until Oct 28, daily 10am-5.30pm. Adult £1, child 50p.

ASHTON AND WORLD CONKER CHAMPIONSHIPS. It hasn't been the best year for conkers but 128 competitors will try to become champions at this annual event, from which all proceeds go to charity. Stalls and entertainers. The Village Green, Ashton, near Oundle, Cambridgeshire. Further information from Richard Howard (0832 73494). Tomorrow from 10am. Spectators free, car park £1.

BRITISH PHILATELIC EXHIBITION. Some 130 stands representing dealers and post offices from home and abroad. Approximately 400 frames of stamps - including 40 by junior philatelists - worth over £1 million. Royal Horticultural Society Halls, Vincent Square, London SW1. Further information from the British Philatelic Society (01-930 6465). Tues, 1pm-8pm, Wed-Fri, 10.30am-8pm, Oct 19, 20, 10.30am-6pm. Admission first day £2, thereafter adult £1, child 50p.

Judy Froshang

Pan Am Fly/Drive. Everything Free Under The Sun.

Everything we can give away, we're giving away on Pan Am Fly/Drive holidays in Florida. First, we'll give two adults on a holiday to Florida a free hotel voucher worth £28! Then there's our bonus discount scheme: £25 off for each adult, £10 each child! Car hire is from £25 a week; so two adults get the equivalent of two weeks' car hire free!

For good measure we'll also give you free drinks and headsets on the nonstop flight to and from Miami. And we've a special two-for-one duty-free offer. Sounds too good to be true? Phone us for more details on: 01-409 0688 and we'll see you right across America.

PAN AM FLY/DRIVE
*From Oct 1st but not 15th-31st Dec. **Available for departure any day except Saturday.

Tourarc U.K. Easy skiing

Off to the blue skies and sparkling air of great skiing country. Find yourself overnight at the heart of the French Alps, among spectacular landscapes with an almost infinite variety of ski trails.

Tourarc, the new London office of the French ski resort of Les Arcs offers you maximum snow time and enjoyment from your skiing holiday. Just choose your altitude - Arc 1600, Arc 1800 or Arc 2000 - and your preferred holiday formula: hotel or self-catering. Everything is taken care of: reservations, travel arrangements, reception, transfers, ski lessons with English speaking instructors, "après-ski" activities and great entertainment.

All are organised the way you want them, to the last detail. Tourarc brings great skiing to your doorstep and offers you a warm welcome to the snowy kingdom of Les Arcs.

Les Arcs

Exciting skiing in over 50 resorts. Well equipped for downhill and cross-country. The inter-resort passes let you ski to adjoining villages. And when it comes to après-ski, wine and ambience are simply unrivalled. For a free copy of the 1985-86 Ski Traveller in France just fill in the coupon at the foot of the mountain.

SKI SKI SKI FRANCE

To: The French Government
Tourist Office, Dept. 71
178 Piccadilly,
London W1Y 0AL
Please send me The Ski Traveller in France including list of holiday operators

Name _____
Address _____

Drive a Free car in America with TWA.

FREE Hertz car for a week*

Two adults flying TWA transatlantic can take a Hertz rental car FREE for up to 7 days. Taxes, insurance and petrol are extra.

It's available between 15th October 1985 and 21st March 1986. You can book now

Any TWA flight in America: £22.

All you have to do is buy the new TWA 'US Rover' ticket when you book your TWA transatlantic flight. You buy a minimum of four flights, and as many as you like up to eight. Any TWA flight. Any distance. All at £22 a flight.

See your TWA Main Agent for full details of these two great offers. Or ring Traveller's Jetways on 01-637 5444 or 061-833 0930 for more details.

Leading the way to the USA

TWA

TWA

Opened in association with Traveller's Jetways and available at all Hertz corporate locations in the USA.

BRIDGE

Serious flaws in a jewel of a duel

José Le Dentu's daily bridge article in Le Figaro is one of the innumerable delights that France offers holidaymakers in August. Driven from the beach by storm and tempest, I took solace from a hand he cites featuring Benito Garozzo and veteran French international Leon Tintner.

East overtook the ♠Q with the ♠K and returned the ♠10. Garozzo ducked the first two clubs but won the third round, discarding a diamond from dummy. He crossed to dummy with a top heart to take the diamond finesse, which lost to Tintner's ♠K. This was the position:

Tintner cashed his winning club and then found the continuation to defeat the contract, the two of diamonds. If he had switched, as many players would have done, to the ♠J, Garozzo would have won in dummy and cashed his winning hearts, squeezing East in spades and diamonds. Tintner's thoughtful play destroyed the communications.

Admirable defence by Tintner, but I wonder whether Garozzo was satisfied with his play. As I see it, he made two errors, which almost makes the hand a collector's piece. At the point when he won the third club he could count nine certain tricks provided the hearts broke, and the diamond finesse could provide a tenth. Only if the hearts were 5-1 would the hand require any skill, so Garozzo should have directed his mind to that possibility. In either event he should have discarded the ♠10, rather than a diamond, on the third club.

Again, it costs nothing to cash a second heart before taking the diamond finesse. As it is a Pairs contest, West cannot afford to duck. West is placed in an impossible predicament. If he cashes his club, he exposes his partner to a spade-diamond squeeze. If he switches to a heart, Garozzo can cash his red winners before placing East on play to lead into the spade tenace. Finally, if he switches to a spade, Garozzo ducks and his ♠7 ultimately becomes a menace that East cannot resist.

Jeremy Flint

CHESS

First Red star shoots to the top

Harry Golombek continues the series on former world champions with a look at Mikhail Botvinnik

At the beginning of 1946 a challenge had come from Botvinnik for Alekhine to play a match for the championship in England in 1947. Alekhine accepted but his sudden death in March 1946 prevented it. FIDE then arranged for the world's best masters to play each other five times to decide the championship.

The subsequent match tournament resulted in an overwhelming win for Botvinnik. Here is one of his impressive finishes against Dr Euwe, the former holder of the world title. White: Botvinnik. Black: Euwe. World Championship Match Tournament, Moscow 1948.

With his powerful Bishop and central pawn majority Euwe appears to have an excellent position. If White's Knight retreats with 22 N-B3 then 22... P-K4 is fine for Black. Botvinnik, however, is ready with a devastating surprise.

A beautifully neat sacrifice that wins by obtaining complete control of the 7th rank.

Or 22... R-B1 23 Q-N7 followed by R-B7, as here. 23 O-N7 R-B1 24 R-B7 O-N7. There is no other way of preventing mate. If 24... Q-Q3 25 RxB P-Q6 26 R-R7 Q-Q1 27 QxRP P-Q7 28 Q-N6ch. The rest of the game is merely a matter of technique, though Botvinnik plays it in the most accurate manner.

Botvinnik was the first Soviet world champion. After his retirement from active chess in 1970, Botvinnik founded a chess school, of which Kasparov is the best known graduate. Indeed, in Kasparov's games we see a blend of Alekhine's fiery imagination with Botvinnik's insistence on scientific research.

Change is in the air, and upon us, Rupert Murdoch's satellite Sky Channel broadcasts inexpensive American re-runs

Paperbacks

Striking back for the Empire

Television Today and Tomorrow - wall-to-wall Dallas? by Christopher Dunkley (Penguin, £2.95)

in the last days of their empire, the public duopolists, BBC and ITV, who have for so long straddled the globe of broadcasting, sit in the market square, awaiting the alien foe. The Visigoths, cable and satellite, unregulated and unregulatable, are at the city gates, flaunting banners of freedom.

What was this empire? How does it now defend its boundaries? What claim does it have on our loyalties? What say the omens? What portends?

Each week, on the arts page of the Financial Times, Christopher Dunkley offers a trenchant commentary on the medium, its product and its affairs. Now, at yet another critical moment of debate on broadcasting's future, he offers a clear summary of the record to date, and of the issues that divide the parties in dispute about that future. In the face of the proliferation of media spawned by the new technologies of satellite and cable, will duopolistic public service broadcasting survive? Does it deserve to?

This short book will guide the discussion, rather than end the argument. It is not wholly accurate: NARAL, long defunct, for NAR, in the thicket of initials, betrays a significant misunderstanding. And, if Thames Television contributed programmes to the network in proportion to its domestic profit, we should have had no Minder this year. But it is fair and perceptive, not taken in by the boasts of those who proclaim a new and perfect order of multiplicity of choice, nor wholly unsparing about the complacency of the defenders of the best broadcasting in the world.

Change is in the air, and upon us, Rupert Murdoch's satellite Sky Channel broadcasts inexpensive American re-runs to Europeans who both enjoy the easy entertainment they offer, and learn English in so doing. Virtue is added to profit. And there is more to come.

This duopolist is unafraid. But then he wholeheartedly applauds Mr Dunkley's conclusion: the object of public policy ought to be to preserve the best of what is currently on offer, until new choices for all are actually available. And that, given the start-and-stop that has been this Government's substitute for communications policy, will not be for a decade at least.

Newspapers with any regard for values need not argue impatiently for destruction. Broadcasters need to save their standards, not betray them.

The barbarians, at least in Cavafy's poem, would have been a welcome solution, for the city's life was ended. Not so with the duopoly. British broadcasting, serving and satisfying a great majority of viewers and listeners each and every week, offers no easily vulnerable vacuum to newcomers, abhorrent or otherwise. There is life in the empire yet.

Jeremy Isaacs

Maverick who dips his pen in acid

I can think of a lot of people who would like to be writing this review: "Screaming Ron Brown of Leith, that atom of public melancholy", "that finished primitive Mr Dennis Skinner", or "that extinct molehill, Peter Walker".

would no doubt have a thing or two to say about Edward Pearce, the parliamentary sketch writer for the Daily Telegraph and author of this expanded sketch of the contemporary political scene.

On behalf of these, and countless other victims of Mr Pearce's sharp pen, let us dispose as quickly as possible of his good points.

He is highly intelligent, well-read, can turn many a fine

Hummingbirds and Hyenas by Edward Pearce (Faber and Faber, £4.95) phrase and is skilled in the art of abuse.

Take his observations on Mrs Thatcher: "She is a reflex pedant tediously and monotonously given over to correcting Cabinet colleagues on irrelevant details from a treasure-house of small-change information. Her sense of humour is a little above zero; as a speaker on public occasions she can be plain distressing, unsuited, unrelaxed and a triumphant, trumpeting scold".

Mr Pearce, who is a maverick Tory, is often hardest on his own side, and can be acute and highly entertaining.

But he also has many faults:

he gets carried away with phrase-making, pursues unhelpful metaphors and similes, flaunts his knowledge of opera to no useful purpose, and occasionally becomes incomprehensible.

"The meaning here: 'The it is... believe privately as Vi, ma opera-goers believe publicly. The party has all the built-in stability of the Hang Seng Index'".

Mr Pearce is the professional type, whose lack of economy and a common touch keep him well outside the first division of contemporary humorous writers.

Is that withering enough, Ron, Dennis, Peter, Margaret et al? Or perhaps Mr Skinner would prefer something more succinct, like "four-eyed git"?

Rupert Morris

Forward too fast

BOOKS IN BRIEF

Inside Babel by Snoo Wilson (Chatto, £3.95)

The trouble with futuristic fiction is that it has to be exhaustively clever. In this late space-age story, the action is so packed with invention and the writing so thick with puns, spoof echoes of other science fiction and verbal wit, that it is sometimes hard to wade from one paragraph to another.

At the centre is a girl who starts off as a prostitute in a brothel in King's Road, and then finds true love with a mathematical genius. Their liaison sets off a string of disasters which finally come to rest in a drive-in fast-prayer cathedral in Los Angeles. There are some patches of sprightly farce, but there is glitter with too much invention chucked about instead of cherished.

The Psychoanalytic Movement by Ernest Gellner (Penguin, £3.50)

In this polemical and provocative study, the Professor of Social Anthropology at Cambridge argues that Freudian psychoanalysis is a complex belief system filling a vacuum in modern society. It is incorporated in medicine and claims to be scientific, so making itself acceptable to modern sensibility. At the same time it provides pastoral services comparable to those once offered by religion. The relationship between the clergy of psychoanalysts and their clientele ensures the perpetuation of the heresy. C'est la therapie, et non pas la maladie, qui est imaginative.

Propertius, The Poems translated by W. G. Shepherd, introduction by Betty Radice (Penguin Classics, £3.95)

Propertius broke the traditional bounds of Latin with his passionate love elegies, which brought a new sensitivity to sound and imagery into poetry. Translated by that fine and full scholar, Betty Radice, whom we greatly miss; a worthy book of a brilliant but flawed poet.

Anne Barnes and Philip Howard

IN THE GARDEN

Get in trim for winter

Temperatures drop this month but before the bad weather starts there's a lot that can be done to prepare the lawn for winter. If the weather stays mild the grass will continue to grow, albeit slowly. Carry on cutting but do not cut too short. At this time of the year I always box off. If there is a heavy dew or if the grass is still wet after rain, remove the surface moisture with a brush broom.

You should begin a control programme against worms as they can damage lawns at this time of year by producing worm casts. Some controls contain irritants which drive the worms to the surface where they can be swept off, other chemicals will eradicate them altogether.

Raking is also essential. Go over the lawn lightly with a rake to open up the surface and to remove the ill-effects of worm casts. Serious scarifying should be left until the spring as the grass begins to wake up after the winter. Tined rakes are the tools to use as they rake into the dead grass at their surface and this helps to aerate the lawn. It also helps to remove the runners of many weeds and moss. Remember that bare patches of lawn at this time of year will attract weeds rather than grass.

During the year, lawns become compacted by lawn mowers and feet and this has to be relieved. There are two ways to do this: solid tining or hollow tining. Decide which you require and proceed slowly. Hollow tining is best if you wish to get an autumn dressing into the lawn; solid tining is used if you are simply aerating and breaking up the compaction. If you do not have a tining tool, a fork will do almost as well for solid tining; you drive the tines of the fork into the grass at 6-inch intervals. The fork should go in 4 to 6 inches and it is necessary to cover the whole of the lawn. As the season progresses these holes are filled with a top dressing of sand.

Finally, never allow autumn leaves to build up as this cuts down light to the grasses and seriously affects the aeration. Leaves make good compost and should be added to the compost heap so long as they are wet and can be dressed with an activator.

Ashley Stephenson

Bright bulbs (from left) crocus and Chionodoxa lucillae, Fritillaria imperialis and fritillaria meleagris

Springing to life

Spring flowering bulbs are the perfect companion to early flowering plants. Plant any time from now into November. One of my favourites is the Crown Imperial Fritillaria imperialis. Look at F. aurea, which has coppery red blooms, or F. lutea maxima with yellow flowers. The alliums (or flowering onions) include Allium Albopilosum, about 2ft high with large heads of lilac flowers, and A. giganteum, 4ft with tighter heads of pinkish violet. Bulbs suitable for pockets in the rock garden include Chionodoxa lucillae, which has blue flowers with a clear white centre. Crocus chrysanthus types include Bluebird, Cream Beauty, and Snowbunting. Fritillaria meleagris or the Snakes Head Fritillary is worth naturalizing through grass. Bulbs can be obtained from Walter Bloom, Levensden, Watford, Herts.

CONCISE CROSSWORD (No 772)

Prizes of the New Collins Thesaurus will be given for the first two correct solutions opened on Thursday, October 17, 1985. Entries should be addressed to The Times Concise Crossword Competition, 12 Coley Street, London WC9 9YT. The winners and solution will be announced on Saturday, October 19, 1985.

ACROSS

- 1 Large neck blood vessel (7,4)
- 2 Promote (7)
- 3 Longest European river (5)
- 4 Meadow (3)
- 5 Contempt noise (4)
- 6 Road gravel (4)
- 7 Bumpy (6)
- 8 Rest (4)
- 9 Adored one (4)
- 10 Calendar emperor (6)
- 11 Red-skinned cheese (4)
- 12 Polynesian drink (4)
- 13 Affirmative vote (3)
- 14 Cooked cow stomach (5)
- 15 Moral story (7)
- 16 Union rep (4,7)

DOWN

- 1 Encourages (5)
- 2 Salt Lake city stake (4)
- 3 Adam, Eve second son (4)
- 4 Oral test (4)
- 5 Badly brought up (3,4)
- 6 Proper reward (4,7)
- 7 Political group head (5,6)
- 8 Causing vomiting (6)
- 9 Colour (3)
- 10 Bewilder (6)
- 11 Main S American tongue (7)
- 12 Writing fluid (3)
- 13 Warning signal (5)
- 14 Sharp cry (4)
- 15 Observe (4)
- 16 Infused beverage (4)

SOLUTION TO No 771
ACROSS: 1 Kuala Lumpur 9 Anchors 10 Rifts 11 SST 13 Ears 16 Goya 17 Ironed 18 USSR 20 Skin 21 Hoopla 22 Ernie 23 Stow
DOWN: 2 Uxor 3 Lion 4 Less 5 Mart 6 Unfrook 7 Lake Lucerne 8 Isaac Newton 12 Steppes 14 Air 15 Rocco 19 Sangria 20 SAS
The winners of prize concise No 766 are: G. H. Yorke, Morton Street, Royston, Herts; and L. E. Howard, Owen Walk, Anerley, London SE20.

The Vintner Wine Festival

- Meet the Vintners Vignerons Taste over 100 wines plus champagne, malt whiskies, cognacs, armagnacs, ports and sherries.
- Sample Regional Cheeses from France.
- Havana Cigar competition.
- Tasting Competition Win a wine region holiday for two!

Enjoy a World of Wine Experience.

Telephone now for tickets and information 0800 51586, or buy your ticket from one of 15 Arthur Rankham Wine Shops in London and Surrey (authorised ticket agents).

Opening Times: Morning 11 a.m. - 3 p.m. Evening 5 p.m. - 9 p.m. Admission: £15 per session £20 for both sessions

The Savoy Strand, London, WC2 2th October 1985

"AGREED, WE'LL DUMP THEM IN THE KITCHEN AND GRAB THE NEAREST BOTTLE OF BADEN."

ENJOY A SELECTION OF SLIGHTLY DRIER CRISP WINE WITH A SUBTLE YET FULLER FLAVOUR. ESTATE BOTTLED BY THE CO-OPERATIVE OF SOUTHERN GERMANY'S PREMIER GROWERS.

AVAILABLE FROM SELECTED BRANCHES OF SAINSBURY'S, WAITROSE, ROBERTS, ARTHUR COOPER, COBBINS, GOUGH BROTHERS, THRESHER, VICTORIA WINE, BOOTH'S, JULIAN FLOREN, HOUSE OF TOWNEND AND OTHER FINE WINE MERCHANTS.

ZBW THE SEAL OF QUALITY WINE FROM BADEN THE BADEN WINE CENTRE LOW SHOPS WHOLE WINECRAFT WPI 235 TELEPHONE 09051 212-11 TEL 337859

Rioja from CVNE

- "Deep garnet colour"
- "Full, balanced wine, tinged with oak"
- "Elegant, with long finish..."
- "Unmistakably CUNE"

From CUNE, a range of very fine wines including the incomparable Imperial Reservas and Gran Reservas.

DIRECT WINE SUPPLIERS LTD, 15A TOWN CENTRE, HATFIELD, HERTS, AL10 1JW. TEL: HATFIELD (0472) 65533; TELEX: 943763

Relax with Rioja

Gaze into your glass of Rioja and think of great words like elegant, delicious and velvety. Take some into your mouth, draw in a little air and roll the Rioja around your tongue. Relax and taste a truly great wine.

Enjoy the wonderful wines of Rioja and find a quality and value that is unequalled.

Look for the little stamp...

The hallmark of excellence

For further information please contact the Rioja Wine Information Centre. Vinos de España, 22 Manchester Square, London W1 Tel: 01-635 6140.

BEFORE THE THEATRE AFTER THE THEATRE OR WHENEVER THE MOOD TAKES YOU

At The Restaurant, we take pride in our readiness to adapt. Come at 11.15 before the theatre. Have, say, a glass of wine and a starter to stay you through the Drama. It makes the entertainment all the more entertaining. After the final curtain - what a comfort it's only a cab-ride back from the West End. Dinner or supper at The Restaurant will complete the evening. It helps if you can book.

Shoreditch Park Theatre THE RESTAURANT

101 KINGSBRIDGE, LONDON SW1X 7RN Telephone (01) 236 8050 Shoreditch Market, Inns & Resorts Worldwide. The hospitality people of ITT

SHOPPING

By Beryl Downing

Taking a shine to dining-room silver

Fashion has decided - with a certain amount of social insensitivity - that the coming winter is going to be a de luxe one, full of rich fabrics and sparkle. That means table settings will be lavish, too. It would be somewhat incongruous to assemble your glittering guests round the Tupperware.

So table silver will be hogging the candlelight once again, and those bargain offers of 24 pieces of plated cutlery for £49 will be doubly seductive. But exactly what are you getting for your money, and why does the price of the same pattern of "25 year plate" vary from ridiculously cheap to absurdly expensive? When even an expert cannot tell the thickness of silver plate without the help of a machine, it is not safe to assume that a fork is simply a fork.

It seems extraordinary that this country, having introduced the leopard's head hallmark on silver in 1300 - an early piece of consumer protection by Edward I - has been positively careless about silver plate.

Only five years ago it was brought to the attention of the Assay office that some supposedly silver plated knives, forks and spoons had no measurable deposits of silver: they were simply coloured silver and lacquered.

The trade association formed a joint committee of investigation under the chairmanship of Alan Parkin, one of the 30 Guardians of the Standard of the Wrought Plate Within the Town of Sheffield.

There was already a British Standard of 20 microns (technically micrometres) of silver on plated cutlery and the committee's recommendation was that anything with less than two micrometres of silver plate should be described as "silver flashed". There is a standard for plated domestic "holloware" - dishes, jugs and other decorative silver - but it has never been applied.

A micrometre here or there is impossible to distinguish visually, so many manufacturers classify their ranges as "15 year" or "50 year" plate, which Mr Parkin dismisses as "absolutely meaningless".

"If you keep them in a box they will last for ever. Unless descriptions are accompanied by a declaration of the silver thickness they are useless. Another meaningless term is the time-honoured 'All plate'. All it means is that a plate is a particular manufacturer's best and in some cases that could be very, very poor."

Alan Parkin, who is a Freeman of the Goldsmiths' Company, speaks from a position of strength. His family have been silversmiths since 1708 and his son Peter is the tenth generation in the business. The present company was founded in 1919 making plated holloware under the Parkin name and special sterling silver commissions, which recently included a child's porringer for P & O to present to Prince Henry.

The Parkin family also acquired Elkingtons, the company which patented electroplating in 1840 after George Richard Elkington had seen a demonstration by a certain Dr. Smee. Elkington saw the potential of the process and the good doctor is rarely credited with the discovery.

With the company came the original Elkington patterns and many of these are in production today, including the Victorian designs, Louis XVI and Regency and the plainer 1930s styles, Westminster and Aegean. All these are guaranteed to have a deposit of at least 20 micrometres, for Parkin/Elkington is one of the few manufacturers with a machine that measures silver thickness in less than a minute, so that constant checks can be made during production.

An amateur buying modern silver plate or antique silver is completely at the mercy of the expert. One of the most respected sellers in London is S. J. Phillips of New Bond Street, who are known to dealers worldwide.

Their advice to the would-be collector is to find a dealer you not only trust but like. "No matter how good the advice is, if you don't like the person giving it you won't go back to him", says Nicholas Norton of Phillips. He also advises asking The British Antiques Dealers' Association for its list of members in your area.

Another much younger company, which is building its reputation on an insistence on quality is A. D. C. Heritage owned by Francis and Toni Raeymakers, who have progressed in just over five years from a stall no bigger than 36 square feet in Antiquarius to an elegant showroom in Old Bond Street.

They now have an interesting selection of high quality silver for collectors including a wide range of small items such as vinaigrettes, wine labels and serving spoons in the £65 to £300 bracket and salt cellars, cream jugs and wine funnels from £300 to £500. There is some modern silver, too, from £18, which makes attractive gifts but one of their main specialities is antique cutlery. There are usually between 20 and 25 canteens in stock, which is one of the largest ranges in London.

When you are spending about £2,000 for an Edwardian canteen, or £4,500 for a Victorian mixed set (by one maker at different dates) or between £7,000 and £12,000 for a Victorian set of same date and maker, it is wise to put yourself in the hands of a dealer you can trust and who will offer some guarantees.

If you spend large sums at auction, you must know what you are doing. Auctioneers sometimes make mistakes and if you have taken their word the mistake is also yours. But if you are spending between £50 and £200 you will be able to pick up menu card holders, napkin rings, Vesta cases and caddy spoons at prices between 50 and 200 per cent less than in a shop. If you have the time and patience, it is also possible to collect a canteen of cutlery for considerably less than the retail price, but you will be limited to certain patterns - Fiddle and Old English will probably be easiest - and you will have to go to 20 or 30 auctions.

But Ralph Holt of auctioneers Phillips in Blenheim Street, London warns that silver is not necessarily a good investment. "Never buy anything you don't like, hoping that you will be able to make a profit", he says. "The silver market fluctuates enormously and you must be prepared to live with what you have chosen."

Mr Holt did, however, offer a couple of tips. He considers the silversmith Omar Ramsden, who produced a lot of commissioned work between 1897 and 1900, to be undervalued. "When collectors in the 21st century look back and decide who were the best makers of the 1900s, Ramsden will be at the top of the list."

If you have modern silver you should enjoy its beauty while you can, for you are very unlikely to benefit financially from it. Even Stuart Devlin's intricately crafted "surprise eggs" are selling at auction for one third of their original price. Antiques of the future they may be, but a silver lining to a temporary cloud they are not.

SPOT CHECK

ANTIQUES
Always buy the best you can afford. Two good examples are better than five average ones for the same money. Condition is paramount, weight less important. Look for repairs and erasures of crests. A dealer will feel silver to test its spring and give. Even if an erasure is not visible the silver will be thinner. Solder lines can be disguised by electroplating, which will be whiter than the bluish tinge of antique silver. Examine handles and spouts. Handles are always placed on the seam. Early coffee pots had handles at right angles to the spout which were sometimes moved to the now conventional position. Look inside the pot where the seam shows more clearly. De-bussing, or the removal of dents, is the only restoration which will not reduce the value.

In pierced baskets always check that there are no breaks in the decoration where it might have been caught by a polishing cloth. Check any embossed decoration for tiny holes - also caused by constant polishing.

CUTLERY
Forks should have long, even tines (prongs). These can become blunted and worn down on one side. Sometimes dealers cut the prongs down to make them look even. Spoons should have smooth, round edges. Make sure the pattern on the handles is well defined. Bead is particularly liable to be rubbed away over the years. Old English pattern is more desirable than Fiddle and unscrupulous dealers have been known to shave Fiddle and convert it to Old English without damaging the marks. But these relatively simple designs were made in much larger quantities than the more elaborate and heavier patterns which attract higher prices.

PLATED CUTLERY
Ask whether the plate conforms to the British Standard and also make sure of the base material - it should contain 12 per cent nickel. Look between the prongs of the forks. Cheap ones show serrations where the blank has been cut. Buy only a reputable brand. Under present laws it is possible for European manufacturers to put almost any mark on cutlery and export it to Britain. Some cutlery has reached the UK marked "Solingen" which implies the best German manufacture, but was actually made in Korea.

Above left: pierced bonbonnière to be auctioned at Phillips next Friday, estimate £120-£150. Close inspection of this seemingly perfect piece reveals breaks in decoration.

Above: perfect George III coffee pot by Charles Wright. Note the clean edge to the join of spout to pot. £3,800 at A.D.C. Heritage.

Elkington silver plate: (from left) Old English, Fiddle, Thread and Shell, Louis XVI, Regency (both Victorian designs), Westminster and Aegean (both 1930s). All £10.25 per fork to order at House of Fraser stores.

Below: a set of silver spoons, showing the handles and the tips of the spoons.

WHERE TO GO

Elkington cutlery and Parkin silverware are available at House of Fraser stores. For other stockists contact the manufacturers (0742 22041). A. D. C. Heritage is at 2 Old Bond Street, London W1 (01-493 5088). Phillips, 7 Blenheim Street, London W1 (01-629 6622) have silver auctions every Friday. S. J. Phillips (no connection with the auctioneers) are at 139 New Bond Street, London W1 (01-629 6261).

DRINK

Appellation celebration

I have never been fond of rules and regulations. That, back-neyed old phrase about a camel being a horse designed by a committee has never seemed more apt than when considering EEC wine laws. Who was the bright Italian, for example, who decided to hand out that country's highest quality designation - the recently introduced DOCG - as a blanket award to all Chianti, including the good, the bad and the ugly? And how is it that Germany, whose wine laws seem to be the stiffest and most meticulous in the world, has had more wine scandals and frauds during the past decade than any other country?

Yet for all the tedious legalism of those classic EEC wine documents 337 and 338 of 1979, those EEC wine men do serve some purpose.

In the bad old days before 337 and 338, France and other wine-producing nations were never particularly concerned about what went into the bottle. The wine laws have certainly not turned every vigneron and producer into a saint overnight, as the recent Austrian scandal proves; but fudging is a great deal more difficult.

After various early attempts to guarantee the region and method of production, in 1935 France eventually came up with what is now recognized as the international blueprint for wine regulations: appellation d'origine contrôlée. This AC or AOC classification was to be controlled in turn by the Institut National des Appellations d'Origine, des Vins et Eaux de Vie (or INAO) - a self-governing body made up of both producers and merchants.

Since then, the INAO has been fairly successful and deserves its fiftieth anniversary celebrations this year. To mark the occasion tasting competitions were held all over France to find the finest and most representative wine from each appellation. Having tasted a selection of the 26 wines I can confirm that once again the INAO has won through.

We began with racy, green Muscadet de Sèvre et Maine '84, from Donatien Bahuaud, with a lively, positive taste that lived up to its sur lie designation (Arthur Cooper/Roberts Shops; £3.59).

Next in line was Jean Claude Dagueneau's '84 Pouilly Fumé - its elegant, clean herbaceous character was everything you would expect from a great Loire wine. (Available in a week's time Reid Wines, The Mill, Marsh Lane, Hallatrow, Bristol, £5.15.) I also much enjoyed Gaston Huet's '82 Vouvray, a demi-sec wine blessed with an apricot candied-peel taste. (The Wine Society, Gunners Wood Road, Stevenage, Herts; £5.15.)

Among the reds, the '82 Pecharmant, a little known appellation south-east of Bordeaux, from the Domaine de Champarel, was much admired by everyone; with its enormous purple-black colour and hefty, tannic fruit it still needs a decade or more in the cellar. From the same vintage, but from further south, came the 1982 Côte du Roussillon Villages, Cuvée Georges Pous, from the Lesquerde co-operative: a lovely, spicy-peppery wine that proved the Midi can produce quality as well as quantity (not available in this country at the moment). A luscious pineapple-peachy '83 Sauternes from Château Bastor-Lamontagne rounded off the occasion (Corney & Barrow, 12 Helmet Row, London EC1; £7.48).

Jane MacQuitty

CHABLIS

Grand Vin de Bourgogne, France.

skiing

"à la carte"

At the Arcs, skiing is "à la carte": Ski "Évolutive" gets beginners off to a good start. Ski progress when you've learned to fly. Cross-country skiing to explore the wonderful landscapes. Prices are "à la carte" too:

ONE WEEK IN A STUDIO APARTMENT OR A HOUSEHOLD LINES SUPPLIED, SKI PASS INCLUDED, FROM	ONE WEEK AT THE HOTEL DU GOLF (ARC 1800) HALF BOARD, DOUBLE ROOM, FROM	ONE WEEK AT THE HOTEL DE LA VALLÉE ROUGE - ARC 2000, HALF BOARD, DOUBLE ROOM, SKI PASS (7 DAYS) WITH ENGLISH SPEAKING INSTRUCTOR, FROM
PER PERSON £ 106	PER PERSON £ 199	PER PERSON £ 279

All prices per person, per week, including per country currency and all the other services and small expenses. *Official price per person, hotel approximately £1.50 per person for 7 days.

Les Arcs

I would like full details of: ☐ Self-catering holidays in Les Arcs ☐ Hotel holidays in Les Arcs

NAME

ADDRESS

TEL:

TOURBARC UK Ltd., 1075 BROMPTON ROAD, ENTRANCE OVENINGTON GARDENS, LONDON SW3 1LA. TEL. (0)584 3358

FILL YOUR GLASSES WITH THE WINES FROM FRANCE, WITHOUT EMPTYING YOUR POCKETS.

DE NEUVILLE SPARKLING SAUMUR. A GOOD ALTERNATIVE TO CHAMPAGNE. WELL BALANCED, FRESH AND FRUITY, WITH A LOVELY TINGLE. Selector Code 2 £3.99 Per bottle

VIN DE PAYS DE LA VALLEE DU PARADIS. A MEDIUM BODIED SMOOTH RED. EXCELLENT ON ITS OWN OR WITH ROASTS. REALLY GOOD VALUE. Selector Code MediumBodied and Firm £1.69 Per bottle

NINERVOIS AC 1984. THIS EXCELLENT RED HAS A LOVELY BOUQUET AND A FIRM, VELVET FLAVOUR. GOOD WITH CASSEROLES AND ON ITS OWN. Selector Code MediumBodied and Firm £1.89 Per bottle

MUSCADET. THIS FAMOUS, CRISP, DRY WHITE WINE IS A NATURAL ACCOMPANIMENT TO SEA-FOOD. Selector Code 1 £2.79 Per bottle

CORBIERES ROUGE 1984. THIS DELICIOUS, MEDIUM BODIED SMOOTH RED IS FULL OF FLAVOUR AND AN EXCELLENT ACCOMPANIMENT TO MEAT. Selector Code MediumBodied and Soft £1.89 Per bottle

CORBIERES BLANC 1984. A LOVELY FRESH AND FRUITY WHITE, IDEAL ON ITS OWN, OR WITH SEA-FOOD. Selector Code 1 £1.89 Per bottle

BORDEAUX 1984 BLANC DE BLANCS. THIS WHITE WINE HAS A CLEAN FRUITY FLAVOUR THAT GOES WELL WITH CHICKEN, SEA-FOOD AND SALAD. Selector Code 3 £1.69 Per bottle

MAISON ROYALE. OUR OWN WELL ROUNDED CHAMPAGNE WITH A CLASSIC BOUQUET. Selector Code 1 £6.69 Per bottle

THE VICTORIA WINE COMPANY

Make friends with the wines of France. ♪

By law we are not allowed to sell alcohol to anyone under 18. Offers subject to availability, alterations to duty or VAT 5% Discount on 12 bottles or more.

ENTERTAINMENTS

OPERA &amp; BALLET

ENGLISH NATIONAL OPERA
LONDON COLISEUM

Verdi's Don Carlos
"a profoundly stirring experience"

STANDBY £6.50
from 5.45pm

TONIGHT & WED
at 6.30

St Martin's Lane WC2
Box Office 01-463 3141 CC 01-240 5259

Palace Theatre 01-477 0834
The Royal Opera House Covent Garden
The Royal Ballet
The Royal Opera House Covent Garden
The Royal Ballet
The Royal Opera House Covent Garden
The Royal Ballet

Concerts
Bach at St Anne's & St Anne's
Bach at St Anne's & St Anne's
Bach at St Anne's & St Anne's
Bach at St Anne's & St Anne's

Theatres
Theatre Royal, Covent Garden
Theatre Royal, Covent Garden
Theatre Royal, Covent Garden
Theatre Royal, Covent Garden

Concerts
Theatre Royal, Covent Garden
Theatre Royal, Covent Garden
Theatre Royal, Covent Garden
Theatre Royal, Covent Garden

Concerts
Theatre Royal, Covent Garden
Theatre Royal, Covent Garden
Theatre Royal, Covent Garden
Theatre Royal, Covent Garden

Concerts
Theatre Royal, Covent Garden
Theatre Royal, Covent Garden
Theatre Royal, Covent Garden
Theatre Royal, Covent Garden

Concerts
Theatre Royal, Covent Garden
Theatre Royal, Covent Garden
Theatre Royal, Covent Garden
Theatre Royal, Covent Garden

Concerts
Theatre Royal, Covent Garden
Theatre Royal, Covent Garden
Theatre Royal, Covent Garden
Theatre Royal, Covent Garden

Concerts
Theatre Royal, Covent Garden
Theatre Royal, Covent Garden
Theatre Royal, Covent Garden
Theatre Royal, Covent Garden

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

CINEMA

THE WEEK AHEAD

TELEVISION

TWISTER: Eric Porter, in his first BBC serial since The Forsyte Saga in the 1960s, stars as the villainous Fagin in a 12-part adaptation of Dickens's Oliver Twist by Alexander Baron, which concentrates on narrative and action in order to make sense of the complicated plot. BBC 1, tomorrow, 6.30pm.

OPERA

VERDI FIRST: Elizabeth Connell, once a mezzo but now a dramatic soprano, sings Leonora for the first time in the Covent Garden revival of Verdi's Il trovatore, with Jose Carreras in the title role. Royal Opera House (01-240 1066) from today. On Thursday she is a soloist in Mahler's Des Knaben Wunderhorn at the Barbican.

FILMS

MAX FACTOR: Mel Gibson and Tina Turner play two of the adventurers in the post-holocaust world in Mad Max Beyond Thunderdome (15), which also features some clever stunt work. From Friday at the Warner West End (01-439 0791), Classic Haymarket (01-839 1527) and Classic Oxford Street (01-636 0310).

BOOKS

POST BAG: Ezra Pound and Wyndham Lewis, the prime movers of the Vorticist movement, wrote to each other from 1909 until Lewis's death in 1957. The Letters of Ezra Pound and Wyndham Lewis (Faber, £25) gathers their intense correspondence and shows how they tried to gain a perspective on their own art.

RADIO

IN TRIBUTE: William Alwyn, whose compositions ranged from film scores to opera, died last month. Tomorrow's Radio 3 programme was originally planned as a celebration but now it becomes a tribute. Included are two pieces by Alwyn, as well as new works by Anthony Gilbert and Arnold Cooke (9.05-9.45pm).

DANCE

STEPPING OUT: Elisabetta Terabust, the ballerina who divides her time between her native Italy and London Festival Ballet, appears with Peter Schaufuss in Natalia Makarova's new staging of La Bayadère, a production to challenge that of the Royal Ballet. Palace Theatre, Manchester (061-236 9922) from Friday.

THE TIMES CHOICE

THEATRE

IN PREVIEW

THE DRAGON'S TAIL: Penelope Keith, Mark Kingston, Amanda Root and Robert Hines in a new comedy by Douglas Watkinson. Apollo, Shaftesbury Avenue, London W1 (01-437 2683/434 3598). Previews from Wed. Opens Oct 21.

THE GRACE OF MARY TRAVESE: A young woman in 18th-century London embarks on an effort to lose her innocence. Royal Court, Sloane Square, London SW1 (01-730 1745). Previews from Thurs. Opens Oct 22.

PARTICULAR FRIENDSHIPS: A new comedy by Martin Allen about the staff of the documentary department of a television company. Hampstead Theatre, Swiss Cottage, London NW3 (01-722 9301). Previews from Thurs. Opens Oct 22.

THE CASTLE: Second of three new Howard Barker plays. Nick Hamm directs a tale of Crusaders returning home. The Pit, Barbican, London EC2 (01-628 8795). Previews Mon and Tues. Opens Wed.

THE DELIBERATE DEATH OF A POLISH PRIEST: Ronald Harwood's dramatization of the trial of four Polish state security officers for the killing of Father Jerzy Popielusko. Almeida Theatre, Almeida Street, London N1 (01-359 4404). Previews Tues and Wed. Opens Thurs.

DEVIL'S PEAK: Play performed, directed and written by South Africans. Croydon Warehouse, 62 Dingwall Road, Croydon (01-880 4060/681 1257). Previews today, tomorrow. Opens Tues.

THE ALCHMIST: A vivid production of Jonson's comic masterpiece. Lyric, Hammersmith, London W6 (01-741 2311).

THE SEAGULL: Vanessa Redgrave and Natasha Richardson join forces in a much improved transfer. Queens (01-734 1166).

TORCH SONG TRILOGY: Harvey Fierstein's Broadway hit provides a showcase for Antony Sher as the plucky drag queen. Albany (01-836 3878).

OUT OF TOWN

LEICESTER: Soft Shoe Shuffle. Film director Mike Hodges's first stage play, a black comedy said to combine Spillane and Orson. Haymarket Studio (0533 539797).

STRATFORD-UPON-AVON: The Fortnight. The fourth RSC/W. H. Smith Festival of new plays by new and established writers, workshops of plays in the current repertoire and recitals and discussions. Premieres include The Futurists by Dusty Hughes, The Dead Monkey by Nick Darke, Yardsale (stage premiere of a radio play) by Arnold Wesker for Sheila Steafel. The Other Place (0788 286655 ext 213 for information). No telephone bookings. From Mon.

FILMS

OPENINGS

PETER PAN (U): Revival of Walt Disney's 1953 cartoon features; a trifle stiff overall, but Captain Hook prompts some lively animation. Classic Haymarket (01-639 1527). From Fri.

THE ANGELIC CONVERSATION (15): The latest feature from the provocative Derek Jarman; with Paul Reynolds (above) and dreamlike images matched to Shakespeare's sonnets. Everyman (01-435 1525). From Fri.

THE FLAMINGO KID (15): Matt Dillon stars as the Brooklyn kid growing into manhood in the early 1960s. A modest tale, directed by Garry Marshall. Cinemas, Pavilion Street (01-930 0831); Screen on Baker Street (01-835 2772); Classic Chelsea (01-362 5098). From Fri.

SELECTED

HAIL MARY (18): Jean-Luc Godard's controversial treatment of the biblical story of Mary and Joseph. Metro, Piccadilly Circus (01-437 0757).

PALE RIDER (15): Clint Eastwood's handsome Western about a stranger helping poor gold prospectors fight off big business. Warner West End (01-439 0791).

DANCE

ROYAL BALLET: The Covent Garden company opens its season (Thurs at 7.30pm) with The Sleeping Beauty, starring Lesley Collier and Stephen Jefferies. Mark Ermler, the Russian guest conductor, is in charge of the Tchaikovsky music. Royal Opera House (01-240 1066).

LONDON FESTIVAL BALLET: The autumn tour begins at the Manchester Palace on Mon with Ashton's new production of Romeo and Juliet; not to be missed. Fri brings two notable premieres: Natalia Makarova's production of the Kingdom of Shades scene from La Bayadère, and the first staging for a British company of Paul Taylor's Aurore, both to be repeated Oct 19. Manchester Palace (061 236 9922).

DANCE UMBRELLA: David Gordon's Pick-Up Company has its last night at Sadler's Wells today. On Tues the action moves to The Place, where Mark Morris and Dancers, from New York, perform (also Wed and Oct 19). On Thurs and Fri, two mixed bills mainly by British choreographers. Sadler's Wells (01-278 8918). The Place, Dukes Road, WC1 (01-387 0031).

SADLER'S WELLS ROYAL BALLET: A week at the Marlowe, Canterbury, begins with Giselle. Margaret Blandini has the title part Mon and Wed; Tues sees Lesanne Benjamin (matinee) and Sherilyn Kennedy (eve); Marion Tait appears Thurs. On Fri and Oct 19, Sinfrey's Masquerade and two Cranko works, The Lady and the Fool and Card Game. Canterbury, Marlowe Theatre (0227 67246).

LONDON CONTEMPORARY DANCE THEATRE: Siobhan Davies's Bridge the Distance and Jerome Robbins's Moves are at Bristol tonight and at Warwick Tues and Wed; from Thurs the Warwick programme (until Oct 19) includes Christopher Bannerman's new Shadows in the Sun. Bristol, Hippodrome (0272 299444). Warwick University Arts Centre (0203 417471).

GALLERIES

OPENINGS

THE ACHIEVEMENT OF A CONNOISSEUR: Impressive 75th birthday celebration of Philip Pouncey who, during a career at the Fitzwilliam, National Gallery and Sotheby's made many exciting discoveries in the field of Old Master drawings. The show includes drawings by Leonardo, Lotto and Correggio, on loan from collections all over Europe. Fitzwilliam Museum, Trumpington Street, Cambridge (0223 99501). From Tues.

BRITISH WOMEN SURREALISTS: Although hardly remembered for their involvement today, women were very active in the British Surrealist movement in the 1930s and 40s. Work by five not-so-famous painters, led by Eileen Agar, in a show which coincides with the publication of Women Artists and the Surrealist Movement by Whitney Chadwick (Thames and Hudson, £18). Blond Fine Art, 22 Prince's Street, London W1 (01-437 1230). From Wed.

TURNER PRIZE: Line-up of artists shortlisted for the bumper £10,000 prize, to be awarded on Nov 12. Judges are currently trying to resolve an impossible question: which of five artists (Terry Adkins, Tony Cragg, Howard Hodgkin, Ian Hamilton Finlay and John Walker) and one exhibitions organizer (Milena Kalinowska) has "made the greatest contribution to art in Britain" over the last year? Tate Gallery, Millbank, London SW1 (01-828 6648). From Thurs.

SELECTED

HOWARD HODGKIN: Triumphant opening show for the remodelled, white-painted Whitechapel Art Gallery, with Hodgkin at his best. His bright, many-layered paintings have more fluency than ever. Whitechapel Art Gallery, Whitechapel High Street, London E1 (01-377 0107).

BRONZINO TO BOY GEORGE: Adverse, even bizarre, exhibition of work gathered up from houses in Sussex, in fund-raising ruse by the National Art-Collections Fund. Apart from the gentlemen mentioned in the title (the former appearing here as an artist, the latter as a sitter), the exhibition includes a portrait by Millais of his daughters and Charles I's shirt. Art Gallery and Museums, Royal Pavilion, Brighton (0273 603005).

PHOTOGRAPHY

STARS OF THE BRITISH SCREEN: An exhibition that demonstrates that there is always mileage in the myth and nostalgia of the cinema. About 150 portraits, taken from the 1930s onwards. Harris Museum and Art Gallery, Market Square, Preston, Lancs (0772 58248).

WEEGEE THE FAMOUS: Crime, tragedy and famous habitués photographed on the nocturnal streets of New York during the 1930s and 1940s. The Photogallery, 41 Charles Street, Cardiff (0222 41667).

SHOTS OF STYLE: David Bailey's personal collection of fashion photography this century, including most of the famous names. Victoria and Albert Museum, South Kensington, London, SW7, (01-589 6371).

LAST CHANCE

SHAFTESBURY SOCIETY: Centenary exhibition of the great social reformer of the Victorian era. Admission free. Closes tomorrow. Barbican Centre, Silk Street, London EC2 (01-638 4141).

THE PIANO PAST AND PRESENT: Exhibition showing London as the centre of keyboard making since the 1700s. Finishes tomorrow. Open until 11pm. Admission free. Barbican Centre. (01-638 4141).

THE HOLY GRAIL TAPESTRIES: Tapestries by Birmingham-born artist Edward Burne-Jones. Finishes Mon. City Museum and Art Gallery, Chamberlain Square, Birmingham B3 (021 235 2834).

THE ART OF THE PAPERBACK: Originals by recent Penguin cover artists. Finishes Mon. Clarendon Gallery, 8 Vigo Street, London W1 (01-439 4557).

For ticket availability, performance and opening times, telephone the numbers listed. Theatre: Tony Patrick and Martin Cropper; Galleries: Sarah Jane Checkland; Dance: John Percival; Photography: Michael Young; Films: Geoff Brown; Bookings: Anne Whitehouse

MURDER IS A DISH BEST SERVED COLD

"EASILY THE MOST SATISFYING NEW FILM I'VE SEEN THIS YEAR" BUTZ

A NEW RECIPE FROM THE MASTER CHEF OF SUSPENSE, CLAUDE CHABROL. JEAN SEBERG. JEAN-PAUL BELMONDO. Paris on the Hill

Cool, calm – and highly explosive

Glenda Jackson is back on stage in London next week. Veronica Grocock unveils a dramatic success story

It is typical of Glenda Jackson's zealous commitment to her craft that she constantly tests herself to the limit, searching for new ways to encapsulate a role. Her performance in Philip Prowse's fine revival of Racine's Phedra at the Old Vic last year was widely and deservedly acclaimed. She is about to repeat this emotional tour de force: the play opens for a 10-week season at the Aldwych Theatre on Tuesday.

How difficult is it to pick up a role again after almost a year? "The trouble is you can't start afresh," Ms Jackson explains, during a break before rehearsals in a South London church hall. "You keep stubbing your toe against what you've done before. You're between the devil and the deep blue sea. It's having the energy again, without making it merely a memory of what you can remember."

"I mean, it's all there in the play: it's just unlocking it and at the moment I'm using the old combinations. It's like Pavlov's dogs - I'm thinking it before I get there. She prefers it a bit 'bumpy' really. It is not the first time she has resumed a role after a long gap. She did it with the Royal Shakespeare Company and, more recently, with Eugene O'Neill's Strange Interlude, which transferred from London to Broadway.

She tends to talk in terms of plays rather than parts and thinks the best work is dependent on a small group of people who know each other well, working honestly. "To me, the theatre is not just a group of people in a lit area being watched by a group of people sitting in a dark area. It's something that moves between those two areas and each reinforces the other."

She is not suggesting that audiences should work at it as though they're on some punitive expedition... but really great dramatists do exercise some kind of hold. There's an exchange of energy which a great play has within it, of which an audience is part."

There are still, she avers, far too few challenging, non-stereotyped parts for actresses in their middle (and later) years: no "continuing stream", no "last mountain to climb" in the modern or classical repertoire.

This autumn sees the release of Turtle Diary, Harold Pinter's screen version of Russell Hoban's allegorical novel about a modern-day Beatrice Potter (Glenda Jackson) who writes children's stories, and a disenchanted business executive (Ben Kingsley). They complement each other, linked by their mutual fascination for the giant sea turtles at London Zoo and a deep desire to free them.

Besides being a happy and fruitful experience for Ms Jackson, it is the first film from UBA (United British Artists), the production company she set up with Pinter, Richard Johnson, Albert Finney, Diana Rigg and others, to promote the interests and talents of British actors. She attends board meetings, discusses projects and seeks out scripts, but is less involved with "the nuts and bolts of getting up balance sheets and getting money."

UBA receives a continual flow of new material, but so far, women dramatists have been conspicuously absent. The reasons, Ms Jackson feels, are logistical ones, to do with the conflicting loyalties that most women have.

Early in 1986 she will be back in the West End. Rehearsals start in January for a Charles Wood comedy, Across From the Garden of Allah. "It's very funny and not-funny at the same time. I just think he's a marvellous writer."

In her approach to a play - be it comedy, drama, tragedy - the work process seems to me to be pretty much the same... A play is a corporate product; it's how that group of people see that play at that one time. It is an egalitarian, democratic approach, that has nothing to do with power structure or arrogant directors dogmatically pursuing their own egos: a merciful rarity in Ms Jackson's experience. "Perhaps I've just been very lucky."

Phedra previews tonight and Mon and opens on Tues Aldwych Theatre (01-836 6404).

ARTS DIARY

Hamster's soliloquy

"Exit pursued by a bear" pales into nothingness by comparison with some of the stage directions that litter the 1,850-odd entries received in the Mobil Playwriting Competition. One demands that an eight-foot hamster should burst through the back wall of the stage and address the audience. Another states: "For the first third of this act, the audience should be bored to death." A third challenges the most inventive actor: "As the laughing gas takes hold, the dead's features and posture gradually change, paralleling Francis Bacon's Metamorphosis of Velasquez's Portrait of Innocent X." But for sheer inscrutability, what about the injunction: "The first person we see is invisible?"

Batty Satie

A rare chance to become clinically insane seems on offer next Wednesday at London's Logan Hall. Post-modernist jazz masters the Vienna Art Orchestra are to perform The Minimalism of Erik Satie, a series of improvisations on the French composer's tiny works. One highlight will be part of the unendurable Exercices, in which a handful of piano notes is repeated in the same sequence several hundred times. Satie, apparently, fully intended that both performer and audience should be driven mad through repetition.

Scottish feminists must be regarding Giles Havergal, director of the Glasgow Citizens' Theatre, with deep suspicion. Over the last 15 years, he has produced an all-male Hamlet and an Importance of Being Earnest with a male Lady Bracknell. Now his Arsenic and Old Lace has just opened (reviewed in our paper this week by Sarah Hemmings), with the homicidal aunts Martha and Abby played by men. "Mr Havergal thinks it gives added point to the anti-realistic premise of the play," explains a female colleague.

Lost partner

The lush string arrangements of the late Nelson Riddle, the bandleader who taught Sinatra to sing lower and more successfully - seem a world away from the classical austerity of Barry Tuckwell, the Australian horn maestro. But only three weeks before Riddle's untimely death last Sunday, the two men were planning a concert together, with the Maryland Symphony Orchestra. "Nelson wanted to compose a piece specially for me," says Tuckwell. "Our styles were in fact perfectly complementary: one of my most treasured records is of Sinatra singing 'Close to You', with Riddle's arrangement for the Hollywood String Quartet."

Days of Grace

Playing the noble Sir Joseph Porter in HATS Pinflore at Sadler's Wells from October 31 should be a refreshing change for Nicholas Grace: the role of the stammering homosexual Anthony Blanche in Brideshead threatened to dog his career for ever. He was even approached by an American company which took punters on tours of Oxford, Castle Howard and other key sites. They invited Grace to be an "exhibit" at the Hyde Park Hotel, whose interior was used to film the scenes in the Queen Mary's state rooms. He declined at first but then thought "What the hell - I could do with a decent lunch. So I used to go along as myself, then switch into the Blanche routine after dessert: 'Welcome, my d-d-dears, all the way from the c-c-colonies...'

BREATHLESS
"RICH, SENSUOUS... FAULTLESS PERFORMANCES"
"POWERFUL AND FULL OF PASSION"
Camila
NOW CURZON MAYFAIR
CURZON STREET W1 Tel 01-489 3737

COPACABANA
A NEW RECIPE FROM THE MASTER CHEF OF SUSPENSE, CLAUDE CHABROL JEAN SEBERG
JEAN-PAUL BELMONDO
Paris on the Hill

هكذا من الأصيل